Mogaung, Burma, June 7, 1944: Mogaung had been a major supply base for the Japanese in Northern Burma and was next on the list of objectives for Stillwell's men. After defeating the Japanese garrison in fierce fighting at Camaing, the Chinese were quickly resupplied and sent to aid Calvert's Chindit Brigade in taking Mogaung. Aware of the village's importance, Japanese commander, Col. Takeda scraped up whatever remaining troops and weapons were available, and set out to defend his base to the last man.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: Allied player must Control all Buildings/Huts on board 42 ≤ than 4 hexes of H4.

BALANCE: British - Receive Air support in the form of 2 FB's w/bombs
Japanese - Add 2 4-4-8's and a DC to any one OB group.

SPECIAL RULES:

1) EC are Moist with no wind at start. PTO terrain including Light Jungle (G 1) is in effect. Windling is NA. The only road that exists is 42 A6-G4-CC5-GG6. Place Rubble counters on hexes 35 BB4, CC5 and 42 F3, D5. Place overlays as followed: X26 on 35 V0-V1, O2 on 42 G6-L5, OG5 on 52 P7-Q7. Huts on 1st level of overlay X26 do not exist. Instead, place Trench counters on these three hexes. Treated all Bridges are as Wooden Foot Bridges (B 6.44).
2) Chinese infantry and Chindit units may not stack together, form FG's, nor may their leaders Rally each other. Chindit 6-4-8's are Gurkhas (A 25.43 - H 1.24) with an ELR of 2.
3) Japanese snipers became more and more active during the battle. To reflect this, Japanese SAN is equal to the player turn. Sniper checks are NA for both sides.

AFTERMATH: The battle for Mogaung saw some of the bloodiest fighting in Northern Burma. Both sides, exhausted from the continual fighting, bad weather, hunger and disease, threw themselves at each other knowing only one fate awaited them ... victory or death. With the tides of battles already turning against them, as villages and bases falling steadily to the Allies, the Japanese defenders must have known what fate was in store for them. It was written when the battle was over, "hardly a wall was standing or a branch remained on a tree. There was nothing living, not a dog or a cat, and no Japanese soldier escaped from this ruin".

East of Lvov, Poland, July 17, 1944: Soviet mechanized armies were smashing deep into Poland. Konev threw "Mechanized Cavalry Group Baranov" through a gap in the lines and they drove towards the key city of Lvov. The Germans had plenty of air and artillery support, and new, superior AFVs were reaching the front line troops who were reinvigorated. Furious tank battles raged east of Lvov. Despite this Konev gambled that a deep breakthrough by 3rd Guards Tank Army could capture the huge city in one fell swoop. German general Harpe committed his tactical reserve, 8th Panzer Division to slice into the northern flank of the Russian pincer and smother the offensive.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins immediately upon exiting 20 EVP (at least 10 EVP must be Personnel) off the East edge on/between 11 Y1 and 41 BB10, or at Game End if there are no Good Order, non-crew Russian MMC in any board 41 building locations west of road 41 GG5-EE5-X5-W6-T4-R6.

BALANCE:
Russian - Ordnance & AFV's are Elite for ammo depletion purposes
German - Add one FT to OB

AFTERMATH: Konev's plan to seize Lvov by a quick armored assault failed. Harpe's vicious counterattacks had bought enough time for several infantry divisions to reinforce the city. The Russians were forced to wait until later in the month for their rifle divisions to catch up. After they did, a massive assault on July 27th finally drove the Germans out of Lvov and back into the Carpathian Mountains.

Binalonan, Luzon, Philippines, December 24, 1941: 85 Japanese transports unloaded assault elements of the 48th Div. at Lingayen Gulf on Dec. 22, and they immediately moved southward to the attack. The 11th Philippino Div. fled in rout, leaving it up to the U.S. 26th Cavalry Regiment to hold off the Japanese alone. The Americans fought a skillful delaying action. General Homma's troops kept outflanking them and relentlessly continued south on Dec. 23rd, encountering the 71st Philippino Div. which also broke and ran. Once again the 26th Cavalry, which had established an out-post line, was forced to hold off the Japanese drive.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Japanese player wins at Game End if they Control all hut hexes and there are no Good Order American MMC on/adjacent to road 47 R1 Y2-GG6.

