Introduction

The present work affords the GM the opportunity to create a wilderness or dungeon environment completely by random chance. One might ask why such a thing would be desirable, but there are several reasons why one might want such a system. For a last-minute diversion by the PCs into territory hitherto undeveloped by the GM, such a system allows the flow of the game to proceed with minimal interruption. Too, at times a totally random dungeon or wilderness territory might be just the thing to shake up a long-running campaign, juxtaposing elements that might not otherwise have appeared near one another to add spice to a campaign.

The applicability of the system to solo play is also to be noted. With a modicum of using the "honor system" to stick by the results of the die rolls, one can conduct one or more entire sessions of play without the aid of a game master. Of course, such a game will lack the creative spark of a GM who is able to contrive plots, connect seemingly-unconnected elements, and so forth that a random system using dice is simply ill-equipped to handle, but as a diversion on a rainy afternoon, or even as an experiment for several sessions, it's worth considering.

It is also the case that the present system is completely modular. It is by no means necessary to use the random terrain rules in order to use the random encounter rules, and the author might daresay that the latter will see much more use in a day-to-day game than the former.

The tables included herein, especially (but not exclusively) the encounter tables, can also be used as the nucleus of encounter tables for the GM's own game, suitably tweaked and altered to fit the parameters and specifications of one's own game. To take but one of an infinite number of examples, it might suit a particular GM's campaign to add encounters of serpent-men and ophidians to the pre-historic encounter tables, and thus produce in a nutshell a table that inserts pulp-era lost civilizations into a barbarous domain of dinosaurs and sabre-tooth cats. The sky is the limit when it comes to such modifications of the tables herein.

What's a D1000?

Many of the tables in this book call for the use of a d1000, which is not a misprint. The effect of a d1000 (which generates a number between 1 and 1000, or 001-000) can be obtained by rolling three d10's in order, the first being the hundreds, the second being the tens, and the third being the ones. Thus, rolls of 4, 2, and 8 would have a result of 428.

It is also possible to roll all three d10's together, as long as they are color-coded, and the order of the colors is established beforehand. For example, it is possible (and mnemonically easy, at least in the US) to have a red, a white, and a blue die, and simply read them in that order.

Random Wilderness Terrain

While it is possible to simply generate all terrain in a wilderness adventure by random means, it is suggested that large features (coastlines, rivers, mountain ranges, large forests, cities, etc.) be placed by the dungeon master, with the details filled in randomly. However, for solo play, or as an experiment, completely randomizing terrain is certainly possible.

For wilderness exploration, a hex scale of 1 hex = 1 mile is recommended.

If you do want to generate a map totally randomly, use the following table to determine the starting terrain.

Die Roll (d100)	Coming from this terrain...
	Badlands	Desert	Forest	Hills	Mountains	Plains	Scrub	Swamp

91 - 95	Swamp	Swamp	Swamp	Swamp	Scrub	Swamp	Swamp	Swamp
96 - 00	Valley	Valley	Valley	Valley	Valley	Valley	Valley	Valley

Notes: If a lake is indicated, it will usually be impassible unless the party has brought boats. If the lake is crossed, roll as if coming from the hex before the lake was encountered.

A valley is simply a geological depression; it will still have the same terrain type as the hex the PCs came from; thus, there could be a desert valley, a forest valley, etc.

Forest hexes cannot be placed next to desert hexes (and vice versa), nor can swamp and mountains be next to each other (ditto).

Settlements and Ruins

In each hex, roll to see if there is a settlement or ruin of any sort.

Die Roll (d100)	Terrain
01 - 11	Badlands
12 - 22	Desert
23 - 33	Forest
34 - 44	Hills
45 - 55	Lake
56 - 66	Mountains
67 - 77	Plains
78 - 88	Scrub
89 - 99	Swamp
00	Roll again, plus ruins

The type of terrain being left behind is an important influence on the terrain being entered. As the PCs move from hex to hex, use the following table to determine the terrain of the hex they are entering.

Die Roll (d1000)	Settlement	Population
001 - 030	Individual Dwelling	1d12
031 - 050	Thorp	2d4 x 10
051 - 070	Hamlet	1d4 x 100
071 - 090	Village	(1d3+5) x 100
091 - 100	Town	1d6 x 1500
101 - 110	Castle	-
111 - 116	Ruined village	-
117 - 122	Ruined castle	-
123 - 127	Ruined shrine	-
128 - 130	Ruined tomb	-
131 - 000	No settlement	-

Random Wilderness Encounters

Encounters in the wilderness are dependent on three factors; the climate, the terrain, and whether it is near civilization or in the wilderness.

Encounter Probabilities

When using the present work, the wilderness encounters table in the ADVENTURES DARK AND DEEP™ Game Masters Toolkit should be replaced with the following, which conforms to the terrain types listed above.

Terrain	Check for Encounter Every...	Chance of Encounter
Badlands	8 hours	5%
Desert	8 hours	5%
Forest	4 hours	5%
Hills	8 hours	5%
Lake	4 hours	5%
Mountains	12 hours	5%
Plains	8 hours	10%
Scrub	6 hours	10%
Swamp	4 hours	5%
Road	2 hours	+15%
Civilized	-	+10%

Note: "Civilized" is defined as any hex within 5 miles of thorp or larger settlement or within 20 miles of village or larger settlement.

If an encounter is indicated, use the following table to determine the type of encounter. It is assumed that in civilized areas, all settlements (thorps, villages, etc.) and strongholds (castles, towers, etc.) will already have been mapped by the GM. If not, simply use the "settlements and ruins" table in the Random Wilderness Terrain section above, ignoring ruins results.

Die Roll (d1000)	Civilized	Wilderness
001 - 005	Soldiers (patrol)	Small shell keep
006 - 013	Soldiers (patrol)	Tower
014 - 018	Soldiers (patrol)	Moat house or friary
019 - 023	Soldiers (patrol)	Large shell keep
024 - 033	Soldiers (patrol)	Small walled castle
034 - 041	Soldiers (patrol)	Medium walled castle
042 - 045	Soldiers (patrol)	Concentric castle
046 - 049	Soldiers (patrol)	Large walled castle
049 - 050	Soldiers (patrol)	Fortress complex
051 - 250	Soldiers (patrol)	Encounter
251 - 000	Use encounter tables	Use encounter tables

If use of the encounter tables is indicated, use the appropriate table for the climate, terrain, and civilization status of the hex. If the PCs are in a forested hills hex, use either the forest or hills tables (50% chance of either).

