Tabletop Number

The Tabletop Number is a Pokedex reordering that places evolution lines that spanned different franchise generations next to each other in a sensible way. Three-stage evolution families are placed in the front of the Tabletop Pokedex, followed by two-stage families and one-stage families last. After these, Fossil Pokemon and Pseudo Legendaries are listed. Pokemon with a Tabletop Number that starts with the letter L are listed in the Legendary Pokedex, separate from the normal pokemon.

Species Name

Each Pokemon is part of a Species grouping. Individual stages of a single Pokemon's evolutionary line are not part of the same Species, but are part of the Species' family. When talking about a specific evolutionary line, or branched evolutionary tree, it is common to refer to the line or branch by the Species name of the first Stage of the line. For example to talk about the Pichu, Pikachu and Raichu evolutionary line, you can call it the Pichu evolutionary line. Likewise, to refer to the Riolu and Lucario evolutionary line you can call it the Riolu evolutionary line. The refer to the Eevee, Jolteon, Vaporeon, Flareon, Umbreon, Espeon, Glaceon and Leafeon evolutionary branch you can call it the Eevee evolutionary line.

Picture of Pokemon

In every Pokemon entry in the Pokedex, a picture is provided to show what the average Species member looks like. However, various minor differences can be seen between individual members of the Species. Sometimes, a Pokemon can look drastically different from the norm of its Species in color. These oddities are known as Shiny Pokemon and are rare treasures sought out by collectors and coordinators all around the world.

Basic Information

Type

There are seventeen different Elemental Types in the world of Pokemon that are commonly separated into two archtypes; Physical and Special. The Physical Elemental Types are Bug, Fighting, Flying, Ghost, Ground, Normal, Rock and Steel. The Special Elemental Types are Dark, Dragon, Electric, Fire, Grass, Ice, Psychic and Water. Each Pokemon belongs to a specific Elemental Type and some Pokemon belong to two Elemental Types. Types affect how much damage a Pokemon takes when hit by Attacks and are very important factors to keep track of while battling.

Basic Abilities

Pokemon Abilities are special natural born gifts that a pokemon can utilize. Pokemon have access to at least one of their abilities from birth. Abilities are detailed in the Player's Handbook

High Abilities

High Abilities are special natural born gifts that a Pokemon can utilize once matured. At level 40, a Pokemon may take a different Basic Ability, or their High Ability. The Dream Doctor can mess around with these mechanics and utilize High Abilities earlier than usual.

Evolution

When Pokemon mature and age, their body drastically changes in mass and shape to reach a new Stage of their Evolutionary Line. Some Pokemon do not Evolve while others do and other can Evolve twice in their lifetime. Aside from learning more about the world and physically maturing, Pokemon need a great deal of emotion to urge their Evolution. Sometimes, confidence and happiness is enough for a pokemon to evolve and other times, it is a Pokemon's frustration and hate that pushes it to change. Not all Pokemon can naturally evolve without foreign aid. Some Pokemon require the radiation found in Evolutionary Stones to mutate themselves into their next form. There are also Pokemon who require the attachment of a keepsake to promote their evolution. Next to these various ways to evolve there are even more ways for a Pokemon to meet their next level of maturity.

Detailed in the Evolution section is the Species Names of the Pokemon that can be attained by the Species in question as well as the requirements to evolve. Remember, just because a Pokemon has met their minimum requirements does not mean they will evolve. Sometimes there are personal reasons for a Pokemon to not want to evolve.

Size Information

Height and Weight

The Height and Weights given for each Pokemon Species are averages determined by Pokemon Researchers around the world. It is not uncommon to see Pokemon who are up to 10% heavier or larger then the average or 10% lighter or smaller then the norm. When capturing Pokemon be sure to note their individual Heights and Weights. Be sure to note their changes if they evolve as well.

Pokemon sizes vary from Small, to Medium, to Large, to Huge and finally, Gigantic. On a grid, both Small and Medium Pokemon would take up one space, or a 1x1m square. A Small Pokemon may occupy a space with up to one other Medium or Small Pokemon, or a human who is "Medium" in size. Large Pokemon occupy 2x2 spaces or a 2x2m square. Huge Pokemon occupy 3x3 spaces or a 3x3m square. Finally, Gigantic Pokemon occupies 4x4 spaces or a 4x4m square. Huge and Gigantic Pokemon may also occupy stranger shapes than a square provided your GM gives you some house rulings and lets you know how many spaces your Huge or Gigantic Pokemon take and How they may be placed on a board.

