

Warp Space

Warp space is the parallel universe through which starships may jump, travelling hundreds of thousands of light years in a few hours. Warp space is also the domain of Chaos.

In Warp space nothing may be taken for granted. It is a universe filled with cross-currents, eddies and whirlpools of power. Ships have disappeared without reason, and emerged from the Warp centuries after they entered it, millions of light years from their destination. These derelict starships, distorted beyond all recognition, are known as Space Hulks.

The Age of Strife

During the great Expansion man reached ever further into the stars. In time the hidden power of the Warp came to be noticed. By entering Warp space man had awoken an ancient evil: the minions of Chaos had escaped the Warp. The first great war, known as the Age of Strife, had begun.

For more than five thousand years, warfare wracked mankind, nation battled with nation, planet fought planet, system destroyed system. Abandoned colonies perished by the scores whilst aliens plundered and grew fat on the wreck of humanity.

Then came a saviour. The age of Strife, arguably the greatest time of peril man has ever faced, brought forth the greatest man history has recorded – the man who would be known as the Emperor of Human Space. A shrewd diplomat, he gathered the fragments of human society and formed them into the Empire. A brilliant soldier, he conquered and reclaimed the worlds lost to Chaos. For this task he created the Space Marines, the greatest warriors of all.

The Space Marines

The Legiones Astartes is the official title of the warrior organisation known as ' the Space Marines. Its warriors are acknowledged as the most powerful and feared fighting men in the Imperium.

In numerical terms the Space Marines are a small force, but their superhuman ability and fearsome reputation make them worth many times their own number in conventional troops. They are held in awe throughout the Empire.

The Space Marines are organised into self-contained Chapters, each with its own fleet. A Chapter's fleet provides accommodation, training facilities, machine shops, armouries, shuttle silos and every other facility the Chapter requires. The fleet roams through the Galaxy in pursuit of the enemies of mankind. Task forces break away from it for individual missions or campaigns, and rejoin the fleet when their mission is accomplished.

Space Marine Equipment

Space Marines have access to the full range of Imperial weaponry and equipment. The distinctive Space Marine powered armour protects them in all environments and is capable of withstanding direct hits from all but the most powerful weapons.

The standard Space Marine weapon is the Bolt gun or the Bolter. This is a devastating automatic weapon, which fires a hail of small-calibre explosive shells. The main close-assault weapon is the Bolt pistol, a smaller version of the Bolter that because of its size is ideal for hand-to-hand fighting.

The Space Marines also have a number of Heavy Weapons that may be employed when greater firepower is needed for a mission.

1) The Mothership launches one or more assault vessels towards the alien starship. Once alongside, a number of Docking claws extend from the assault vessels and grab the side of the alien ship. The powerful claws tear into the alien ship and pull the assault vessel into the attack position.

2) Probes which pierce the skin of the alien ship are then extended from the claws. Each probe has within it a passageway through which the Space Marines attack. Once this has punctured the alien ship and been made airtight, the Blast doors are opened and the Space Marines assault the alien ship.

3) The Space Marine squad is expected to move fast and accomplish the set mission. Once the mission has been accomplished the Space Marines make their way back to the Docking claw. With all the Space Marines back on the assault ship, the Docking claws release the alien ship and the assault vessel returns to the Mothership.

The Campaign Game

The most exciting way to play Space Crusade is as a series of games: a Campaign. A Campaign links all the games that you play together. The object of a Campaign is to be the first player to reach the highest rank of Captain Senioris for the Marine players, and Lord of Chaos for the Alien player.

In the first game you play in a Campaign you will choose your roles as normal. You must then play the same role for the rest of the games until one player has won the Campaign game. Therefore, a player who chooses to be the Ultra Marines will continue to play the Ultra Marines until the Campaign has been finished.

The games need not be played all at the same time. You may choose to play the games over a number of days or even weeks. At the end of each game that is played, the players must refer to the Combat Effectiveness Table. This is known as the CET for short. The CET will tell you if you have been promoted or receive any awards. The CET tables are shown at the back of the Mission Manual.

The Marine Player

You are a Sergeant in a Marine Chapter. If you do well you will be promoted until you reach the exalted rank of Captain Senioris and win the Campaign. You will also be awarded Honour Badges if you do well in a game. The five Marine ranks are shown on the Marine Rank Table below.

In the Campaign game the number of Equipment and Order cards a Marine player may choose will depend upon his rank and how many Honour badges he has been awarded. A player always has four Equipment cards and one Order card. For each Honour badge he has been awarded the player may take an additional Equipment card. For each rank he has been promoted, the player may take an additional Order card. A player may never have more than 8 Equipment cards and 4 Order cards.

The Alien Player

You are a follower of Chaos. You command a Chaos Warband aboard a Space Hulk. As you increase in rank, the size of your Warband will also increase, and you will be able to control the course of the game more. If you reach the rank of Lord of Chaos you will win the Campaign.

As the Alien player increases in rank he gains the ability to hold one or more cards from the Alien event deck, which he can choose to use on any turn instead of drawing a card from the deck as usual at the beginning of his turn. At the start of each Mission the Alien player should shuffle the Alien event deck, then deal himself the number of cards shown on the Alien Rank Table below. In addition, for each Mark of Chaos he has been awarded, the Alien player may add one to the number of Reinforcement tokens he is allowed to use for a mission. This extra token should be chosen randomly from those Reinforcement tokens not listed for the mission to be played. If the mission lists all the Reinforcement tokens, the Alien player will not receive any extra tokens.

Increasing in Rank and Gaining Awards

The player with the most points, at the end of each mission, wins. The player who won the game moves up in rank by one level. All of the players must then look up their points scored for that Mission on the Combat Effectiveness Table to see if they receive an award.

If one of the players reaches the highest rank he will have won the Campaign game. If none of the players has reached the highest rank, another mission will need to be played.

A player may trade in four Honour Badges or Marks of Chaos to move up one Rank. The awards are lost, but the player moves up one rank. Players may not hold more than four Honour Badges or Marks of Chaos. Awards may not be used to reach the rank of Captain Senioris or Lord of Chaos – you can only reach these ranks by winning a game.

Between games any casualties that were lost are replaced so that you start each new game with a full set of miniatures. The only exception to this is the Marine Commander. If a Marine Commander is eliminated then that player must start off with a Sergeant in the next game, and any Honour badges that the player had are lost. Marine Commanders of any rank start each mission with six life points.

Between Missions

Between Missions you must keep track of the rank you have attained as well as how many Honour badges or Marks of Chaos you have. The Marine players may do this on their Scanners. Each Scanner has three spaces that may be used to insert the card Rank badge tokens and Honour badge tokens.

Note: Some of the Honour badge tokens represent two, or more, Honour Badges.

The Alien player should keep track of his rank and his Marks of Chaos on the plastic tray inside the box. A space is provided for the Alien player to place his Rank badge token and his Mark of Chaos tokens.