Die Roll (d1000)	Fortress Inhabitants
001 - 150	Totally deserted
151 - 400	Monster (use encounter tables)
401 - 590	Bandits
591 - 600	Berserkers
601 - 717	Cavalier (level 1d4+8)
718 - 721	Paladin (level 1d2+8)
722 - 813	Cleric (level 1d4+8)
814 - 913	Fighter (level 1d4+8)
914 - 918	Barbarian (level 9-13)
919 - 923	Ranger (level 1d4+9)
924 - 992	Mage (level 1d4+10)
993 - 996	Illusionist (level 1d4+9)
997 - 000	Savant (level 1d4+9)

For details on the master of the castle and his henchmen, refer to the NPC party appendix. In addition, the following troops and other defenses will be found, depending on the type of fortress.

Fortress Type	Defenses
Small shell keep, tower, moat house, or friary	1-2 ballistae, 1 oil cauldron, 7-12 men-at-arms with crossbow and morning star, 7-12 men-at-arms with spear, 2-8 light cavalry with crossbow and sword
Large shell keep, small walled castle, or medium walled castle	2-4 ballistae, 1-2 light catapults, 2-4 oil cauldrons, 7-12 men-at-arms with crossbow and morning star, 7-12 men-at-arms with spear, 9-16 light cavalry with crossbow and sword, 2-8 heavy cavalry with lance and mace
Concentric castle, large walled castle, or fortress complex	3-4 ballistae, 2-4 light catapults, 1 heavy catapult, 6-8 oil cauldrons, 13-18 men-at-arms with crossbow and morning star, 13-18 men-at-arms with spear, 9-16 light cavalry with crossbow and sword, 9-12 heavy cavalry with lance and mace

Climate is divided into cold, temperate, and tropical. No specific definitions of these are provided; it is assumed the GM will be able to make the appropriate determination, based on his own campaign.

Random Dungeon Terrain

Dungeons, whether large or small, self-contained or but one level in a vast underground complex, lend themselves to certain conceits when it comes to design and architecture. Corridors, for instance, tend to be 10' wide, allowing for two men abreast to walk and fight. Room dimensions are usually in 5' or 10' increments, allowing them to be relatively easily mapped on graph paper. It is entirely possible (and even encouraged) for the game master to undermine those tropes when designing his own dungeons, but the random tables herein tend to cleave closely to what have become basic design principles.

It should also be noted that the following tables will allow for solo play, if desired.

When designing a random dungeon, the GM (or player(s), if using the random generation method to facilitate GM-less play) should begin in the center of a piece of graph paper, or on one edge leading inward (depending on the entrance type; see below). This will allow for the dungeon to expand in all directions, depending on the whim of the dice and the explorations of the PCs.

Whenever a new level is "discovered" (i.e., a new staircase leading down is indicated by the dice), a new piece of graph paper should be used to begin mapping the new level. In this way, some very extensive complexes can be created.

It should be emphasized that the GM or PCs should exercise common sense when using these tables. If a corridor is indicated, for instance, which would overlap an already-existing room, then the die roll should be discarded, and a new roll made. Or, possibly, the length of a corridor or size of a room can be adjusted downwards to accommodate the already-determined landscape of the dungeon level. Let common sense be your guide, but if at all possible, let the random dictates of the dice prevail, even if they lead to inconvenient conclusions. It's also entirely possible that in a particular circumstance, the instruction to go to a particular table might not make sense. In such cases, use the table that makes the most sense.

As a general rule, if you need to determine direction randomly, use the following tables:

Die Roll (d4)	Result
1	North
2	East
3	South
4	West

Die Roll (d8)	Result
1	North
2	Northeast
3	East
4	Southeast
5	South
6	Southwest
7	West
8	Northwest

Finally, feel free to use the random tables appendix in the ADVENTURES DARK AND DEEP™ Game Masters Toolkit to provide "dungeon dressing" for various rooms and passageways.

Unless you have a specific geography in mind for the dungeon in question, the entrance to the dungeon level can be determined using table 1 below:

Random Dungeon Encounters

While there are ten dungeon challenge tables presented below, it need not be the case that the monsters found on any given level of a dungeon will neatly match them one for one. It is also possible that challenge in a particular dungeon will not be based on depth, but some other criteria, such as distance from the main entrance, height (as in some great tower), time spent within, etc.

For purposes of determining which challenge table to use, the following table assumes dungeon levels, which the GM should convert to follow the organization of his own dungeon, as needed.

Die Roll (d20)	Dungeon Level by Depth (or equivalent)

To use the table, a d20 is rolled, and then cross-indexed with the level of the dungeon on which the encounter is to be, to determine which dungeon challenge table should be used to determine the encounter.

It should be noted that weaker creatures found on lower (and thus more difficult) levels of the dungeon will have their numbers strengthened accordingly. Thus, if you are on the 7th level of the dungeon, and happen to roll a DC3 creature, there will be approximately two and a half times as many of them. The same principle, of course, works in reverse, when stronger creatures are on higher (and thus less difficult) levels of the dungeon.

Random Urban Terrain

Urban areas can take on many forms, and come in many sizes, from small villages to towns to walled cities. The type of settlement will have a large impact on the terrain found within (with “terrain” in this case a catch-all term for buildings, streets, markets, parks, palaces, etc.). Is it a desert trading outpost? A bustling port city? A provincial center on a river?

The overall population of the settlement will determine its size; the GM should begin the process by establishing the perimeter of the settlement, within which the various streets and buildings will then be located.

Settlement Type	Population
Individual dwelling	1 - 12
Thorp	20 - 100
Hamlet	101 - 500
Small Village	501 - 800
Large village	801 - 1,500
Small town	1,501 - 3,000
Medium town	3,001 - 6,000
Large town	6,001 - 9,000
Small city	9,001 - 15,000
Medium city	15,001 - 30,000
Large city	31,000 - 60,000
Very large city	60,001 +

Divide by 10 to determine the number of buildings in each settlement, rounding down. Thus, a small town of 1,840 inhabitants would have 180 buildings total. In thorps, hamlets, and villages, these are likely to be individual dwellings with large extended families living within. In towns and cities, these are likely to be multi-story buildings with borders, apartments, etc.