Weight Classes are used for several Abilities and Moves. They range from 1 to 6 and are labeled in the parenthesis after weights.

Breeding Information

When a female Pokemon is mature enough, it can produce eggs and if a male Pokemon is mature enough, it can fertilize them. When given some time alone, Pokemon of the opposite sex and appropriately matching Egg Groups can produce oval Eggs that are approximately 5.5 pounds or 2.5 kilograms. The Species of the newborn Pokemon is determined by the mother of the Egg and the Abilities, Moves, and

Gender Ratio

Not all Species of Pokemon have an equal distribution of male and female children. When finding a pokemon in the wild, knowing the gender of a particular pokemon may make or break your desire to capture the target.

Egg Groups

Pokemon are mysterious since they can cross breed between Evolutionary Stages and even Species, but not any Pokemon can mate with any Pokemon. There are limits and these limits are defined as Egg Groups. Pokemon can only produce Eggs when mating with a Pokemon that shares an Egg Group. The Egg Groups are Bug, Dragon, Fairy, Flying, Ground, Humanshape, Indeterminate, Mineral, Monster, Plant, Water 1, Water 2, Water 3. There is also the Ditto Egg Group, exclusive to the Pokemon Species Ditto, who can breed with any other Pokemon to produce an Egg while acting as either the male or female.

Average Hatch Rate

Depending on what Species the mother of the Egg is, the baby will be the lowest form of that Species' Evolutionary Line. Each Species takes a different amount of time to hatch so the Average Hatch Rate covers how quickly the Egg should hatch. The Average Hatch Rate however is only an average. Sometimes the Egg may take twice the length of time or only half of it, depending how well the Egg is kept.

Diet

The Diet entry explains what kind of food the Pokemon needs to survive. Carnivores primarily feed on other Pokemon, Herbivores will usually need leafy food, vegetables, nuts and fruits to survive, Omnivores can eat plants and other Pokemon, Phototrophs can photosynthesize their own food and energy. Some of the stranger diets some Pokemon have are that of a Terravore; one who feeds on the minerals found in rock and dirt around them, or the Nullivore; which does not need to eat anything to sustain itself for various reasons. Despite any primary feeding behavior any Pokemon can enjoy any edible Item designed for a Pokemon to consume such as Poffins, Apricorn Shakes or PokeBlocks. By keeping track of your Pokemon's needs, you can influence their living conditions in a positive manner and make their partnership with you as Pokemon and Trainer more cooperative.

Habitat

There are some places that a particular Species of Pokemon will not thrive. For obvious reason, you'll only find fish-like Pokemon in the water or rocky Pokemon near rocky places. The Habitat entry explains what kind of terrain to look for if you intend to hunt for a particular Species of Pokemon. Keep in mind, just because you may be in the appropriate terrain to find a particular Pokemon, it doesn't mean you are in the right region of specific location.

Capability List

Each Species of Pokemon move at different rates in various terrains. They have different capacities for jumping strength and physical strength. Some Pokemon can fly while others can breath underwater. Many Species of Pokemon can be trained for being used as a Mount. Others are too small for that but can be used for infiltration as a result of their size. The Capabilities list all keywords relating to static abilities the Pokemon has. The Capabilities Keyword list is located on page .

Move List

Each Pokemon can learn Moves. Moves define how a Pokemon can be used in combat and are separated into various Elemental Types. A Move can be used to damage a foe or to alter variables in battle to gain an upper hand in battle. There are several ways for a Pokemon to learn a Move but a Pokemon must be compatible with the Move in order to be able to learn it. A Pokemon can learn a Move while gaining levels, from a Technical or Hidden Machine, when born they already know a Move or a tutor can teach the Pokemon a Move. When a Pokemon learns a Move, it is listed in their Natural Move List or their Technical Move List.

Level Up Move List

Written into each Pokemon from birth is a list of every Move their species can learn while becoming more experienced in the world. Moves on the Level Up Move List are learned when the Pokemon reaches the specified level. These Moves are placed in the Pokemon's Natural Move List.

TM/HM Move List

Technical Machines and Hidden Machines are expensive devices that when injected into a Pokemon, grow an organ within the Pokemon that allows them to perform specific Moves that each TM and HM teaches. The amount of pain involved with the procedure is unbearable for a Pokemon without medical attention so it is a Trainer's best interest to apply TMs and use HMs at Pokemon Centers. Not every Pokemon is compatible with every TM or HM so this list confirms which TMS and HMs will work successfully with each Species of Pokemon. These Moves are placed in the Pokemon's Technical Move List. If a Pokemon learned a Move through the use of a TM or HM, but the Move is on their Level Up List, they may place the Move in their Natural Move List.