AFTERMATH: All day long on Dec. 24th the brave American cavalrymen with only a few light scout cars for support, stubbornly held off vicious attacks. It was touch and go, and the Americans were almost trapped and annihilated, but late that afternoon they managed to extradite themselves and withdraw south-eastwards to Tayug. From there they would be called upon time and again to assist in the fall-back to Bataan where ultimately they would help form the left flank of Wainwright's First Corps.

Hohenrappersdorf, Austria, April 12, 1945: With the war drawing to it's close, both the Romanians and Hungarians found their armies decimated by the battles in Hungary the prior fall and winter. The Hungarian forces were almost completely destroyed by Hitler's "Stand fast/No-retreat" orders; and their capital, Budapest was in ruins. In early April the tattered Romanian 2nd Armored Regiment found themselves in support of the Soviet 4th Guards Rifle Div. as they advanced into Austria. Just north-east of Vienna the combined Romanian/Soviet force came up against the Hungarian Huszar Div. Unable to defeat the Russians alone, the Hungarians were the fortunate beneficiaries of a timely German armored counterattack.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Allied player wins immediately when all 4 King Tigers are eliminated/Recalled. AFTERMATH: The Konigstigers led by Hauptmann von Diest-Koerber and supported by Panzer IVs would have hopelessly out-gunned the Romanian armor in open country. However in the maze of streets, aided by Russian infantry, the Romanians claimed two Tigers and 2 Pz IVs, but at great cost. The Romanians lost 12 of their remaining AFVs, reducing the regiment to a company. In the last weeks of the war they pushed into Czechoslovakia, and by the war's end they had only 2 AFVs left. Being an ally of the Soviets was just as costly as being an enemy.

East of Majunga, Madagascar, September 21, 1942: Following the fierce fighting around Diego Suarez, Gov. Gen Annet withdrew his Vichy force south. After the British 5th Inf. Div. was transferred to India, the job of clearing the remaining Vichy forces from the island was left to the East African Brigade Group - The King's African Rifles. A fresh Allied offensive operation began in early September with the South African and Rhodesian Brigades leading the charge.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: British player wins at Game End if there are no Good Order French MMC or vehicles w/functioning MA on/adjacent to road 11 P8-K6-I5 39 J9-P9 or if there are no Good Order French MMC or vehicle w/functioning MA within 2 hexes of 47 H8 or if the British player controls all huts (see SSR 2).

AFTERMATH: Small scale clashes like this occurred throughout September as the Allies pursued the Vichy army southward toward the island's capital, Tananarive and then on to the town of Ambalavao. Vichy Governor General Annet, realizing the end was near, surrendered what remained of his forces near Iihosy on November 8th. Amazingly, the King's African Rifles lost only 30 killed and 90 wounded in the sixty days it took them to clear Madagascar.

Florida, Sicily, September 8, 1943: The British 5th Infantry Division was tasked with seizing the port of Syracuse, a key to the success of the invasion of Sicily, as its D-Day objective. The Italian defenders, panicked by the withdrawal of a small German anti-aircraft detachment, fled the city prior to their arrival of the British. Although military stores were destroyed by massive demolitions, the harbor and port facilities were left undamaged. The vanguard of the 5th Division advanced north through Syracuse to assault the neighboring town of Florida.

AFTERMATH: The British, anxious to engage the enemy after the anti-climactic capture of Syracuse, rushed into the outskirts of the town advancing on a two Brigade front. Unlike the defenders of Syracuse, Italian forces defending the city stood their ground, but were ultimately overwhelmed by the determination of the attacking Brits.