INDIVIDUAL DWELLINGS

Die Roll (d100)	Dwelling
01 - 80	One story, no basement
81 - 97	One story, basement
98 - 99	Two stories, no basement
00	Two stories, basement

There is a 20% chance any individual dwelling encountered will be abandoned, and a 1% chance it will be inhabited by an NPC (see Appendix A to determine race, class, etc.). If not, roll below to determine inhabitants.

Terrain	Inhabitants
Badlands	Herdsman (50%), outlaw (50%)
Desert	Outlaw (50%), hunter (50%)
Forest	Forester (30%), hunter (40%), trapper (30%)
Hills	Farmer (40%), herdsman (60%)
Mountains	Miner (70%), trapper (30%)
Plains	Farmer (50%), herdsman (50%)
Scrub	Farmer (50%), herdsman (50%)
Swamp	Fisherman (40%), hunter (30%), trapper (30%)

Outlaws are individuals who have fled society in order to escape justice. They are not necessarily evil.

THORPS, HAMLETS, AND VILLAGES

Generally, thorps, hamlets, and villages are too small to have districts or distinct neighborhoods. Buildings of various types and functions will be found in close proximity along the roads and alleys. The layout of such a smaller community will depend on its nature; if it's at a crossroads, buildings will be laid out along the roads, clustered closest together at the main intersection.

Settlements on lakes or rivers will spread laterally along the waterfront, forming a semi-circle. Generally speaking, side streets will be minimal, radiating from a single central street. Villages and hamlets will have a green, commons, etc. for communal activities such as fairs, religious festivals, and market days.

CITIES

Unlike smaller settlements, cities are divided up into districts, with each district impacting the size and type of buildings to be found within. Cities also have well-established street systems, which include main thoroughfares, side streets, alleys, and the like. Exploring a city is much like exploring a dungeon, and a whole city environment can be mapped out at populated in such a fashion.

Cities will be walled 50% of the time. In such cases, you should sketch out the boundary of the wall first, including a gate of entry. Obviously, streets and buildings will need to conform to the boundary of the wall, and rolls should be adjusted or ignored accordingly.

As with random dungeon design, common sense should prevail when using these tables. If a die roll indicates an impossibility, such as a side street cutting through an already-mapped building (to take but one possible example), then it should be ignored and re-rolled. In addition, it is impossible to fully chart all the back-turns and so forth that different outcomes of the tables will take. Use your best judgement in this as with all things to make it make sense.

To begin, roll 2d4 to determine how many districts the city will have, and then roll on Table 1 for the nature of the first one entered. "District" is, of course, only one possible term. One could have neighborhoods, parishes, precincts, quarters, sections, sectors, wards, etc. Too, nothing says that a given city need consistently label such divisions.

Whether the city is walled or not, mapping begins with a main thoroughfare into one of the districts of the city. Re-roll duplicates whenever they come up.

Once the initial entry has been defined, you may proceed in one of two ways. The first is more effective if you are setting up a city ahead of time, and have time to more carefully plan out its districts and streets. In such a case, map out the major thoroughfares, side streets, districts, and plazas first. Then fill in the buildings.

The second method is better if your players are exploring a city "on the fly." In such cases, roll the streets and buildings as they come up, and as the players express an interest in exploring them. This is actually closer to dungeon exploration, but in a new city can be just as exciting.

In both cases, be sure to roll for random encounters every turn. There will be a 1 in 6 chance of an encounter (see the Random Urban Encounters section below). It should be remembered that this in no way means the streets are deserted until an encounter comes up; far from it. There will normally be throngs of people in the streets in daylight, and a goodly number at night. An encounter means that something or someone significant comes up, with whom the PCs may wish to interact (or will interact with, whether they wish it or not!).

Note: All cities on a river, lake, or ocean will also have a Docks district. If such a settlement is being generated randomly, and the docks district has not yet come up, do not roll randomly. The final district will be the docks.

Fortress and palace districts will be walled and gated. Foreign and slave districts will be similarly walled and gated 75% of the time. A fortress district is in essence an enormous castle, and buildings and thoroughfares are part of the overall defense. Palace districts are similar, but have more open ground. The actual palace itself should be designed and placed by the GM, rather than being generated randomly, due to its unusual size and nature. Entry to either is likely to be barred to ordinary persons except on special occasions.

The GM should also feel free to re-roll any city districts that are out of place in his campaign. For instance, in a city where slavery is not practiced, having a slave district would be incongruous and should be re-rolled.

Note: As mentioned above, port cities include any city that is adjacent to water, including oceans, lakes, rivers, estuaries, etc. All canals, rivers, etc. that do not directly lead back to the water are assumed to be diverted there using tunnels and sewers. Such features are 50% likely to be artificial canals, 40% likely to be natural streams, and 10% likely to be rivers that were simply built around. Canals will be 10-30' wide, streams 5-24' wide, and rivers 20-50' wide. Canals and rivers will be navigable by low-draft vessels, streams 12' wide or less will not be.

Random Urban Encounters

Because they are so small, random encounters for thorps, hamlets, and villages are not done using random tables. If such an encounter is indicated, the various buildings of the settlement should be used as the basis for the encounter table, providing as they do a good estimation of all of the inhabitants that are likely to be encountered. If something more interesting is called for, it should be determined by the GM (although judicious use of the city tables below could also provide some amusing and interesting turns in the middle of the night).

For all character-class NPC encounters, see Appendix A: NPC Parties to determine magic items, flesh out specifics like alignment, etc.

Assassin encounters will be with 1d3 assassins of levels 1d4+5. They will look and act like regular thieves (see below) 45% of the time, and 45% of the time they will attempt to slay victims and steal their belongings. The other 10% of the time, they will be on a mission to assassinate some specific target. The target may live in the district, or they may be simply passing through.

Bandit encounters will be with 3d4 bandits (see ADVENTURES DARK AND DEEP™ BESTIARY). Daytime encounters will see them scouting out territory or likely targets. Nighttime encounters will have them actively plying their trade.

Barbarian encounters will be with one barbarian of level 1d4+5.

Bard encounters will be with one bard level 1d6+4, plus two henchmen level 1d4. They are typically gregarious with those to whom they are positively disposed.

Beggar encounters will be with someone asking for alms, invariably poor and raggedy, often maimed, crippled, diseased, a religious aesthete, etc. 10% of beggars will be thieves (see below). There is a 1-8% chance a beggar will have useful information, but must be paid to reveal it. Any payment to a beggar will attract 1d10-1 beggars, who will begin to swarm the generous giver.