Egg Move List

When a mature parent Pokemon gains access to a powerful Move, they instill the ability to use the Move in their child. Cross Species breeding can result in young Pokemon knowing bizarre, out-of-natural-typing, over powered Moves. The Egg Move List lists what Moves have been known to exist in the Species on occasion, from birth. These Moves are placed in the Pokemon's Natural Move List.

Tutor Move List

There are masters in the world who have taken the aspect of a Move and realized how to imprint the technique in various Pokemon. If you can find one of these Tutors, this list explains which Moves the Tutors can teach to your Pokemon, if the Tutor knows how to teach that specific Move. Some Tutors even know how to teach Moves that are not learned naturally anywhere or taught by any TM or HM. These Moves are placed in the Pokemon's Technical Move List. If a Pokemon learned a Move through the use of a Tutor, but the Move is on their Level Up List, they may place the Move in their Natural Move List.

-(Moves listed here with the "‡" symbol indicate that the move is relevant to a specific Breeder Feature.)

Capture Rate/Experience Drop Rate

These two values are for GMs. The Capture Rate is a number you must roll under with 1d100 in order to Capture the Pokemon. It is modified by the amount of HP a Pokemon has left, any status afflictions or other conditions. The Experience Drop Rate is the amount of Experience Points your Pokemon get from defeating that Pokemon, multiplied by the level that Pokemon was when it was defeated. If the Pokemon was owned by a trainer, it drops twice as much Experience Points. If the Pokemon was part of a large Wild Group, they also drop an increased amount of Experience Points, decided by your GM (usually 1.5x the usual amount). As a Player, you should generally ignore these values as they are only suggestions and the Gm may change it as they see fit for their encounters.

Capabilities

Most Capabilities are very simple to understand. Except for the Basic Capabilities, each Capability is listed with a paragraph following, that explains exactly how that Capability affects the pokemon who has it. Other then that, some Capabilities are paired with a Capability Type, which is paired purely for the ranger class, who draws on specific aspects of nature when looking for specific talents for their job.

However, Basic Capabilities are slightly more complicated. That is because each pokemon in the Pokedex has Basic Capabilities. Paired with each Basic Capability in the pokedex entries are values which can be matched to the Capability listing that follows in order to define the level of aptitude a pokemon has in a particular field. In the Basic Capabilities, you will see a Capability Type, Speed, that is defined for various purposes refrenced throughout the game such as Moves that modify a pokemon's Speed Stat or an Ability which modifys a Speed Stat. There are several reasons to keep track of the Basic Capabilities so it is best to make note of the value and meaning of the Basic Capabilities your pokemon has. Use the pokemon character sheet to do so. Some Features in Coach and Rider can modify Speed Capabilities; as a short note, there is no limit as to how high Speed Capabilities can be.

Basic Capabilities

Burrow - Speed Capability

Burrow is a Speed Capability that defines how quickly the Pokemon can move underground. After the word Burrow, in the Capabilities listing, a number should be listed. The number paired with the Burrow Keyword corresponds with a value representing how many spaces/meters the Pokemon can Shift during a round of combat underground. The holes dug are only as large as the Pokemon who burrows. While Burrowing the Pokemon has knowledge of its underground surroundings up to X meters away, where X is its Burrow value. If a Pokemon learns the Move Dig and does not have the Burrow Capability, they gain Burrow 3. If they already have the Burrow Capability, the Burrow value is raised 3.

Intelligence

The Intelligence Capability is paired with a number from 1 to 7 that defines the Pokemon's competence when it comes to simple thought. The Intelligence is an average expectancy of all members of that Pokemon's species. The smarter the Pokemon is, the easier it is to act on their own accord if you can't command them. This also means that the Species of Pokemon is more competent in the wild and a greater threat to the average Trainer.

| Intelligence Value | Meaning | Examples of this Thought Level |
|---|---|---|
| Intelligence 1 | Feeble-mindedness | Slow reaction time, unable to do simple tasks |
| Intelligence 2 | Deficiency | Self-aware |
| Intelligence 3 | Dullness | Can't figure out tasks by self, but can follow |
| Intelligence 4 | Normal | Can build, use tools |
| Intelligence 5 | Superior | Average, human intellect |
| Intelligence 6 | Vastly Superior | Able to function as a leader, act by self |
| Intelligence 7 | Genius | Super Comp. thought, human languages |

