I'd like to give massive credit to Julius "Jay" Wollfarth Jr., AKA Jay_NOLA, as he is known on Atlas Games' Feng Shui forums, who has provided the vast majority of extremely hard-to-find and presumed lost information, errata and other information, for types and defunct websites, as well as hand-typing up summaries for some types and schticks from books I did not have, as well as compiling information on types and schticks and other information. To say this wouldn't have been possible without his contributions and effort is an under-statement.

I must give a special mention to the already above-noted Wolf-Philipp Fischer, "Apple" in the Atlas Games Feng Shui forums, who came through like a miracle in the darkest, last hour of this document with resources I didn't think were going to materialize, which were nearly make-or-break for the entire project - so an enormous debt of gratitude and hearty thanks, on behalf of myself and all Feng Shui gamers who find use in this PDF.

Of course I'd also like to thank Atlas Games and Robin D. Laws for the Feng Shui RPG, and the very kind permission to produce this document, and in general for encouragement to fans to produce their own interpretations and works to bring new perspectives to the game, for other fans to enjoy.

Atlas Games' Feng Shui Core Rules

1. Character Type. Alternately known as an Archetype or just Type for short, this is the template used to build a character.

2. Juncture. Any, 69, Nether-world, 1850, Contemporary, 2056. This is the era or juncture in time the Type is most commonly found. Players should not play out of juncture/ inappropriate characters unless an adventure involves time travel. The GM should work with players to make sure they create characters that will work with the adventure he plans to run.

3. Quote. A typical quote that someone of this Character Type would say, reflecting the general style or personality.

4. Summary. Type descriptions from official sourcebooks and some fan works are fairly long and in-depth, and while that's good for the sake of roleplay, for a general work of a master list summarizing all of the known Feng Shui Types, it just isn't feasible to include each Type's full text, so we settled on a brief sentence or so, hopefully the most relevant and descriptive.

5. Primary Attributes. Body, Chi, Mind and Reflexes, range in value from 0 to 15, 5 being average and 10 being normal human maximum.

An Attribute preceded by an = indicates it begins at its maximum value and cannot be raised above this during character creation (but may later).

6. Secondary Attributes. Special starting values for a few Secondary Attributes, which otherwise follow the rule of "equal to parent Primary Attribute" (so if you have a Body of 5, all your Secondary Attributes will also be 5 unless otherwise specified). The = applies the same here as for Primary Attributes.

BODY: overall physique and health

- Move - how fast you can run/move
- Strength - lifting and hitting things
- Constitution - resist pain, shock, disease and poisons
- Toughness - how much injury can be easily taken before impairment

CHI: general attunement with the Earth's mystical life force - this rarely goes above 0 for most people

- Fortune - luck, how much Chi energy "likes" him/her
- Kung Fu - inner power for mystical Fu schticks
- Magic - potential to perform and resist magical spells

MIND: mental and interpersonal abilities

- Charisma - personal magnetism, charm or presence
- Intelligence - memory, logical clear thinking/expression
- Perception - powers of observation/ deduction, alert
- Will - self-confidence, determination, resistance, Emotional IQ

REFLEXES: gross and fine coordination precision

- Agility - gross motor skill aptitude of the entire body
- Dexterity - fine motor skills, hand-eye coordination
- Speed - reaction/response time/rate to external stimuli

7. Primary Attribute Bonus. The total number of bonuses or points which may be distributed between the 4 main Attribute scores only (not Secondary Attributes), to raise them at a "point per point or +1" basis. No Primary or Secondary Attribute score for any character may ever exceed 15.

A slash and then a number smaller than the first number here (6/5) means no more than that many points can be added to any one score, out of the bonus points given.

A slash and a larger number (6/13) means no score's total can be raised above this total, even if enough bonus points were given to do so.

8. Secondary Attribute Bonus. Same as Primary Attribute Bonus above, but may be spent only on Secondary Attributes, but follows the same rules otherwise.

9. Skills and Individual Skill Bonuses. The basic “skill level” the character possesses in the skill. These usually range from +1 to +10, with 4-6 being average for most people. SB is the actual bonus, Bas is the Secondary Attribute which governs the skill, that you use for the base rating for the skill, and Mx is the maximum value the skill is allowed to equal at character creation - it cannot exceed this number, initially (but can after the character has played a session). An = sign here indicates the skill already begins at this value, otherwise the player needs to be sure that his adding bonuses to a skill doesn't bring his total AV above this. Skills with no Mx have no limits to their starting values.