Broken wagon encounters are with a single wagon with a broken axle, slipped wheel, etc. The wagon and team will block the street, either slowing or preventing passage. The blockage will last for 1d4 hours.

Cavalier encounters will be with one cavalier of level 1d6+4, with associated retainers.

City official encounters will be with minor officials 90% of the time. Minor officials (tax collectors, customs inspectors, shire reeves, bailiffs, junior officers of the city watch, etc. They will be imperious and condescending, and accompanied by 1d4 city watchmen (see below). Major officials will be encountered 10% of the time, such as an alderman, deputy mayor, captain of the watch, magistrate, judge, etc. They will be accompanied by 2d4 city watchmen and will be similarly unpleasant and demanding.

City watch encounters will be squads of the official peacekeepers of the city. Each squad has 5 soldiers (0 level, ring armor, longsword), either a mage (level 1d4) or cleric (level 1d4+1), and will be led by a sergeant (fighter level 1-3, steel scale armor, longsword). At night, or in a foreign, humanoid, slave, or slum district, two such squads will be encountered, led by a lieutenant (fighter level 4-5, steel cuirass, longsword). Squads may question, harass, and even detain suspicious-looking individuals or groups.

Cleric encounters will be with 1d6 clerics. The first will be level 1d6+5, while any others will be level 1d4. Clerics will typically attempt to seek converts or donations, while evil clerics may be on the hunt for sacrificial victims.

Crier encounters are with hired criers, who will either be announcing official proclamations (25%), important news (15%), or private announcements such as hiring opportunities, sales on merchandize at particular shops, wedding bans, etc. (60%).

Druid encounters will be with one druid of level 1d6+5. There is a 50% chance he will be accompanied by 1d4-1 druids of level 1d4, and a 50% chance he will be accompanied by 1d4 fighters of level 1d6. As a rule, druids will not welcome conversations with strangers.

Drunk encounters will be with a drunken derelict 50% of the time, and with a group of 1d4 intoxicated merrymakers the other 50%. Reactions will be exaggerated; hostile reactions will result in verbal abuse and threats of violence, while positive reactions will have the drunk(s) treating the PCs like long-lost comrades. See the ADVENTURES DARK AND DEEP™ GAME MASTERS TOOLKIT for the effects of intoxication). For all non-derelicts, roll on the following table to determine their real nature:

Die Roll (d100)	Intoxicated Merrymakers
01	Assassin
02 - 11	Bandit
12 - 13	Bard
14 - 15	Cavalier
16 - 17	City official
18 - 22	City watchman
23 - 24	Cleric
25	Druid
26 - 30	Fighter
31 - 37	Gentleman
38	Illusionist
39	Jester
40 - 54	Laborer

62 - 66	Merchant
67	Mystic
68	Noble
69 - 76	Rake
77 - 81	Ruffian
82 - 91	Sailor
92	Savant
93	Scholar
94 - 95	Thief
96 - 100	Tradesman

Fighter encounters will be with a fighter of level 2d4+4. He will have 1d4-1 henchmen level 1d4.

Fire encounters indicate a nearby building has caught fire. A crowd will inevitably assemble (which itself impedes traffic), and neighbors will almost certainly (80%) form a bucket brigade to help put out the blaze. Fires are the cause of the vast majority of ruins within a city.

Gentleman encounters can vary. Roll on the following table to determine the type of gentleman encountered:

Die Roll (d10)	Gentleman Encountered
1-4	Fop and 1d4 foppish followers
5-8	Fighter level 1d4+6
9-0	Gentlewoman

All will easily take offense (-15% to encounter reactions), but their actions will differ depending on type. Fops will seek to hurt their enemies indirectly, by causing trouble for them with nobles, city officials, bribing the city watch to lean on them, etc. Fighters will immediately seek satisfaction by duel. Gentlewomen will send champions (fighter level 1d4+6) to do their fighting for them.

Goodwife encounters will be with a single woman who could pass for anyone else (mage, druid, gentlewoman, etc.). The slightest offense will be taken as license to accuse, loudly and hysterically, the offender of the most horrific crimes, calling for the city watch, etc. If on their good side, however, goodwives have a 20% chance of knowing useful information (gossip).

Harlot encounters are with a single prostitute, but few will actually be so obviously members of that ancient profession. If the type of harlot is not specified, roll to see what sort of encounter the harlot is mistaken for:

Die Roll (d100)	Harlot Type	Mistaken For...
01-10	Slovenly trull	Beggar
11-25	Brazen strumpet	Thief
26-35	Cheap trollop	Bard/jester
36-50	Typical streetwalker	n/a
51-65	Saucy tart	Fighter
66-75	Wanton wench	Goodwife
76-85	Expensive doxy	Gentlewoman
86-90	Haughty courtesan	Noblewoman
91-92	Aged madam	Pilgrim
93-94	Wealthy procuress	Mage/illusionist/savant
95-98	Sly pimp	Merchant
99-00	Rich panderer	Gentleman

There is a 20% chance any given harlot is a thief, or working in concert with one. There is also a 45% chance the harlot will claim to know useful information (for a fee), but one in three of those so claiming will be making it up to get paid.

Pimps are not themselves harlots, but will have 2d4 harlots under them, of various types. They can be thieves (20%) or mountebanks (10%) themselves.

Illusionist encounters will be with a single illusionist of level 1d4+6. He will have 1d4-1 apprentice illusionists (level 1d4) 50% of the time, or 1d3 fighters (level 1d6) as guards 50% of the time. They generally seek to be left to their own devices and avoid conversation.

Jester encounters will be with one jester of level 2d4+4. He will be accompanied by 1d4 jesters of levels 1d4. There is a 50% chance they will be performing on the street, looking for donations, and a further 50% chance that this is just a distraction from some other mission (keeping an eye on a place or individual, distracting from a burglary, etc.).

Laborer encounters will be with 3d4 workmen. During the day, they will be engaged in their job; hauling cargo, digging ditches, etc. Nighttime encounters will find them on their way home from work. Either way they are stronger than most commoners (minimum strength 13), and 10% will have friends in, or be members of, the city watch. Either way, the watch will not look kindly on such upstanding citizens being harassed.

Mage encounters will be with one mage of level 1d6+6 and 1d4 henchmen. Of these henchmen, there is a 60% chance any given henchman will be an apprentice mage of level 1d6, and a 40% chance it will be some other class (level 1d4+3).