Izium Bulge, South of Lozovaya, Russia, May 18, 1942: Even as the Germans were preparing to launch their '42 summer offensive in southern Russia, the Soviets hit first with a major pincer attack towards Kharkov. The main thrust would come from the "Izium Bulge" which was itself the planned target for German "Operation Fridericus" due to commence in six days which was postponed when the Russians struck first on May 10th. For three straight days Paulus' Sixth Army was hammered by wave after wave of riflemen and torrents of armor that smashed 15 miles into the German lines. Bock decided to counter with a truncated version of "Fridericus" by Kleist's First Panzer aimed at the open southern flank of Timoshenko's spearhead.

Control of half boards is determined in two ways; having had the last AFV counter on that half or having the most AFV counters on that half at game end (Russian wins ties). In either case, only AFV's with functioning MA may exert control.
- 3) Prior to set up, make a dr. If odd, the Russians move first, if even, the Germans move first. Side moving first has their MP/MF halved on Turn 1. Now make another dr to determine which board edge the player moving first enters on: odd = North edge ; even = South edge. The player that moves second enters on the opposite edge in their player turn
- 4) Infantry must enter as halftrack passengers if German, or mounted on horses if Russian. German 2-4-8's must enter as Passengers in the two SPW 251/10 halftracks.

AFTERMATH: By noon of the 17th the German assault units were ten miles into the Russian 9th Army's positions, threatening the rear area of 57th Army and the whole Soviet offensive. Malinovski threw his reserve, 5th cavalry Corps and a tank brigade at the roving German armored units. The slashing, slicing battle was careening out of control as small, mobile formations hacked away at each other in open country. By the 18th Kleist had torn a 40 mile wide gap in the front, yet Stalin gave an iron negative to calling off his doomed offensive, which insured that it ended in total disaster. Soon the German Sixth Army would be marching off to their own doom at Stalingrad.

Lille Pocket, France, May 29, 1940: What was left of the French 1st Army was now making its last stand at Lille under the command of Major General Jean-Baptiste Molinié. Ordered to hold the line and buy time to evacuate the British Expeditionary Force around Dunkirk, the beleaguered defenders were to combat no less than 3 Panzer Divisions (some 800 tanks) and 4 Infantry Divisions (some 110,000 men).

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins at Game End if they Control 3 of the following 5 buildings: 49 E9, 20 H3, C7, P8, U2. or immediately upon exiting 22 EVP (Inf. only; prisoners count double) off the South edge.

BALANCE: German - Raise ELR to 4 and reduce French SAN to 3
French - Raise ELR to 3 and remove German 8-1 AL

AFTERMATH: "Groupelement Molinié" fought until all their ammunition was exhausted and their delaying action had worked. On May 31st, Gen. Molinié surrendered his remaining troops, "with honors", to German Gen. Waeger. Waeger let the defenders parade with arms in the streets after the battle, a salute to their fierce resistance. Shortly after, Hitler sacked General Waeger who had dared to do honor to the vanquished. Churchill later said of the French defenders, "This was a splendid contribution to the escape of their more fortunate comrades and of the British Expeditionary Force."

South of Thebes, Greece, April 25, 1941: After abandoning the Thermopylae area, the British rear guards withdrew to an improvised position south of Thebes, where they erected a last obstacle in front of Athens. Named the "24 Hour Pass" by the defending 4th New Zealanders, their job was a simple one. In order to facilitate the evacuation of other Commonwealth troops, they were to hold off the advancing 2nd Panzer Division until morning, then join in the retreat out of Greece.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins upon achieving any one of the following 3 VC: 1) Exit 32 EVP off the South edge (10 EVP must be non-crew), or 2) At Game End there are no Good Order British non-crew MMC in any building hex, or 3) At Game End there are no Good Order non-crew British MMC or AFV's w/functioning MA on any level 2 or 3 hill hex (including level 2 Gully hexes).