10. Skill Bonuses. Total free Skill Bonus Points the player may “spend” to improve his character's abilities. The total number of bonus points which may be distributed between all the character's beginning skill values (the individual Skill Bonuses), to raise them at a “1 point per +1” basis. No Skill Bonus for any character may ever exceed 30.

11. Notes. Some Types have limitations, options and other information that is relevant to play.

12. Schticks. Special abilities or specialties with which the character starts; may be Unique schticks or ones which a player chooses from the book (Fu, Gun, Sorcery, etc).

13. Number of Starting Weapons. Usually 1 to 5, depending on the Type, though some start with no weapon in particular. Also, usually there is no division between melee, thrown or guns, but a few Types start with only a certain type of weapon (melee, gun, ranged). Characters who start with no weapon can obtain them, especially simpler ones such as staves or simple handguns.

14. Quick ("Schtick") Picks. Simple suggested examples.

15. Wealth Level. Rich, Working Stiff and Poor. This is an abstracted way of dealing with money and “buying equipment”, to reduce bookkeeping. Most people with “normal jobs” are Working Stiffs, from full time fast food employees to police detectives, while Poor is anyone under that. Rich characters rarely worry about expenses.

16. Credit. This is the person who designed or created the Character Type, or in the case of official material, the sourcebook in which the full Type can be found.

GENERAL NOTES

Core Rules - These Types came from the standard Atlas release of the core rules of Feng Shui, and include the basic 26 Types from Abomination to Transformed Animal.

Terminology: Some of the Unique Schticks and Limitations listed below are not given official names by Atlas Games or Robin D. Laws, but are provided by me, the author, solely for the sake of reference within this document, so you will not likely find them referenced by these names in any other official or fan work, so are not presented as “recognized”.

Scope of this Document: Although there are further non-Unique Schticks, such as Stat, Driving, Hardware, Synch, further Transformed Animal, Sorcery, Gun, Fu and others, for practical reasons, I've limited this document to mostly covering and reproducing the basics of each of the official Atlas Character Types and their referenced Unique Schticks and mentions of other schticks, but not redefining those non-Uniques.

Sourcebooks and Abbreviations Referenced: The following sourcebooks, abbreviated in the Table of Contents, are official commercial Atlas Games products for Feng Shui, and include full write-ups for the other non-core Types summarized in this document - these listings are current as of December 2010.

UNIQUE SCHTICK SUMMARIES

These come from a variety of official published Feng Shui material, from the core rules to faction and other sourcebook products. Note also that some schticks in later supplements may be duplicates or resummarized or restated versions of earlier normal or Unique schticks, sometimes purchasable with XP.

Adrenaline - When you have been attacked or are in the presence of your Irritant, you get a bonus of +4 points which you may divide as you choose between Body and Reflexes. At the beginning of each sequence, you can redistribute your 4 points as you choose. Be sure to remember that this can increase your combat Action Values. You retain this bonus until the annoying situation ceases. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Consumer on the Brink

Alchemist - You focus your magic through potions, powders and similar substances. Each potion takes one hour to make, and they remain inert until activated. This is the only way you can cast spells.

Anyone can activate your potion. The Action Result is determined when you create it by making a Sorcery check as normal.

To use the potion, the user typically drinks it, anoints their body with it, or throws it at a target. You drink Healing, Transmutation, Divination, and Influence potions. You anoint the target with a Movement potion. Blast potions and powders are tossed at the target, exploding on impact. All others require similar, appropriate triggers and are up to the GM.

In emergencies, you can quickly mix together raw ingredients to gain an on-the-spot effect. This counts as a desperate effort, costing 1 Magic Point. Furthermore you can only count half the Outcome when determining the results.

You can only take this schtick during character creation; it may not be purchased with experience points. To take it, lower your Sorcery AV by one point and take 4 Sorcery schticks instead of 5. Source: Thorns of the Lotus, Type: Sorcerer

Amiable Contacts - When you encounter a contact made through your Journalism skill, you may spend a Fortune Point to guarantee that the contact doesn't hate your guts. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Journalist

Arrows of Fu - You have learned how to project your chi energy through your arrows. You may use the following Fu schticks with all relevant checks. You must already know the relevant Fu schtick and Chi is paid as normal. Permitted Fu powers include: Bite of the Dragon, Breath of the Dragon,

Dark's Soft Whisper, Fire Strike, Shelter of Darkness, Strike From Darkness. Source: Blood of the Valiant, Type: Guiding Hand Archer