Mercenary encounters will appear to be 3d4 workmen. In reality they will be swords for hire, with one sergeant (level 1 fighter) for every 3 men, and one officer (fighter level 1d4+1) if there are ten or more present. Any given group of mercenaries will already be employed 70% of the time, but will be looking for work 30%.

Merchant encounters will be with 1d3 traders and sellers, but there is a 10% chance they will be mistaken for city officials or nobles. At night, or in a humanoid, slave, slum, or thieves' district, they will be accompanied by 2d4 guards (level 1 fighters, mail, longsword). They have a 10% chance of knowing valuable information.

Mob encounters will be with an irate crowd of 30-120 locals, protesting some outrage or injustice. There is a 20% chance per hour that the mob will become violent, and a 50% chance per hour that the city watch will be called in to disburse it.

Monster encounters must be handled with care by the game master. It's too easy for an errant roll of the dice to indicate an encounter which is completely out of place. In such instances, the roll should be re-rolled to make it more in line with the campaign. Creatures from the outer planes and powerful undead creatures in particular should be treated with care. The GM should also feel free to add or substitute creatures to the following table according to the specifics of the campaign.

Die Roll (d1000)	Monster Encounter
001 - 015	Caryatid column
016 - 059	Centipede, large
060 - 079	Clurichaun

923 - 952	Undead (see below)
953 - 990	Wasp, giant
991 - 999	Will-o-wisp
000	Use wilderness encounter table for appropriate terrain and climate

Die Roll (d100)	Extra-Planar Creature Encounter
01-10	Angel
11-20	Daemon
21-45	Demon
46-70	Devil
71-80	Lexon
81-90	Night hag
91-00	Ranian

Mountebank encounters are with 1d4 mountebanks. The first will be level 2d4+3, any others will be level 1d4. There is a 50% chance they are working together on some sort of confidence game, either on a particular target or to a general audience (such as the shell game, selling snake oil, etc.). They will generally be well-disposed towards strangers, but if a negative reaction is indicated this is only a front, and they intend to fleece the newcomer if possible.

Mystic encounters are with one mystic of level 1d4+5. They will be somewhat other-worldly, but not necessarily brusque with strangers.

Neighborhood patrol encounters are with a group of 2d6+6 non-humans native to the district. They will be commoners, but will be led by 1 fighter of 1d3 level, and 1 multi-classed character appropriate to the race in question of a total of 2d4 levels. There is a 20% chance they will be accompanied by an animal appropriate to the race (giant badgers to gnomes, war dogs to halflings, etc.). They will be act as do city watchmen, but will be especially suspicious of outsiders to the district.

Noble encounters will be with a nobleman 75% of the time and a noblewoman 25% of the time. Nobles will be attended by 1d4 guards (fighters, level 1d4), 1d2 servants, and there is a 75% likelihood they will be carried by bearers in a sedan chair. Noblemen are 70% likely to be mistaken for city officials or wealthy merchants, and noblewomen are 30% likely to be mistaken for haughty courtesans. There is an 80% chance a noble will be a fighter and a 20% chance of his being a cleric. Level will be 1d8+1. Noblewomen will also have access to champions of similar level. Insults of even the slightest sort will be dealt with severely.

Non-humans: Whenever a non-human encounter is indicated, if the encounter is in a particular demi-human or humanoid neighborhood, there is a 90% chance that the character will be of the local race. If not, or if in a more general neighborhood, roll percentile dice to determine race, re-rolling if the race is not applicable to the class:

Die Roll (d100)	Non-Human Race
01 - 14	Dwarf, Hill
15 - 27	Dwarf, Mountain
28 - 35	Elf, Grey
36 - 62	Elf, Half-
63 - 69	Elf, High
70	Elf, Wood
71 - 73	Gnome, Forest
74 - 77	Gnome, Hill
78 - 83	Halfling
84 - 00	Half-orc

All non-human encounters have a chance of being multi-classed. See Appendix A: NPC Parties to determine specifics. For level, take the level normally indicated and divide by the number of classes.

NPC party encounters will be with an adventuring party similar to that of the PCs. The exact composition of the party should be determined according to Appendix A: NPC Parties, but add 15% to the roll for experience level (use the "Civilized") column. If there are already NPC parties known to the PCs operating in the city, there is a 75% chance it will be one of them, rather than some new group.

Paladin encounters will appear to be just another fighter. The paladin will be alone, and will be level 1d4+5.

Peddler encounters are with a seller of minor trinkets, tools, ribbons, buttons, geegaws, utensils, and the like. There is an 80% chance that a peddler will have exactly what the buyer is looking for, as long as it fits into that category. They do not sell weapons or magic items of any sort.

Performers encounters will be with 1d4 musicians, jugglers, dramatists, or demagogues. There will be a crowd of 3d8 people watching the show during the day, and 1d8-2 at night (except in places with a vibrant nightlife). Such shows will attract pickpockets to fleece the crowd 25% of the time.

Pilgrim encounters will be with 3d4 religious seekers, either starting or in the midst of some journey to a holy shrine or event. Every 4 pilgrims will have a higher-level character type (see Appendix B: New Monsters). They will try to press others to join in their religious wandering.

Press gang encounters will be with 2d8 laborer/mercenary/ruffian types armed with clubs and swords. They will all be 1st level fighters, with one leader level 1d4+1. They will attempt to force likely prospects

(the weak, intoxicated, injured) into joining the army or crew of a ship (if in a waterfront neighborhood).

Rake encounters will be with 1d4+1 young upper-class gentlemanly types. They will be rude, aggressive, and spoiling for a fight (-25% reaction adjustment). There is a 25% chance they will be drunk as well.

Ranger encounters will be with one ranger of level 1d4+6. He will look like an ordinary fighter.

Religious procession encounters will be with a line of 2d6+6 religious believers parading through the streets soliciting donations, dispensing alms and blessings (or harangues against sin), etc. There is a 50% chance they will be carrying some sort of religious icon (statue, banner, etc.). They will be led by a cleric of level 1d4+3, and there will be 1d3 clerics assisting as well (level 1d4).

Ruffian encounters are with 1d6+6 nondescript men armed with clubs and daggers (fight as 2d8 HD monsters). They have a -30% reaction adjustment, and are more interested in violence than loot. Some 5% of ruffians will actually be assassins.

Runaway cart encounters indicate a cart or wagon is hurtling down the street out of control, in the direction of the PCs. Each must make a successful DEX check or suffer 1d8 h.p. of damage from the vehicle.