AFTERMATH: The delaying action, although costly and fiercely fought, had worked. 5,200 men of the 5th New Zealand Brigade were evacuated on the night of April 24 from Porto Rafti and another 10,200 Australian troops were evacuated from Nauplion and Megara on the 25th. What was left of the 4th New Zealand Brigade would have to wait until the 27th before finally making it to Crete.

Velletri Gap, Anzio Beachhead, Italy, May 25, 1944: "Operation Buffalo" marked the beginning of the final breakout from the Anzio beachhead. Following a 45 minute artillery barrage American tanks and mechanized forces plowed through obstacles and minefields, losing 86 AFVs in one day. But the attack had devastated German units in the area, and General Mackensen had been unable to shift units and prevent a breakthrough because of pressure from the British divisions near the coast. On May 25th the U.S. 1st Armor Division hit the Velletri Gap near the town of Cisterna where remnants of the various battered units blocked their path.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Americans win at Game End if there are no Good Order German MMC or AFV's w/functioning MA within 2 hexes of 46 Y1, or if there are no Good Order German MMC in 3 of the 4 following buildings; 49 K9,E9, 46 DD7, EE4.

3) American 7-4-7's are Assault Engineers (H 1.22). One AFV in the motion set up may be recorded as having Gvrostabilizers.

AFTERMATH: The Germans were reinforced at the last moment by a hodgepodge of armor gathered from shattered regiments. These included inferior AFVs of Italian manufacture most of which were unequal to even the lightest American tanks. The Velletri Gap was exploited when superior American numbers swamped Cisterna and Cori, and smashed through to Artena. Operation Buffalo had cost the Americans 4,000 casualties, but the road to Rome was now open.

Ochota, Poland, September, 1939: The campaign in Poland was progressing swimmingly. German panzer divisions had thus far met little in the way of serious opposition. In fact, after only eight days of fighting, lead elements of the 4th Panzer Division had penetrated as far as the outskirts of Warsaw. Leaving the open fields of the rural Poland behind, the Germans would learn a painful lesson in the vulnerability of their armor in an urban environment.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Poles win at Game End if they have at least 1 Good Order, non-crew, MMC on the 2nd level of Hills 520 and 513.

AFTERMATH: Receiving point blank fire from the Poles, the Germans suffered heavy casualties in their attempt to gain a foothold in the city. Reinforcements, including artillery, further drove home the lesson that the city was no place for armor. Unfortunately, the tuition paid by the Germans on the outskirts of Warsaw was wasted, as the lesson had to be relearned on the banks of the Volga three years later.

Sverdlikovo, Russia, August 2, 1941: The Herman Goring Regiment played a part in elimination of surrounded Russian Armies in the Uman Pocket. The Village of Sverdlikovo was one piece in this containment ring, and the Russians targeted it in an effort to break out. After hours of vicious assaults the Soviets had captured most of the town except for a handful of Germans trapped in it's center and who where now in dire straits and taking serious casualties. The 16th Company of the RGG was ordered to smash into Sverdlikovo and rescue them.

ICTORY CONDITIONS: The German player wins at Game End if they Control all building hexes.

AFTERMATH: Oberleutnant Robmann's Infantry Company hacked their way into the defenses in a bitter four hour battle where each machine gun post was silenced and each building captured only with hand grenade duels and intense close quarter fighting. With the perimeter cleared of Russians, Robmann could proceed to the center of the burning, mangled village and loaded the badly wounded German soldiers onto the one ambulance he had the foresight to bring along. After a forced march the relieving German infantry surveyed the carnage and Robmann was presented a flask of cognac.

Sebejmi-Mantusovo, Russia, July 3rd, 1942: Part of the plan for the German 1942 summer offensive in Russia involved the Hungarians pushing forward, reaching the river Don and establishing a defensive line. The Hungarian 2nd Army was assigned this task even though they lacked the forces and equipment to do so. From June 30th onward the III Army Corps battled Russian forces around the stronghold of Tyim. At Sebejmi-Mantusovo, their progress was blocked by heavy Russian artillery. A mobile group was organized under the command of Colonel Otto Major with cyclists, some light tanks and a few German Panzerjagers. This hand picked force was ordered to outflank the heavy artillery and hit it from behind.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Hungarian player wins immediately when all 3 Russian artillery guns are captured or eliminated. The Russian player wins by avoiding the Hungarian VC or immediately when all Hungarian AFV's have been eliminated or recalled.