Berserker Rage - At the beginning of each sequence, you may choose to add an amount to your AV for Fu rating. This amount is subtracted from your passive dodge. When using Berserker Rage, you cannot actively dodge. These bonuses and penalties apply for the whole sequence. Source: Gorilla Warfare, Type: Viking Warrior

Blueprint Cipher - You have a natural mental blueprint image of any building you can see with a cursory inspection, inside or outside, including load-bearing walls, electrical wiring for alarms, elevator shafts leading to subbasements and general layout - this doesn't always work, as all buildings vary and some unorthodox plans simply won't fit your understanding, but overall you've got a good chance. Spending a Fortune Die tells you where exits are located, which levels have heavy electricity (and more likely to have computers and security measures) and where the corner penthouse and other significant rooms are likely to be located. You must spend 10 minutes examining the exterior of the building; 30 minutes inside the building unmolested lets you forego the Fortune Die expense to determine one pertinent fact (exists or vault but not both). Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Techie

But You're Dead! You have the knack of surviving. When you fail a Death Check, spend a Fortune point, and you can return, hale and hearty, ten sequences later, with 30 Wound Points remaining. You have to come up with a suitably crazy story about how you survived your "death." Your Fortune attribute is permanently reduced by one every time you do this. Source: Seal of the Wheel, Type: Two-Fisted Archaeologist

Community Figure - You are such a well-respected member of your community, that your neighbors will come forward and vouch for your patriotism and benevolence if you are ever under suspicion. Source: Blood of the Valiant, Type: Golden Candle Agent

Counter Ritual - The years you've spent poring over strange esoteric manuscripts and deciphering hieroglyphics has imparted some minor magical knowledge. For the cost of a Magic point you can give a -3 AV penalty to a magic item, or Sorcery or Creature schtick, including Blast, for an entire sequence. Shot cost of 6. Source: Seal of the Wheel, Type: Two-Fisted Archaeologist

Cuff-Fu

Even if you're not normally much of a martial artist, you're like Jackie Chan when it comes to hand-cuffs. You can use your Police skill in place of Martial Arts to incapacitate a named or unnamed character by handcuffing him to something or putting him in some seemingly-impossible contortion. This doesn't make your handcuffs more difficult to escape from than any other, but even a demon can be slowed down by them if you're good. This is a type-related schtick; any character with the Police skill can purchase this schtick for 9 experience points. The Karate Cop is welcome to swap out one of her unique schticks for this one. Source: Friends of the Dragon, Type: Karate Cop

Unique Schtick Summaries

Death-O-Rama - Whether it's the gas tank or a nearby car, an explosive depot, or propane tank that happened to be at the rendezvous with the Buro agent, there's always something explosive for you to blow up. You can spend a Fortune die at any time to make a Guns check: a positive result means you hit something that causes a large explosion. Source: Gorilla Warfare, Type: Dallas Rocket

Derring Do - AV +3 bonus for non-combat Martial Arts checks involving heroic movement: leaping, daredevil stunts, swinging from ropes or chandeliers, etc. This does not apply to attacks or dodges - only for things that let you get from one place to another. Source: Back for Seconds
Divine Regeneration - You are also very hard to kill, and have the effective benefits of Inevitable Comeback x 2, and a special form of regeneration that will allow you to grow back lost limbs and organs over a period of months. Source: Back for Seconds (Daedalus), Type: Masked Avenger

Elementary, My Dear Watson - see Holmes Touch

Extra-Sneaky - Intrusion rolls to avoid being seen get +2 AV and allow you to make use of cover other people can't - if modifiers would normally be applied by the GM for bright light, poor cover, etc. the Difficulty should be adjusted down by 2 for Ninjas with Extra-Sneaky. This only applies to not being seen - it does not help with picking locks, cracking safes, etc. Source: Back for Seconds (Daedalus), Type: Ninja

Eye in the Sky - Once per session, you may make a Per roll of Difficulty 9 to get the GM to tell you a clue hinting at a future plot development. Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Private Investigator

Flurry of Arrows - As long as your closest enemy is less than 5m away you gain +2 to initiative. Source: Thorns of the Lotus, Type: Archer

Focused Ki - At will, you may use your expertise in perceiving chi flow through people's bodies to strike your opponent's most vulnerable areas in combat, increasing damage by +6, as long as you are using only normal non-Fu-powered punches, kicks, chops and such. This has also been turned into a Fu Power and may be taken as such instead, and traded for another Schtick from Back for Seconds or Thorns of the Lotus. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules modified by FS mailing list/FAQ, Type: Old Master

