Creatures & Critters

Introduction

A

Air Gust

No. Enc: 1d4 (3d6)
Alignment: Neutral
Movement: 60' (20')
Fly 120' (40')
Armor Class: 6
Hit Dice: 2

Attacks: 1 (air blast)
Damage: 1d8
Save: F2
Morale: 8
Hoard Class: none
XP: 47

These minor elementals from the plane of air resemble little whirlwinds. Although no more than a few feet in height and width, these tiny tornadoes can easily sent the bulkiest adventurer flying. Air gusts attack by hurling powerful blasts of air. Anyone hit by and air gust's blast is pushed back 60' and must test against DEX in order to remain standing. In addition to its air blast attack, an air gust possesses innate protection from missile attacks (identical to a Protection from Normal Missiles spell).

Aranea

No. Enc: 1 (1d4+2)
Alignment: Neutral
Movement: 150' (50')
Clim 60' (20')
b:
Armor Class: 6
Hit Dice: 4
Attacks: 1 (bite, web, or spells)
Damage: 1d6+poison
Save: F4
Morale: 9

Hoard Class: X
XP: 245

An aranea is an intelligent, shape changing spider with sorcerous powers. In its natural form, an aranea resembles a large spider, with a humpbacked body a little bigger than a human torso. It has fanged mandibles like a normal spider. Two small arms, each about 2 feet long, lie below the mandibles. Each arm has a hand with four many-jointed fingers and a double-jointed thumb. An aranea weighs about 150 pounds. The hump on its back houses its brain.

An aranea's bite is poisonous. Victims of a successful bite attack must save vs Poison or suffer an additional 1d6 points of damage.

An aranea may cast spells as a 3rd level magic-user (2 first level spells, 1 second level spell). Common spells employed by araneas include Charm Person, Detect Magic, Sleep, Light, Mirror Image, and Phantasmal Force.

In spider or hybrid form, an aranea may create and throw a web up to 50' (6/day). The ability produces effects identical to a Web spell.

Ananeas possess two alternate forms; humanoid and hybrid. In its humanoid form, the aranea cannot use its bite attack, web, or poison. In its hybrid form the aranea resembles a humanoid with fangs and spinnerets. In this form, the aranea retains its bite attack, webs, and poison, and can also wield weapons or wear armor. When in hybrid form, an aranea's speed is 90' (30').

Arcane Beetle

No. Enc: 1 (1d4)
Alignment: Neutral
Movement: 120' (40')
Armor Class: 4
Hit Dice: 5
Attacks: 1 (pincer)
Damage: 2d6
Save: M5
Morale: 7
Hoard Class: none

XP: 190

A gargantuan beetle with a carapace of mirror-like silver. Arcane Beetles are ideally suited as mounts for warring against powerful magic-users and other arcane spell-casters due to their innate abilities.

Any spell cast upon an arcane beetle, be it from spells cast or magic items, is immediately cast back at the wizard. Arcane beetles are not harmed by magic weapons. Mundane weapons inflict damage as usual.

Arcanix

No. Enc: 1d4
Alignment: Chaotic
Movement: 120 (40')
Armor Class: 7
Hit Dice: 3, 6, or 12
Attacks: 1 (weapon, spell, or special ability)
Damage: 1d6 or weapon
Save: M3, M6, or M12
Morale: 8
Hoard Class: VIII, XIV, or XVI
XP: 80, 820, or 2,800

Arcanix (also known as Spell-Stealers), resemble tall, gaunt humans with bluish skin and pointed ears. They are extraplanar creatures who foray into the mortal realms in their obsessive search for magic. They prize magical items above all else, but spell books and arcane lore (as well as spell casters themselves) are also sought to take back to their home plane.

There are three types of Arcanix; Arcanix Minor (3HD), Arcanix Major (6HD) and Arcanix Greater (12HD). If an Arcanix is encountered bearing a weapon, it is a near certainty that the weapon is magical in nature (the LL should base the weapon in accordance to the arcanix' Hoard Class). An arcanix performing a successful touch attack vs a spell caster (treat as an attack vs. an AC 9) may steal its HD worth of spell levels. Example: An Arcanix Minor (3HD) may steal a 3rd level spell from a magic-user, or three 1st level spells, or a 2nd and a 1st level spell. The spell-caster is allowed a saving throw vs. Spells to negate this effect. If the touch attack is successful (and the save fails) the stolen spells leave the magic-user's memory (until he can re-memorize them again), and the arcanix may use them as if he had studied them. The amount of times per day that an Arcanix may use this ability depends on the type of Arcanix; Minor 1/day, Major 3/day, Greater 6/day.

An arcanix possesses the following spell-like abilities; Detect Magic 3/day, Read Magic 3/day, Dispel Magic 2/day, Dimension Door 1/day. An arcanix may teleport to or from its home plane once (3HD), twice (6HD), or 3 times (12HD) per week.

Archon

|--------------|--|
| No. Enc: | 1d2 |
| Alignment: | Lawful |
| Movement: | 120' (40') |
| | Fly: 360' (120') |
| Armor Class: | -6 |
| Hit Dice: | 20 |
| Attacks: | Male: 3 (weapon) Female: 3 (2 gore, 1 breath) |
| Damage: | Male: 3d10 or weapon Female: 3d10/3d10/4d6 |
| Save: | C20 |
| Morale: | 11 |
| Hoard Class: | none |
| XP: | 4,250 |

Archons are celestials from a lawful-aligned plane. An archon's sole purpose is to oppose Chaos. Both male and female archons possess the bodies of giant, golden feathered eagles. Male archons possess the head, arms, and torso of a human male, while female archons possess no humanoid torso, instead they have a long, dragon-like neck and 3 heads (a human female head, flanked by 2 bull heads).