AFTERMATH: Captain Bertalan Nemethy, commander of 9th Cavalry Company led his troops through rough, broken terrain around the back of the Russian artillery. There they were confronted by light Soviet armor reserves and infantry hurrying to the scene. The Hungarian Hussars charged the hilltop positions, and with the tactical initiative in their hands forced the Russians to withdraw. 2nd Army had reached the Don, but there were several strong Soviet bridgeheads there that would never be erased.

AFTERMATH: The resulting battle was a combined arms melee in the streets of the town. Thanks to the devastating rain of American artillery the Germans were stopped, but in return they had forced a temporary stalemate at this sector of the front.

Lydavenai, Lithuania, June 23, 1941: Just two days into “Barbarossa” the German recon and mobile kampgruppen were roaming miles behind the Russian lines. Soviet rifle companies had stationed themselves in villages and strong points, awaiting orders that often never came to move and regroup. Near the town of Raseiniai 1st Panzer's Recon troops had located several pockets of resistance and were ordered to determine their strength and fix them in place, or wipe them out if possible.

Shkodër, Albania, April 8th, 1941: In accordance with the Royal Yugoslav Army's war plan, R-41, a strategy was formulated that, in the face of a massive Axis attack, a retreat on all fronts except in the south be performed. Here the 3rd Yugoslav Army, in cooperation with the Greek Army, was to launch an offensive against the Italian forces in Albania. This was in order to secure space to enable the withdrawal of the main Yugoslav Army to the south. This would be via Albanian territory in order to reach Greece and the Allied forces to be based there. The strategy was based on the premise that the Yugoslav Army would, together with the Greek and British Armies, form a new version of the Salonika Front of World War 1.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Yugoslav player wins at Game End if they Control 7 building hexes.

BALANCE: Italians - Exchange two 3-3-6's for 3-4-7's
Yugoslavs - Raise ELR to 3

AFTERMATH: Although their initial attacks were slow, they were proving successful for the Yugoslav "Zetska" Division. Throughout the 8th and 9th, they fought tirelessly against a well entrenched and well supplied Italian army in their push towards Shkodër. The 10th saw their last major offensive action in Albania. With the help from the Yugoslav Royal Air Force 81st Bomb Group, they finally began to breach the Italian line, but it was all for not. With German and Italian troops advancing on its rear areas, the Zetska Division was forced to retreat back to the Pronisat River, where it remained until the end of the campaign on the 16th of April.

AFTERMATH: The Germans hit the Russian infantry at the village of Lydavenai before the could fall back and link up with larger formations. At the same time the Russians were still following the now obsolete orders to contact and resupply. Despite interference from cavalry, the superior German morale and equipment kept the Russians in this sector from linking up. A large Soviet armored counterattack with KV tanks was forming only ten miles away that would bloody 6th Panzer's tank forces the very next day.

#53 - "MAD MIKE'S" PART TWO

Mogaung, Burma, June 7, 1944: Mogaung had been a major supply base for the Japanese in Northern Burma and was next on the list of objectives for Stilwell's men. After defeating the Japanese garrison in fierce fighting at Kamaing, the Chinese were quickly resupplied and sent to aid Calvert's Chindit Brigade in taking Mogaung. Aware of the village's importance, Japanese commander Col. Takeda scraped up whatever remaining troops and weapons were available and set out to defend his base to the last man.