Geomancy - The Gardener can use the following effects of the Fertility sorcery schtick: De-attunement, Observe Chi, and Resolve Chi. These powers are not magical but are based on the Gardner's Info/Geomancy skill. Source: Blood of the Valiant, Type: Gardener

Gut Instinct - You are an expert at deduction in real-world situations. When speculating as to the best course of action or motivations of a given character, you can spend a Fortune Point to have the GM tell you directly whether or not your speculation is correct. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Private Investigator

Hidden Toolkit - You've become adept at concealing the tools of your sabotage in an unobtrusive manner on your person. Anyone attempting to make a Perception check to detect concealed weapons or equipment on you suffers a -5 penalty. Source: Gorilla Warfare, Type: Gearhead

Holmes Touch - Your keen intellect and superb perception allow you to figure things out that the hoi polloi wouldn't catch in a million years. You can spend a Fortune Die and have the GM tell you one fact. This can be a person's skill level in a given ability ("Only a highly trained martial artist would have such well-developed calluses on that part of the palm, referred to as the 'ox jab' in traditional Japanese karate . . .") or details of a specific schtick ("I suspect that snout configuration evolved to facilitate the sucking of human spinal fluid, probably to aid the demon in reading the memories of its victim . . ."). It can also be used on the world around you ("Obviously whoever broke in here was over fifty years old"). You get to pick the fact, but it has to be pretty specific. The GM has veto power ("What's the name of the assassin?") but should give you something. This has become a Stat Schtick and is no longer a Unique Schtick. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Uber-Kid

Hunter's Instinct - Visit the location of a fugitive's last sighting. Roll your Perception with the quarry's Mind as your Difficulty. If successful, the GM gives you some clue as to your target's actions or present location. Depending on the juncture you could get this insight from surveillance footage, dropped receipts, or even something as simple as footprints and spoor. Source: Seal of the Wheel, Type: Bounty Hunter

Ich Bin Ein Bruiser - You make Death Checks at 50 Wounds, and suffer Impairment of -1 at 40 and -2 at 45. This has since become a Stat Schtick rather than a Unique Schtick. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Big Bruiser

Immunity - You have the same reversion modifiers as a transformed animal from 69 AD. Source: Seal of the Wheel, Type: Lodge Survivor

Inspiration - If you have a group of unnamed characters fighting on your side, you can give them an inspiring speech before combat. (No, you can't do it if the lead's already flying.) Roll your Leadership against a Difficulty of 11. If you beat it, all the unnamed troops who heard it get +1 to their Guns or Martial Arts, whichever is higher. This can be a great chance to ham it up: "This . . . is our finest hour. . ." Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: (Free Sex) Militant

Irritant - Pick something that really, really gets on your nerves. When trying to destroy or remove your irritant, you suffer no Impairment from injury. Examples: Buro cops, sassy youngsters, rich people, puns, warm beer (1990s only), really loud noises, bigotry, people who harm or threaten children. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Consumer on the Brink

It's Just A Flesh Wound - You can use unorthodox emergency measures to do a quick medical patch-up job as long as you've got something suitable, such as a pen-knife and some thread. Add +2 AV to the Result of relevant task check. Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Medic

Know When To Fold Em - Ignore one failed Gambling roll per scene as if the roll had never been made; the character gets to keep his shirt and his reputation remains intact. Spending a Fortune Die in addition to this may also allow a marginal success instead. Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Gambler

Lead Mooks - After digging around the unsightly parts of town, you can gather a group of mooks who are willing to fight for you – for a nominal fee, of course. Make a leadership role. The difficulty (between 3 and 10) is based on how well you know the area, and how much money you are offering. You gain the Outcome in mooks, They will loyally follow you for one week. Source: Thorns of the Lotus, Type: Bandit

Lucky - Fortune Dice spent do not reduce your Fortune Rating for the purposes of making Fortune Checks. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Everyman Hero

Mean Streak - Any time you connect with a hand to hand weapon, you do an extra point of Damage. This is added after everything else is figured out, so even if you hit a Big Bruiser who can soak off all your damage with Toughness, you still deliver one Wound Point from sheer bad temper. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Consumer on the Brink

Militant Specialization - This isn't actually an official Unique Schtick but it is used here to provide extra information on Militant types. In 2056, there are many different types of Militants, but the most prominent are: 1) Luddites, 2) Blackwater Fury, 3) Fists of Freedom, 4) Free Sex and 5) Grumps.

All Militants except Fists of Freedom get the first five skills listed in the profile summary. The Fists of Freedom types do not get Guns but instead get a Martial Arts of +10/Agl/15!