Sailors encounters will be with 1d6+6 sailors on leave. They will be armed with daggers, and are prone to engaging in a "friendly fight or two." They will be drunk 25% of the time, making them even more prone to violence and assault.

Savant encounters will be with a single savant of level 1d6+6. He will be attended by 1d3+1 fighters of level 1d4, as well as 1d2 apprentice savants of level 1d4. As with most users of magic, savants are most desirous of being left to their own devices.

Scholar encounters will be with 1d3 commoners, each with 1 (70%), 2 (20%), or 3 (10%) levels of the scholarship secondary skill. Roll randomly for specialty. They will be accompanied by a group of 3d4 students (commoners, but with a +1 bonus on all to hit rolls when fighting unarmed) who will defend them if needed.

Slave encounters will be as per the normal encounter description, but the slaves will usually (80%) wear some sort of identifying mark; tattoo, collar, brand, special clothing, etc.

Soldiers encounters are with an armed patrol of 1d6+4 soldiers marching in formation (level 0, wearing mail, armed with mace and spear). They will be led by a sergeant (level 1d3, wearing mail, armed with sword). They won't get involved in petty disputes, law enforcement, etc., unless a noble or official is involved.

Thief encounters will be with 1d4 thieves. The first will always be level 1d4+7. If he is alone, he will be an adventurer type passing through. If there are additional thieves with him, they will be level 1d4 apprentice thieves, part of the city's guild and on a job.

Tinker encounters will be with a traveling fixit man, who specializes in repairing metal utensils, pots, etc. He cannot repair weapons, or anything beyond the simplest repairs to armor.

Tradesman encounters will be with 2d4 laborer-types. These are skilled workers; smiths, glassblowers, carpenters, limners, etc. During the day they will be on the job or going to/from work. During the evening they will be lingering after a hard day's work, and the local city watch will not take kindly to upstanding citizens being harassed.

Undead encounters should be used sparingly, and re-rolled if they don't make sense. A vampire walking through a market in broad daylight, for instance, is something that should probably be redone, unless the GM can figure out a very clever reason for it to be happening.*

74 - 87	Mage	3
88 - 89	Illusionist	1
90 - 91	Savant	1
92 - 98	Thief	4
99 - 00	Mountebank	1

* If a barbarian is rolled as a member of a party before any mages, illusionists, or savants have been indicated, all rolls indicating those magic-using classes should be replaced with barbarians, druids, and fighters, respectively.

 If a thief of level 6 or higher is indicated, there is a 5% chance the character will be a thief-acrobat instead.

Party Member Race

Die Roll (d100)	Character Race	Chance of Multi-Class
01 - 05	Dwarf	35%
06 - 10	Elf	85%
11 - 12	Gnome	50%
13 - 17	Half-elf	85%
18 - 19	Halfling	35%
20	Half-orc	50%
21 - 00	Human	-

If a multi-classed NPC is indicated, roll again on the class table until a suitable option comes up, or simply assign a likely combination. Only two class NPCs will occur.

Party Member Level

The level of the NPC party will be in part determined by where they are found. For encounters with NPC parties in the wilderness, use the following table to determine level for each member of the main party. Roll 1d100 for each.

Level	Civilized	Wilderness
1	01 - 05	01 - 02
2	06 - 10	03 - 05
3	11 - 15	06 - 10
4	16 - 25	11 - 15
5	26 - 35	16 - 25
6	36 - 50	26 - 40
7	51 - 65	41 - 55
8	66 - 75	56 - 70
9	76 - 85	71 - 80
10	86 - 90	81 - 90
11	91 - 95	91 - 95
12	96 - 00	96 - 00

If the NPC party is encountered in a dungeon, the level of the members will depend on the dungeon level on which the encounter took place.

Dungeon Level	Character Level
2	2
3	3
4	4
5	1d6 + 2
6	1d6 + 3
7	1d6 + 4
8	1d6 + 5
9 - 15	1d6 + 6
16	1d6 + 9

For multi-class characters, simply divide the levels by two, rounding normally, with a minimum of 1.

Alignment

Each member of the NPC party will have their alignment determined randomly, but results which are obviously incompatible (good and evil, or lawful and chaotic, NPCs together) should be ignored and re-rolled. If you wish, you can simply roll alignment for the entire NPC party. If classes indicate mandatory alignments (paladins, druids, etc.), alignments should be ignored that are at odds with the indicated classes.

Die Roll (d10)	Alignment
1	LG
2	NG
3	CG
4	CN
5	CE
6	NE
7	LE
8	LN
9 - 10	N

Magic Items

Magic items for each member of NPC parties are determined by the level of the individual characters. For instances where a general type of magic item is indicated, see the treasure tables in the ADVENTURES DARK™ AND DEEP GAME MASTERS TOOLKIT.

Where multiple rolls are indicated, roll percentile dice that many times before going to the appropriate sub-table (thus, if an entry says 50% 2 rolls, you would roll % dice twice, and each time the result is 01-50, one magic item is indicated). If no percentage is listed, rolls on the sub-table are automatic.

If a cursed or otherwise negative item is indicated, or one not usable by the NPC in question, re-roll the specific item. Where a specific magical bonus is indicated below, do not roll for a bonus. Magic items are cumulative.

NPC Level	% chance for magic items from sub-table...
	A	B	C	D
1	10% 1 roll	-	-	-
2	20% 1 roll	-	-	-
3	30% 2 rolls	10% 1 roll	-	-
4	40% 2 rolls	20% 1 roll	-	-
5	50% 2 rolls	30% 1 roll	-	-

Men-at-Arms and Henchmen

In addition to the core members of the NPC party, there will be 1d4 men-at-arms or henchmen. If the average character level (rounded down) of the NPC party is 4 or less, they will have men-at-arms in tow. Otherwise, there will be 1d4 henchmen.

Men-at-arms are commoners, and will have 1d3+3 hp, wear studded leather armor (AC 7), and will be armed with simple weapons (spears, pole axes, short bows, short swords, etc.).

Henchmen will each be paired with one of the members of the NPC core party. Level will be 1/3rd of the level of the henchman's master. Otherwise, the henchman should be determined as per the process described above.

Appendix B: New Monsters

Dragon

There are various types of “true” dragon, and as a race they vary widely in terms of strength and alignment. Generally speaking, those with a metallic name are of good alignment, those of a chromatic color are evil, and those relating to clouds and vapor are neutral, however, various types of other dragons exist that defy these easy classifications. Dragons are, by their nature, rapacious and greedy, even those of good alignment. Most sorts of dragons, even those of good alignment and noble temperament, can thus be flattered and tempted with promises of additional treasure.