#54 - PULSE OF STEEL

EAST OF LVOV, POLAND, JULY 17, 1944: Soviet mechanized armies were smashing deep into Poland. Konev threw "Mechanized Cavalry Group Baranov" through a gap in the lines and they drove towards the key city of Lvov. The Germans had plenty of air and artillery support, and new superior AFVs were reaching the front line troops who were reinvigorated. Despite this Konev gambled that a deep breakthrough by 3rd Guards Tank Army could capture the huge city in one fell swoop. German general Harpe committed his tactical reserve, 8th Panzer Division to slice into the northern flank of the Russian pincer and smother the offensive.

#55 - PHILIPPINE FIREMEN

Binalonan, Luzon, Philippines, December 24, 1941: 85 Japanese transports unloaded assault elements of the 48th Div. at Lingayen Gulf on Dec. 22, and they immediately moved southward to the attack. The 11th Philippine Div. fled in rout, leaving it up to the U.S. 26th Cavalry Reg. to hold off the Japanese alone. The Americans fought a skillful delaying action. General Homma's troops kept outflanking them and relentlessly continued south on Dec. 23rd, encountering the 71st Philippine Div. which also broke and ran. Once again the 26th Cavalry, which had established an outpost line, was forced to hold off the Japanese drive.

#56 COST OF ALLEGIANCE

Hohenrappersdorf, Austria, April 12, 1945: With the war drawing to it's close, both the Romanians and Hungarians found their armies decimated by the battles in Hungary the prior fall and winter. In early April the tattered Romanian 2nd Armored Regiment found themselves in support of the Soviet 4th Guards Rifle Div. as they advanced into Austria. Just northeast of Vienna the combined Romanian/Soviet force came up against the Hungarian Huszar Div. Unable to defeat the Russians alone, the Hungarians were the fortunate beneficiaries of a timely German armored counterattack.

#57 - MADAGASCAR SNAKE PIT

East of Majunga, Madagascar, September 21, 1942: Following the fierce fighting around Diego Suarez, Gov. Gen Annet withdrew his Vichy force south. After the British 5th Inf. Div. was transferred to India, the job of clearing the remaining Vichy forces from the island was left to the East African Brigade Group - The King's African Rifles. A fresh Allied offensive operation began in early September with the South African and Rhodesian Brigades leading the charge.

#58 THE VINDICATORS

Florida, Sicily, September 8, 1943: The British 5th Infantry Division was tasked with seizing the port of Syracuse, a key to the success of the invasion of Sicily, as its D-Day objective. The Italian defenders, panicked by the withdrawal of a small German anti-aircraft detachment, fled the city prior to their arrival of the British. Although military stores were destroyed by massive demolitions, the harbor and port facilities were left undamaged. The vanguard of the 5th Division advanced north through Syracuse to assault the neighboring town of Florida.

#59 - SPEED KILLS

Izium Bulge, South of Lozovaya, Russia, May 18, 1942: Even as the Germans were preparing to launch their '42 summer offensive in southern Russia, the Soviets hit first with a major pincer attack towards Kharkov. The main thrust would come from the "Izium Bulge" which was itself the planned target for German "Operation Fridericus" due to commence in six days. For three straight days Paulus' Sixth Army was hammered by wave after wave of riflemen and torrents of armor that smashed 15 miles into the German lines. Bock decided to counter with a truncated version of "Fridericus" by Kleist's First Panzer aimed at the open southern flank of Timoshenko's spearhead.

#60 - GROUPEMENT MOLINIE'S HONOR

Lille Pocket, France, May 29, 1940: What was left of the French 1st Army was now making its last stand at Lille under the command of Major General Jean-Baptiste Molinié. Ordered to hold the line and buy time to evacuate the British Expeditionary Force around Dunkirk, the beleaguered defenders were to take on no less than 3 Panzer Divisions (some 800 tanks) and 4 Infantry Divisions (some 110,000 men).

#61 - THE 24 HOUR PASS

South of Thebes, Greece, April 25, 1941: After abandoning the Thermopylae area, the British rear guards withdrew to an improvised position south of Thebes, where they erected a last obstacle in front of Athens. Named the "24 Hour Pass" by the defending 4th New Zealanders, their job was a simple one. In order to facilitate the evacuation of other Commonwealth troops, they were to hold off the advancing 2nd Panzer Division unit morning, then join in the retreat out of Greece.