All Militant types get one specialization skill, except for the Fists, which don't get one. Free Sex: Seduction +2/=13; Luddite/Blackwater: Sabotage +2/Dex/ =13; Grumps: Fix-It +2/Per/=13.

Luddites are devoted to an antique notion of “privacy” and despise the Buro's omnipresent technological spying.

Blackwater Fury is an incoherent, ultraviolent splinter of the Free Sex Militia, called “nuts” by Jammers.

Fists of Freedom are martial arts underground militants.

Free Sex Militants, as noted, are all about free sex and marriage, and are also the template for all non-Jammer militants in the 2056 Juncture.

Grumps demand the right to feel as bad as they want and often stage public tragedies to give people an excuse to be unhappy.

Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: (Free Sex) Militant

Mook Magnet - You have an almost eerie ability to discover, recruit and command the weak-willed and thuggish. In order to use your Mook Magnet schtick, you must fulfill three conditions: (1) You must be in an urban setting. (2) You must have some sort of incentive to offer your lackeys: money, booze, the lure of easy pickings, etc. (3) You must spend a full day cruising dive bars, stockyards, wharves - the places where rnooks gather.

When you've fulfilled those conditions, make an open roll and add one; the result is the number of mooks you've attracted. These mooks will serve for 2-3 days without a reward before they get bored and disillusioned. If they get what was promised (and don't get wiped out) they'll stick around as long as the goodies continue to flow. Any mooks who survive three combats in your employment become "battle hardened." They don't gain any skill bonuses right away, but they do become named characters (you can pick names for them). Now they don't evaporate in firefights and can get experience points if you let them attune to one of your feng shui sites. (They cannot gain experience any other way.) Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Criminal Mastermind

Nick of Time - Any time another character needs help, you can show up if it's at all plausible (i.e., you're not in jail, your buddy isn't in another juncture, etc.). Everyone present can offer an explanation for how you happened to arrive in time; you get to pick the one you like best. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Drifter

No Place Like Home - You suffer no juncture penalties, if your home juncture normally has any, when using a specified ability (Sorcery, Creature Powers, etc.) in your home juncture. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Magic Cop

Nose for Crime - Bonus +2 to Perception checks for spotting criminal activity. If you immediately try to bust the crooks, you can add the Outcome of your successful check to the AV of your first attack or dodge. If you have Hair-Trigger neck hairs, add its bonus. Source: Back for Seconds (Daedalus), Type: Maverick Cop

Nuisance - When you attack, you can use Distraction instead, rather than injuring - throwing things, pulling someone's shirt over their head, squirting them with whipped cream, etc. This causes the opponent to suffer 3 points of Impairment for a number of shots equal to your Outcome, but can't be increased by further distraction. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Scrappy Kid

Pain Feels Good - Whenever you suffer an injury that causes Impairment, make a Willpower check, Difficulty (5 x Current Impairment from Wounds). If you succeed, the Impairment becomes a bonus to all combat actions for the rest of the sequence. Making this check takes one shot. The Impairment's penalty returns in the next sequence, though you can roll again any time you suffer additional wounds.

Example: You're ground zero of a napalm strike and take 27 wound points, for 1 point of Impairment. You make a Willpower check, Difficulty 5, succeeding. For the rest of the sequence, you get +1. Later in the same sequence, you get shot for 6 more points, putting your total at 33 and your Impairment at 2. You roll Willpower, Difficulty 10. If successful, you're at +2 until the end of the sequence. At the beginning of the next sequence, you feel the normal effects of your Impairment, until you're wounded again, when you can make another Willpower check. On a success, you're back to +2 until the sequence ends.

Kindly GMs may give you a Willpower bonus for saying things like "I remember my drill sergeant screaming 'Whassamatter, flower? Got a hang-nail? Oh, a broken arm is it? Well quitter sniveling, you pathetic piece of human refuse! It's only a little broken! I climbed that wall with both arms broken and a wounded buddy on my back! I dragged myself up with my eyelids!'" Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: L. Supersoldier

Plays the Odds - An expert at calculating the odds, you can make a Fortune Check with a Difficulty of 4 at any time; if you succeed, the GM must tell you the Diff. of an upcoming check. You must be able to observe the situation well. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Gambler

