

SIEGE OF FORT RODRIC

Fort Rodric is an important fortification in the Ashen Hills. It is of the utmost strategic position for the defense of Terrinoth. The Uthuk, knowing this, begin to siege the fort. However, unbeknownst to the Uthuk forces, the Daqan have a Siege Golem hidden within the fort to assist in the defense of the fort during sieges. Daqan begins to strike back, and ends up winning the day. But what if it didn't happen like that?

The lines are drawn, the units deployed, and the plan is set. Make the most of the day and seize victory for your side!

This is the second scenario in the Runebound campaign. Whoever controlled Waigar in the first scenario, The Battle of the Cursed Ruins now controls the Uthuk Y'llan.

SETUP

The Daqan deploys 8 muster points onto the blue hexes, which represents reinforcements from the nearby towns of N. Red Bridge and S. Red Bridge. Daqan does not gain lore from unspent muster points.

The Uthuk player is the first player.

SPECIAL RULES

The siege golem ignores blocking terrain within range 2 of it.

OBJECTIVE

Daqan wins a major victory (2 Campaign points) if they reach 24 VP.

Uthuk wins a minor victory (1 campaign point) if they reach 16 VP.

Uthuk wins a decisive victory (3 campaign points) if at the start of their turn, they control both central building hexes.

The Uthuk may forfeit their minor victory if they so wish to try to earn more campaign points. If they do, that victory condition is no longer available, and the only way they can win is through controlling the buildings.

Daqan VP Step: Gain 1 VP if no Uthuk units occupy either of the central building hexes.

Uthuk VP Step: Gain 2 VP for each central building hex controlled.