Jump

The Jump Capability is paired with a number from 1 to 10 that states the max height the Pokemon can jump into the air in a single bound. If your Pokemon utilizes their Jump Capability during a round of an encounter, it counts as their Shift for that round. Keep in mind you don't have to jump straight upwards. If a Pokemon learns the Move Bounce their Jump value is raised 1.

| Jump Value | Height of Jump |
|---|---|
| Jump 1 | 3 ft - 1 m |
| Jump 2 | 6 ft - 1.8 m |
| Jump 3 | 10 ft - 3 m |
| Jump 4 | 15 ft - 4.5 m |
| Jump 5 | 20 ft - 6 m |
| Jump 6 | 25 ft - 7.6 m |
| Jump 7 | 35 ft - 10.6 m |
| Jump 8 | 50 ft - 15.2 m |
| Jump 9 | 70 ft - 21 m |
| Jump 10 | 100 ft - 30.5 m |

Overland - Speed Capability

Overland is a Speed Capability that defines how quickly the Pokemon moves while on dry land. After the word Overland, in the Capabilities listing, a number should be listed. The number paired with the Overland Keyword corresponds with a value representing how many spaces/meters the Pokemon can Shift during a round of combat.

Power

Power represents a Pokemon's strength. Next to Power in the Pokemon's Capability listing is a number from 1 to 10 that corresponds to a weight that the Pokemon should be able to lift. The weight given is an average, depending on how well trained your Pokemon is, they may be able to lift more then the average. Based on how much they can lifts you should be able to guess at how much they can push, or how much force they can put into their strikes. If a Pokemon learns the Move Strength their Power value is raised 1.

| Power Value | Average Weight |
|---|---|
| Power 1 | 10 lbs - 5 kg |
| Power 2 | 50 lbs - 23 kg |
| Power 3 | 100 lbs - 45 kg |
| Power 4 | 200 lbs - 90 kg |
| Power 5 | 350 lbs - 158 kg |

Weeble

Wobbufett are very limited when it comes to their Move variety. As a result, Wobbufett can use Counter and Mirror Coat as EOT Frequency Moves rather than as Battle Frequency Moves. However, after the first use of Mirror Coat or Counter during an encounter, meaning on the second use of Mirror Coat or the second use of Counter and from that point on during the encounter, Wobbufett’s Defense and Special Defense are treated as if they are ten less (-10). This penalty is only active while calculating damage and while using Mirror Coat and Counter after the first use per Encounter. If a PP Up is used on a Wobbufett’s Counter or Mirror Coat, Weeble is not needed for that Move anymore.

Legendary Pokemon

Legendary Pokemon are incredibly powerful Pokemon who are incredibly rare. The difference in rarity may differ, for example an Articuno, which usually will have at least one per major body of land, can be found more then once while Palkia and Dialga, the rulers of Time and Space, are found only once as they are the sole Pokemon who has majority dominion over Time and Space. It is unlikely that you meet more then one to three Legendary Pokemon during a campaign unless your campagin is specifically about them.

For this reason, Players should not proceed past this page unless they are instructed to do so by their GM. The other reason for this is because the following entries are merely suggestions as to the power level of each Legendary Pokemon if they are even able to be captured in the campaign you are playing. It is entirely possible that a captured Legendary Pokemon has completely different, unique-to-your-campaign Capabilities, Abilities or Moves (perhaps an unexplainable immunity to Poke Balls, for example). Furthermore, seeking out such Pokemon may be detrimental to your campaign and shouldn’t be a main goal as knowledge concerning most of the Legendary Pokemon isn’t incredibly public or well known, most people might not even believe in them.

(Legendary Pokemon have signature Moves. They are marked with a “§” symbol. These Moves are not always unique to the Legendary, but are used often, as a favorite, or the Legendary.)

Legendary Capabilities:

The following pages list a few Capabilities unique to various Legendary Pokemon.

Avatar

Some legendary Pokemon can change their form into a human like body that retains their power but would fool anyone who does not know of the Pokemon’s disguise. In this human form, they may retain all Capabilities, Abilities and Moves.

Blank Slate

If a Trainer looks into Uxie’s eyes, their Intelligence and Wisdom will be set to 0, permanently. Uxie’s eyes are usually shut. Uxie may open its eyes on a roll of 20 on 1d20 once every month.

Divine

Arceus cannot lose HP until it has been dealt 1,000 points of damage in less then one hour.