Pledged to the Cause - As one of the trusted servants of the secret masters, you can command those below you in the Wheel. You can send materials for analysis in the top scientific labs, request that scholars pour through the secret archives of the Vatican, or commandeer a SWAT team as backup. Roll your Info/Order of the Wheel or Info/Jade Wheel Society skill against a Difficulty set by the GM (usually somewhere between 10 and 18, depending on her plans and whims). Any troops gathered using this schtick are always mooks with an AV of no more than 7, and they usually number no more than twelve. On a fumble, somebody within the Lodge has noticed your misuse of power and will probably take appropriate steps soon. Source: Seal of the Wheel, Type: Pledged Agent

Purple Prose - With 3 days' notice and 2 hours' writing time, you may either add or subtract 1 point to any single person's Cha score or to any one Cha based skill. The effect lasts for one week plus a number of days equal to the Outcome. Usually this only lasts in a particular city or territory - rural and foreign areas and times are not valid choices. Spending a Fortune Die increases the area of effect to include any civilized locale. Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Journalist

Quick Study - You get an extra experience point every session because you learn things so damn fast. This has become a Stat Schtick and is no longer a Unique Schtick. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Uber-Kid

Recruiting - You can try to persuade people to join your cause. This skill can be used to try and recruit GMC characters, or you can use it as a hook for introducing new player characters to your team.

Using this schtick requires about an hour without significant interruptions. (A waiter asking if you want drinks is not a serious interruption; Desdemona Deathangel tearing people's heads off nearby is.)

If you try to persuade a GMC who is listening with an open mind, roll your Leadership (or Seduction, if you're a Free Sex Militant). The Difficulty is your recruit's Willpower or highest Action Value, whichever is greater. Your GM may add modifiers (if, for example, your target is a Lotus Sorcerer who knows that betrayal will be punished by being fed to The Thing That Eats Your Kidneys Forever) or simply veto some recruitments for her own inscrutable reasons.

Alternately, you can use this schtick once per session to try to "pick up a stranger." In this case, roll your Leadership against a Difficulty of 11. On a success, design a named GMC who will do a fair job of working on behalf of your insurgent group. This GMC can have either Guns or Martial Arts at 8, or both at 7. You can also give this GMC some other, noncombat skill at 8 or an Info skill at 9. The GM controls this character, but you determine his name, story and personality. Have fun with it; these characters have the potential to stick around for a while. If you fail your roll, the GM may give you an inferior or no recruit at all, or if you roll really badly, someone already recruited may be a spy.

Research Maniac - You have an Info score of 1 in every conceivable category. This doesn't allow you to make direct use of the information past what the information gives. You must spend at least 1 hour in a library (newspaper, morgue, etc), at a computer console, or hitting the streets for your contacts in order to use this. You must still pay for an Info of 1 before you can raise any Info skill - this simulates an Info skill, it doesn't replace it. Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Journalist

Respected Opinion - People can't resist telling you things. You may spend a Fortune Point to get a reluctant or hostile GMC to tell you something they shouldn't. Best used when you're captured, to induce gloating in villains. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Spy

Retired Soldier - When following one of the Old Master's combat plans, all character's gain +1 Tgh and +1 Damage for the Duration of the fight. (This is intended for an Old Master who has military experience with the imperial army.) To get this schtick, take it instead of the one given. To add this schtick to your already-existing Old Master, spend 12 experience points. Source: Thorns of the Lotus, Type: Old Master

Reversion Resistant - Being from AD 69, you are more used to the influence of magic in the world. For every 24 hours you spend in a world with a Sorcery Difficulty of +3 or more (instead of the usual +1 or more for those from any other juncture), you gain 1 Reversion Point. At the end of each session in such a world, the TA must make a Reversion Check, which, if failed, results in that character permanently reverting to a normal animal, removing him from play and requiring the player to make a new character.

For every 24 hours spent in a juncture with a Sorcery Difficulty of 0 or less, Reversion Points are reduced by 1 - this applies to all TA and is not specific to Reversion Resistant ones. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Transformed Animal

Ridiculous Luck - For the purposes of determining if good things happen to you only (i.e. not for Fortune dice), your Fortune score is considered to be 10. Source: Blood of the Valiant, Type: Shaolin Disciple

Right Place, Right Time - You basically get an extra action right before a given deadline (bomb explodes, steel door closes, villain's plane takes off, etc.) as long as you are aware of the impending deadline. Spending a Fortune Die will allow you to BE in the right place at the right time to hear or see or otherwise find out something if the situation is suitable and the subject would reasonably be able to be found out, possibly by accident, and if the character has at least a general idea of what he's looking for. Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Spy

Sea Legs - You're an old hand when it comes to the sea. You don't suffer any penalties when fighting aboard a ship, no matter what the conditions. Stunts you perform on ships also suffer a lesser penalty than normal. The final penalty, as always, is assigned at the discretion of the GM. Source: Blood of the Valiant, Type: Redeemed Pirate