Size: All dragons have three size categories, which in turn determines how many hit dice they have (each entry has three numbers listed; one for small, one for average, and one for huge specimens). If necessary, determine size randomly:

Die Roll (d8)	Size
1-2	Small
3-7	Average
8	Huge

Age: The hit die type as well as other characteristics of the creature is determined by its age:

Die Roll (d8)	Age	Hit Die Type	Morale Modifier	Dragonfear Saving Throw Bonus	Chance of Spellcasting	Spell Caster Level	Treasure Multiplier
1	Very young (1-5 yrs.)	d4 (1 h.p. per die)	-2	n/a	0%	n/a	10%
2	Young (6-15 yrs.)	d4	±0	n/a	10%	1d3	25%
3	Sub-adult (16-25 yrs.)	d6	+2	n/a	20%	1d6	50%
4	Young adult (26-50 yrs.)	d8	+4	n/a	40%	2d4	100%
5	Adult (51-100 yrs.)	d10	+8	+5	80%	2d6+2	100%
6	Old (101-200 yrs.)	d12	+12	+3	100%	3d6	100%
7	Very old (201-400 yrs.)	d12 (re-roll anything below 7)	+16	+1	100%	3d6+3	150%
8	Ancient (401+ yrs.)	d12 (re-roll anything below 9)	+20	±0	100%	4d6	200%

The treasure modifier is used both to determine whether or not a dragon has any treasure at all, and if so, how much treasure it has. Thus, a sub-adult dragon has a 50% chance of having 50% of the listed treasure in its horde.

All dragons have the following powers and abilities:

- Detect invisibility or hidden creatures (10' range per age group)
- Infravision (60' range)
- Inspire dragonfear when charging or overflying (see below for specifics)

Dragonfear: When a dragon of adult age or older charges or flies overhead, it inspires what is known as dragonfear. The effect of the dragonfear will depend on the hit dice of the creature or the level of the character affected.

Hit Dice	Character Level	Dragonfear Effect
1d4-1d6	Commoner	Flee in blind panic for 4d6x10 minutes.
1d8-3d6	1-2	Save vs. magic or be paralyzed with fear (50%) for 10d6 minutes or otherwise flee in blind panic 4d6x10 minutes.
3d8-6d6	3-5	Save vs. magic or have a -1 penalty “to hit” and to damage.
6d8+	6+	No effect

Adult and older dragons are also themselves immune to magical fear of any sort.

Sleeping dragons: Most dragons, even those of good alignment, tend to sleep atop vast piles of treasure in their lairs. Only in such an environment is there a chance that any given dragon will be asleep (see the individual dragon descriptions for the chance that the dragon will be asleep when encountered). Dragons will awaken at any noise within 30-120', however, depending on the volume of the sound and any intervening structures. Bashing open a door, sounds of combat, and even regular talking will usually be enough to awaken the dragon. Dragons will awaken anyway when intruders enter their lair on a roll of 6 on 1d6. If a dragon is sleeping when attacked, the attackers get a bonus of +3 “to hit” on the first strike only; after that, the dragon will be awake, and the bonus is lost.

Mated pairs: If more than one dragon is encountered, they will consist of a mated pair, and any dragons after the first two will be their young (adjust age rolls appropriately). If the young or the other adult in a mated pair are attacked in front of an adult dragon, the adults will immediately use their breath weapons and then attack with claws, tails, and teeth with a +2 bonus "to hit" and damage.

Spellcasting: All dragons have a chance to cast spells, as indicated above. If a given dragon is a spellcaster, roll to see what level caster the dragon is. The type of spellcaster will depend on the type of dragon; see the individual dragon type descriptions for details. Due to their innate magical natures, dragon spellcasters do not need or use spell books or material components, even if they cast spells as mages or their sub-classes. All dragons are able to polymorph self twice per day (once into the chosen form - for a duration of 12 hours maximum - and once back to dragon form).

Treasure: All dragons amass treasure. The treasure multiplier in the table above refers only to the treasure value for the creature, not the chance or number of any magical items that might be present in its hoard.

Combat: In combat, dragons use their fore claws, bite, tail, and rear claws. The tail and rear claws can only be used against targets in the flank or rear of the beast, unless it is flying and dives down on targets on the ground, in which case they can use all six attacks against various targets. There is a 50% chance that a dragon will use its fearsome breath weapon rather than its claws, tail, and teeth. Unless otherwise noted, the breath weapon does a number of points of damage equal to the dragon's current hit point total (targets are entitled to a saving throw vs. breath weapon to take half damage, rounded up). Dragons may use their breath weapons as often as they wish.

In the air, dragons can either attack with their bite or claws, not both. They can, however, breathe and then attack with tooth or talon in the same round.

All dragons are able to speak their own tongue, which is understood by all dragonkind. They are also able to speak the common tongue, but sometimes only haltingly.

Unfortunately, due to the high number of variables, it is impossible to give a standard experience point (X.P.) value for dragons. The game master must use the formula in the ADVENTURES DARK AND DEEP™ BESTIARY to calculate the value of each individual dragon. Detect invisible objects counts as a minor power, while dragonfear, spellcasting ability, and the dragon's breath weapon count as major powers. You should also apply the bonuses for such things as the maximum damage the dragon can inflict and its armor class, if applicable.

Magical Treasure	2d4 items (15%), 1 weapon (25%)
X.P. Value	See above

General: As the name implies, sea dragons are aquatic creatures which dwell beneath the waves. They can exist in either fresh or salt water, and can breathe either air or water. In their lair, there is a 30% chance that any given sea dragon will be asleep. Those sea dragons that are spellcasters do so as if they are druids, with an affinity for water-based spells, which they cast as if they are 1 level higher than normal.

Combat: In melee, sea dragons attack as noted above. They have two breath weapons. The first is a blast of sonic vibration which is only effective while immersed in water, 70' long and 25' wide at the base. In addition to the normal blast damage, any creature caught in it will be stunned and deafened for 1d3 rounds unless the standard save vs. breath weapon is made. The second is a jet of water 100' long and 10' wide, which will not only do damage but knock anyone who does not make an additional Dexterity check prone, and knock them back 1d10 feet per age level of the dragon.