DEFENDING NORWEGIAN WOOD

Scenario Designed
by Eric Safran

Rom, Norway, April 13, 1940: The campaign in Norway was not going according to either side's plan. Norwegian mobilization in many areas was a debacle and the Germans were plagued by unexpected losses at sea and unanticipated heavy resistance north of Oslo. As a result of the fluid situation, the conquest of Ostfold, originally expected to be a mop-up, was to be accelerated.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Germans win at the end of any Game Turn if there are no unbroken Norwegian MMC on board 33. The Norwegians win by avoiding the German VC, or immediately upon exiting one ART piece off the South edge of board 33.

BALANCE: Norwegian - Exchange 1 MMG for a HMG

AFTERMATH: After a bloody river crossing at Fossum, the Germans next had to take on the Norwegian line defended by Group Gleditsch, consisting of infantry supported by artillery. Initial probes were pushed back and a counter attack by 1st Company Group Gleditsch was broken up with heavy losses. Seizing the initiative, a German attack in force smashed 1st Company and set upon the artillery whose only cover was a few heavy machine guns. Ordered to retreat, the guns withdrew in good order but the supporting machine gunners suffered heavy casualties.

DOORWAY TO NORWAY

Scenario Designed
by Glenn Houseman

Rom, Norway, April 13, 1940: With Oslo secured, General Pellengahr's 196th Inf. Div. was supposed to move on to Trondheim. At the last minute they were reassigned to a secondary mission, preventing Norwegian militia from mobilizing. The 196th split into three columns and forced a crossing of the river Glama at Fossum. The middle column, under Major Wilck, pushed forward to capture the town of Askim but was viciously repulsed by "Group Gleditsch", a superb Norwegian formation well equipped with machine guns and artillery support. Stopped for now, Major Wilck consolidated his position and set up his HQ in a school near the village of Rom. Sensing an opportunity to capture Wilck's HQ, Cpt. Gleditsch threw his best troops into a counterattack.

VICTORY CONDITIONS: The Norwegians win at Game End if they have => 5 Good Order squads/equivalents on/adjacent to road 32 A5-E4-H4- 37 H4-P5-Q10, or immediately when there are no Good Order German MMC in building 32 C1/D1.

AFTERMATH: The tough Norwegians hit the Germans hard, but when they closed with the enemy they were handicapped by a lack of grenades. Soon accurate German MG fire was slicing them up and they were driven back. The ultimate brutality was the gruesome plastering of Group Gleditsch by it's own artillery. Decimated, they scattered Northeast in disorder. Two hours later Askim was abandoned. The Germans had sealed off this corner of Norway and were now free to move inland.

Hohenrappersdorf, Austria, April 12, 1945: With the war drawing to it's close, both the Romanians and Hungarians found their armies decimated by the battles in Hungary the prior fall and winter. The Hungarian forces were almost completely destroyed by Hitler's "Stand fast/No retreat" orders; and their capital, Budapest was in ruins. In early April the tattered Romanian 2nd Armored Regiment found themselves in support of the Soviet 4th Guards Rifle Div. as they advanced into Austria. Just north-east of Vienna the combined Romanian/Soviet force came up against the Hungarian Huszar Div. Unable to defeat the Russians alone, the Hungarians were the fortunate beneficiaries of a timely German armored counterattack.

AFTERMATH: The Konigtigers led by Hauptmann von Diest-Koerber and supported by Panzer IVs would have hopelessly out-gunned the Romanian armor in open country. However in the maze of streets, aided by Russian infantry, the Romanians claimed two Tigers and 2 Pz IVs, but at great cost. The Romanians lost 12 of their remaining AFVs, reducing the regiment to a company. In the last weeks of the war they pushed into Czechoslovakia, and by the war's end they had only 2 AFVs left. Being an ally of the Soviets was just as costly as being an enemy.