Showoff - You gain +2 AV bonus when using your Martial Arts skill to execute acrobatic maneuvers that aren't direct attacks on opponents in combat. This includes Active Dodges or Parries, meaning when making an Active Dodge, the Karate Cop actually gets +5 instead of +3 - this doesn't apply to Passive Dodges or Parries, since they aren't actions. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Karate Cop

Sifu - An Old Master is adept at improving a comrade's Martial Arts performance through advice and instruction ("Be prepared for his claw of the tiger... remember the patient crane defeats the rash tiger!"). This advice can be given during combat and is a continuous action by the Old Master. The Old Master may instruct multiple characters at once; each character instructed is a separate continuous action. For example, an Old Master who is instructing 3 characters simultaneously is maintaining three continuous actions, so any action the Old Master makes will have its short cost increased by 3.

The recipient of the advice gains +2 AV to his Martial Arts skill while he is receiving the advice, provided he dutifully accepts and follows the advice given. Inattentive or obstinate characters receive no bonus. If the Master and character both share a Fu schtick in common then the character gains an additional +1 AV when using that schtick. AV bonuses are lost immediately upon the Old Master ceasing his instruction. A character can benefit from only one Old Master's instruction at once.

At the GM's discretion, Old Master PCs in the campaign may acquire the Sifu schtick during character generation by substituting it for their standard unique schtick, or they may acquire it later by spending 12 XP. Source: Back for Seconds, Type: Old Master

Snatched From Death - Spend an extra 2 shots on any stabilization check to stop a character from dying to automatically succeed, once per combat, total - retrieved characters remain unconscious. Source: Golden Comeback, Type: Medic

Squirmy Lil' Bastard - You may not do much damage but you're a quick rascal - your Dodge AV is always 2 more than your Martial Arts or Sorcery AV, and this can be further increased by Active Dodges. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Scrappy Kid

Summoning (Trueform) - You get an extra effect with the Summoning Schtick: True Form. You can cause a magically-altered being, such as a Transformed Animal or Supernatural Creature using the Transformation Creature Power, to revert to its true form. The Difficulty is the subject's highest AV rating. In the case of TAs, you may attempt to use the spell on any given individual only once and it costs you a Magic Point to try - this cost is permanent.

If you fail, you automatically suffer a serious Backlash, suffering 5 Wound Points for each point of difference between your Action Result and the Difficulty. These Wounds are not reduced by Toughness or Armor. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Magic Cop

Surprise Entrance - You may spend a Fortune Die to "find" a portal leading into the Netherworld from your current location in the real world, or vice versa. (This does not allow you to choose where exactly you wind up when you go through the portal; that's up to the GM.) This portal takes time to find: make a fortune check after spending the die, and subtract the result from six. You can find the portal in that many sequences (note that this number can never go below one). This is a continuous action. Source: Gorilla Warfare, Type: Portal Jockey

Take the Bullet - Keeping clients alive is what you do, even if it means getting hurt yourself. Nominate another character as your "client" at the start of each session. If that client is ever wounded, you may, as a two (or one if you use Out for Blood's rules) shot defensive action, attempt to pull him out of harm's way or shield him with your body.

Roll your combat AV with the attacker's Action Result as the Difficulty. If successful you pull him out of danger; if you fail the roll you didn't get there in time. On a fumble, you both take the Damage as rolled. You can protect people who are not the designated client as well. This is a two shot action. You literally take your buddy's hit for him.

Roll your combat AV with the attacker's Action Result as the Difficulty. If you succeed, you take the Damage instead of your pal. The attacker's Outcome is calculated against your friend's Dodge Action Value, but you reduce the Damage with your Tgh. Source: Seal of the Wheel, Type: Bodyguard

Taoist Trickery - You gain +2 AV on all Influence checks, but -2 on all other Sorcery checks, other than Divination. Source: Thorns of the Lotus, Type: Taoist Wizard

There It Is! - You always happen to have the right item on hand. When you want to pull any tool or gadget item out of your handy toolkit, spend a Fortune Point and -bingo-you got it! Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Techie

This'll Do - You get +1 AV for any creative attack you make with an improvised weapon, such as pool cues, barbells, frozen chicken dinners, beer bottles, shopping carts, etc. The same improvised weapon should not be carried around and/or used from scene to scene - it should be a weapon of opportunity rather than habit. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Everyman Hero