Appearance: Sea dragons have powerful wings which they use to swim underwater as well as fly. They have a fan running from the base of their skull to their tail, which is shaped like a whale's fluke. Their faces are long and narrow, and their scales are deep green along their backs, fading gently to a light blue-green on their bellies. Their claws are webbed.

General: Pilgrims are religious travelers. Individual worshipers will generally go on a pilgrimage to visit a particular sacred site, because of some religious holiday, at the onset of a religiously-significant one-time event, to see a particular personage, etc. They can travel short or vast distances, but all will either be traveling afoot (75%) or mounted (25%). All pilgrims will share an alignment, which can be determined randomly if no obvious sacred site or occurrence is nearby:

Die Roll (d20)	Alignment
1-4	Lawful good
5	Neutral good
5-8	Chaotic good
9	Chaotic neutral
10-13	Chaotic evil
14	Neutral evil
15-17	Lawful evil
18	Lawful neutral
19-20	Neutral

Bands of pilgrims will always be under the protection of fighters and other character-types:

- 1d6 2nd level clerics (druid if neutral pilgrims)
- 1 3rd level mystic (druid if neutral pilgrims)
- 1d4 4th level clerics (druid if neutral pilgrims)
- 1 5th level mystic (druid if neutral pilgrims)
- 1d2 6th level clerics (druid if neutral pilgrims)
- 1 8th level cleric (druid if neutral pilgrims)
- 5th or 6th level bard (25% chance)

For every ten pilgrims, the following characters could also be with the group:

- 1d10 fighters, level 1d8 each (10% chance); paladins if the pilgrims are lawful good, rangers if neutral good or chaotic good
- 1d6 thieves, level 1d6+1 (10% chance); assassins if the pilgrims are chaotic evil

- Magic user, level 1d4+5 (5% chance)

The pilgrims as a whole will not have treasure, but individual members of the group will have treasure as follows:

- Regular pilgrims will have 3d8 c.p. each
- Clerics/druids will have 3d8 c.p., 3d6 s.p., and 2d4 g.p. each
- Fighters will have 2d6 e.p. and 2d4 g.p.
- Thieves will have 3d8 c.p., 1d6 p.p., and 1d4 gems
- Bards will have 3d6 s.p. and 2d4 g.p.
- Mages will have 2d6 e.p., 1d6 p.p., and 1d4 gems

There will be a 5% chance that any given band of pilgrims will bear a holy relic, normally in the care of the most powerful character present, and carefully guarded by both traps and magic, and well hidden.

Combat: Pilgrims of good and neutral alignment are unarmed. Those who are evil will have daggers, although all are commoners. The higher-level classed individuals will have weapons, armor, and magic items appropriate to their level and class.

Appearance: Pilgrims appear as ordinary humans. They will dress plainly, and all members of the group may have some sort of religiously-inspired identifier, such as a sash, badge, sewn-on image, etc.

Pirate

Number	5d6x10
Morale	±0
Hit Dice	1d6
Armor Class	See below
Move	See below
Magic Resistance	Standard
No. of Attacks	1
Damage	Per weapon type
Defenses	None

Size	M
Intelligence	10
Alignment	Neutral, chaotic neutral, neutral evil, chaotic evil
Treasure Type	II
Treasure Value	Individuals 1d4 g.p., group 2d4+1x10,000 g.p.
Magical Treasure	Group 1 item (60%), 1 potion (60%)
X.P. Value	5 + 1/h.p.

General: Pirates are a special type of bandit who specialize in raiding sailing ships and other watercraft. They can be found at sea, on lakes, or rivers. Almost always an encounter with pirates will find them aboard their ship, which doubles as their base and is where most of their treasure will be stored. There is a 50% chance, however, that the majority of their treasure will have been buried elsewhere for safekeeping, and a map to the treasure will be found aboard their ship. There will also be 1d4+1 prisoners being held for ransom at any given time.

Pirates will have leaders among them as follows:

- For every 50 pirates, one third level fighter, a 15% chance for a cleric (level 1d4+11) and a 10% chance for a mage (level 1d3+5)
- For every 100 pirates, one fifth level fighter
- Four 4th level fighters as mates
- If there are 200 or fewer pirates, one 6th level fighter as lieutenant and an 8th level captain
- If there are more than 200 pirates, one 7th level fighter as lieutenant and a 10th level captain

The type of ship pirates will have will be determined by the number encountered (if circumstances obviously preclude as large a ship as indicated, such as river pirates with a carrack, the game master should split them up across several smaller, more appropriate, vessels):

Pirates	Ship(s)
50-100	Bireme or two longships
101-200	Dromon, trireme, or two biremes
200-250	Carrack, two dromons, or two triremes
250-300	Carrack, two dromons, or three biremes

Combat: Pirates attack with weapons. The type of weapon used and armor worn should be decided randomly. For large groups, you might find it easier to simply use the % Composition column, rather than rolling for each individual pirate.

Die Roll (d%)	Equipped with...	Move	% Composition
01 - 05	Mail & shield, longsword, axe	90' / min.	5%
06 - 10	Mail & longsword	90' / min.	5%
11 - 20	Leather cuirass & shield, longsword	120' / min.	10%
21 - 50	Leather cuirass & spear	120' / min.	30%
51 - 70	Leather cuirass & battle axe	120' / min.	20%
71 - 80	Leather cuirass & heavy crossbow	120' / min.	10%
81 - 00	Leather cuirass & light crossbow	120' / min.	20%

Appearance: Pirates tend to dress flamboyantly, but with well-honed weapons and armor in good condition.

A comprehensive system for creating and stocking wilderness, dungeon, and urban environments.

Within these pages you'll find rules for randomly generating terrain in wilderness, including settlements and ruins, as well as random encounter tables you can either use as-is or use as inspiration for your own encounter tables. Encounter tables are provided for every combination of eight different terrain types, three different climates, and two options for civilization or wilderness are given, as well as tables for prehistoric and water-born encounters.

Also included is a random dungeon generation system, with encounter tables for ten different levels of dungeon difficulty, as well as a complete urban random generator, with streets, buildings, and encounters in thirty-eight different types of city districts.

All use the monsters described in the ADVENTURES DARK AND DEEP™ Bestiary, but are quite suitable for any old-school RPG. In addition, a complete system for generating a random dungeon is presented, as well as comprehensive encounter tables for encounters from kobolds to demon princes. Three new monsters are also included to round out both dragon and human encounters.

All are suitable for the game master who wants to run a game using random rules or to use the tables for quick inspiration, or can also be used for solo play without the need for a game master at all.