Extinguisher

The Extinguisher can calm an erupting volcano by making a check of 20 or higher on 2d20, every hour. Once calmed, the Extinguisher can settle it, so as to not let it erupt for at least 1d4 years, or the Extinguisher can release a dormant volcano with the same roll, letting it erupt again.

Impenetrable

A Pokemon with Impenetrable has an unbreakable barrier around their skin. It subtracts an additional 40 damage from all Moves that hit them. Impenetrable cacn be altered further to have even more resistance to harm, or less.

Mindslaver

Mewtwo can have complete control of up to 10 Pokemon or Trainers as any given time. Those who Mewtwo controls have the title Mindslave. Once per day; a role of 39 or better, adding any one Modifier, on 2d20 will free a Mindslave. In order to give a target the Mindslave title, Mewtwo must make a Melee attack in place of a Move and roll 9 or better on 1d20. Mindslaves can be controlled from any distance from Mewtwo once they are Mindslaves. Mewtwo can experience everything a Mindslave does no matter how far away the Mindslave is from Mewtwo.

Multiform

Deoxys may change into its different forms at will. Prepare stats for its four forms if you intend to use a Deoxys.

Origin Forme

Giratina is in its Origin Forme when in the Reverse World or when it holds part of Reverse World with in, outside of the Reverse World. Otherwise, Giratina changes into its Altered Forme.

Realm Ruler

Realm Rulers own their own space in reality where they rule as a god. It is a separate realm of existence that is incredibly difficult to reach. Arceus is the ruler of the God Realm. Dialga is the ruler of the Realm of Time. Giratina is the ruler of the Reverse World. Palkia is the ruler of the Realm of Space. It is possible for very powerful Legendaries to have other realms as well.

Sky Forme

Shaymin can transform into its Sky Forme in sunlight when it has Gracidea, a rare type of flower, nearby. Shaymin will be forced to revert into its normal form if it is hit by an Ice Type Move, if it touches ice or if the sun is no longer shining.

Statue

If a Trainer harms Azelf by using a Feature or making a Trainer Attack, each one of their Stats will be lowered 1 point, each week, permanently. Once a Trainer's Constitution stat is 0, the Trainer's body will harden into a brittle, rock statue.

Time Traveler

A Time Traveler can go back and forth through time. Usually, Time Travelers will need an anchor point to return to, when leaving a particular moment in Time that could be considered their 'real place in time.' A Time Traveler can also stop time for anyone other then themselves, EOT, for up to 1d4 minutes.

Void Heart

If a Trainer willingly touches Mespirit, their Wisdom and Charisma will be lowered 4 points each, permanently. They cannot feel emotionally, permanently. Mespirit tends to avoid humans and if Mespirit touches a person it does not have the same effect as if a person touches Mespirit.

Wish Granter

Jirachi has three tags on its body, which will grant any wish that is written on them. Only one wish will be granted per tag. A wish on a tag will remain on the tag for 1d100 + 50 years, at which point the written wish will fade. If the wish alters reality in any way, it is possible that the wish will have very bad repercussions and on rare occasions it is possible the wish will not be granted.

Pokémon Tabletop Adventures

Welcome to Pokemon: Tabletop Adventures.

This game is played in a world where many fantastic animals are able to be energized and stored nicely in a machine called a Poké Ball. These animals are called “pocket monsters,” or Pokemon for short, and they are carried as tools, friends and partners by Pokemon Trainers. Trainers have various skills and abilities each defined by a Trainer’s goal. There are Ace Trainers, who focus all of their energy into making their pokemon the best fighters they can. Breeders, who raise pokemon as if they are their own children and groom them up to be powerful. The Researcher gathers information and serves as a party’s go-to guy when they confront a creature they’ve never met. Rangers are natural guardians who dedicate their life to the protection of a wild creature’s habitat while employing wilds in their feats. A Capture Specialist is a techie Trainer who can tweak equipment, including the Poké Ball to expand their collection. The Coordinator employs their pokemon in Contests instead of battle as she shows off their beauty. Finally, the Psychic, Mystic and Martial Artist get their hands dirty and fight the beasts with their own supernatural powers.

A Trainer may explore the world and battle at Gyms to gather Badges which allow them entrance to the Pokemon League Championships. They may compete in Contests to enter Grand Festivals. Maybe they’ll uncover a secret plot to destroy the world and try to stop those who would use Pokemon for evil. They may be breeding the most powerful Pokemon as their goal. No matter the destination, Pokemon will be valuable allies and tools in your journeys.