Thumper Rig - You've had extensive cybernetic surgery to implant audio gear to choke a SICASSP (q.v. baby --- that's a lot of hardware). You can broadcast any music you chose --- spontaneously generated or pre-recorded --- either audibly (and deafeningly) or via any number of 2056 wireless protocols. This schtick is required to learn the fu powers in the Path of Visible Resonance. Source: Glimpse of the Abyss, Type: Thumper

Unique Weapon (Experimental Impulse Blaster)* - This isn't actually a Unique Schtick, but costs 2 Signature Weapon schticks to acquire; this functions like a Signature Weapon, except this weapon is unique in all the world and the specific stats are generally determined by the GM for each weapon, with the the Science Ninja's Experimental Impact Blaster being the best example. Source: Friends of the Dragon, Type: Science Ninja

Unsettling Demeanor - You're an expert on the criminal mind. Intimidation attempts on unnamed hoodlums get a +5 AV bonus. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Masked Avenger

Virtuous Monologue - You can deliver a stirring speech that will convince any basically law abiding GMC of your honesty and integrity, and they will want to help you out, although they won't wreck their lives to do so. Spending a Fortune Point lets you even win over over some shady or disreputable people, though maybe only temporarily and only when it will not derail/endanger the plot. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Karate Cop

LIMITATIONS SUMMARIES

Eschew (Magic/Sorcery) - Will not learn or use any magic or sorcery, as a matter of principle, as it is related to the supernatural, which is the sworn "enemy". Any abilities similar to magic that someone with this Limitation possesses may work like or mimic magic or sorcery, but only on a functional level, not actually count as magic or sorcery, and instead involve pure chi or willpower. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Transf. Animal

Eschew (Weapons/Guns) - Will not use a particular type of weapon under any circumstance. Source: Thorns of the Lotus, Type: Archer

Intolerant (Sorcery) - This character cannot learn or use a certain resource, such as Sorcery. Other variations of this may include specific types of magic, such as Summoning Intolerance. Sorcery Intolerance includes the Medicine skill from AD 69, as it is a form of magic which uses the Mag attribute - Transformed Animals from AD 69 are able to use Medicine from AD 69, however as they are native to the juncture. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Transformed Animal

Medicine (69, 1850, 2056) - This character cannot be healed by the Medicine skill unless that skill employs the techniques common to the given juncture, so a Supernatural Creature with the Medicine AD 69 Limitation cannot be healed with the Medicine skill unless that skill uses the AD 69 medicinal methods; 1850's, modern or futuristic medicine will be ineffective. Unless otherwise stated, this doesn't mean the character can't naturally heal, just that the Medicine skill itself has a very specific requirement for effective use. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type:

Primate Humor - Character name must contain a simian pun or he gets 1 less XP per session. Source: Gorilla Warfare, Type: Gorilla Fighter

Rebel's Guilt - Swimming against the flow of your culture isn't easy, especially when it's chi. You constantly feel guilty about your rebellious tendencies or "perverse urges." While in the 2056 juncture you have a -2 penalty in any situation (other than hiding) where you are acting against abominations or uniformed minions of the Buro. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: (Free Sex) Militant

Reversion Danger - Usually for Transformed Animals in human form. If returned to animal form through exposure to magic, the character is retired from the game. Transformed Animals from the 69 juncture have a slight edge against this - see the Reversion Resistant Unique Schtick. Also, for every 24 hours you spend in a world with a Sorcery Difficulty of +1 or more (+3 if you're from AD 69), you gain 1 Reversion Point. At the end of each session in such a world, the TA must make a Reversion Check, which, if failed, results in that character permanently reverting to a normal animal, removing him from play and requiring the player to make a new character. For every 24 hours spent in a juncture with a Sorcery Difficulty of 0 or less, Reversion Points are reduced by 1 for TA's. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Transformed Animal

Slave to the Cheese - If you capture or non-lethally defeat any named Cop or Buro characters, you are 100% unable to simply kill them, and must do everything in your power to prevent anyone else from doing so. Killing them out of hand is too easy, too quick. You must toy with your prey by putting them in elaborate death-traps, or by offering them some desperate (but psychotically "fair") gamble with which to win their life and freedom. Furthermore, you cannot resist gloating to captured foes. You desperately need to tell them your plans in order to rub it in. Source: Seed of the New Flesh, Type: Criminal Mastermind

Uncultured - Any skills, abilities, equipment or information chosen or gained must be approved by the GM and must be suitably low-brow for your character's social status and lifestyle. Source: Feng Shui Core Rules, Type: Everyman Hero