Archons may use spells like a 12th level cleric. Once per day, an archon may cast a Bolt of Purity. This spell acts as a Lightning Bolt spell. In addition, Bolt of Purity causes all victims to become lawful for 2d6 turns. Also once per day, an archon may create a Flaming Sword. The sword inflicts 4d6 damage. A Flaming Sword lasts for 3 turns.

In combat, males attack with weapons while females gore for 3d10 points of damage and may breath fire up to 10' for 4d6 points of damage.

Archons are immune to fire, poison, as well as clerical and arcane spells of level 1 to 4.

Armored Beast

|--------------|-----------------------|
| No. Enc: | 1 |
| Alignment: | Neutral |
| Movement: | 150' (50') |
| Armor Class: | 0 |
| Hit Dice: | 5 |
| Attacks: | 1 (horns or 2 hooves) |
| Damage: | 1d8 or 1d6/1d6 |
| Save: | F5 |
| Morale: | 9 |
| Hoard Class: | none |
| XP: | 200 |

This silvery quadruped resembles an armor-plated bull. Sheets of hard, silver armor seem to have been fused to the horned beast, offering unimaginable defensive resistance. If conditions allow it an armored beast will charge towards their foe and attack with their vicious armor plated horns (see LL rulebook: Charge).

Athach

|--------------|--------------------------------|
| No. Enc: | 1d3 (1d6) |
| Alignment: | Chaotic |
| Movement: | 180' (60') |
| Armor Class: | 0 |
| Hit Dice: | 14 |
| Attacks: | 4 (bite, tree stump, or stone) |
| Damage: | 2d10+poison, 2d12 or 2d12 |
| Save: | F14 |
| Morale: | 8 |
| Hoard Class: | XIV |
| XP: | 2,400 |

The athach is a hulking, misshapen biped. An adult stands some 18 feet tall and weighs about 4,500 pounds. Their malformed, humanoid bodies possess a third arm in the center of their chest.

Athaches attack with tree stumps, huge thrown stones, and by biting their opponents with their gnarled poisonous teeth.

An athach's bite is poisonous. A failed save vs Poison will result in the victim being helpless for 1d6 turns.

Avian

|--------------|---------------------------|
| No. Enc: | 1d4 (2d4) |
| Alignment: | Neutral |
| Movement: | 120' (40') |
| : | Fly 150' (50') |
| Armor Class: | 7 |
| Hit Dice: | 1 |
| Attacks: | 1 (spear or other weapon) |
| Damage: | 1d6 |
| Save: | F1 |
| Morale: | 9 |
| Hoard Class: | XVIII |
| XP: | 13 |

Avians stand 4' in height. Although humanoid in appearance, their bright plumage, curved beak, and large wings attest to their avian origins. They are greatly feared for their swooping spear attack. Reducing an avian to ½ hp will render it unable to take flight.

An avian in flight equipped with a spear can swoop down from above with such prowess that anyone acting after the avian's initiative is unable to engage it in hand-to-hand combat.

Azer

|--------------|-----------------------------|
| No. Enc: | 1d4 (2d6) |
| Alignment: | Neutral |
| Movement: | 60 (20') |
| Armor Class: | 0 |
| Hit Dice: | 4 |
| Attacks: | 1 (weapon) |
| Damage: | 1d6 or weapon + heat damage |
| Save: | F4 |
| Morale: | 10 |
| Hoard Class: | X |
| XP: | 135 |

Azers are dwarf-like beings native to the Elemental Plane of Fire. Similar in size and physique to dwarves, azers possess hair and beards of pure flame. Another similarity to dwarves is the azers love of gems. They wear kilts of brass, bronze, or copper, and favor spears and hammers in combat.

An azer's body is intensely hot. Its unarmed attacks deal an extra 1d6 of damage due to the heat radiated by the azers body. Metallic weapons also conduct this heat and receive the same bonus to damage. Azers are immune to fire and fire-based damage, but suffer twice the amount of damage from cold-based attacks.

Bag of Teeth

|--------------|-----------------|
| No. Enc: | 1 |
| Alignment: | Neutral |
| Movement: | 0 |
| Armor Class: | 9 |
| Hit Dice: | 1 |
| Attacks: | 1 (bite) |
| Damage: | 1d6 + 1hp/round |
| Save: | 0 Human |
| Morale: | 9 |
| Hoard Class: | none |
| XP: | 10 |

A bag of teeth is a deceptive looking little critter. At first glance, the creature looks like a pouch of coins. Its insides, seen when one opens the "pouch", resemble coins of gold. As one inserts his hand within the creature to retrieve the gold within, the critter razor-sharp teeth spring open around the pouches opening, and clamp down on the victim's wrist. The bite causes 1d6 points of damage, with 1 hp being lost for every subsequent round due to continuous bleeding.

Barghest

|--------------|---------------------|
| No. Enc: | 1 (1d4+2) |
| Alignment: | Chaotic |
| Movement: | 120' (40') |
| Armor Class: | 2 |
| Hit Dice: | 6 |
| Attacks: | 3 (2 claws, 1 bite) |
| Damage: | 1d4/1d4/1d6 |
| Save: | F5 |
| Morale: | 8 |
| Hoard Class: | none |
| XP: | 570 |

A barghest is a lupine fiend that can take the shape of a wolf or a goblin. In its natural form, it resembles a goblin-wolf hybrid with terrible jaws and sharp claws. A full-grown barghest is about 6 feet long and weighs 180 pounds. A barghest's eyes glow orange when the creature becomes excited.

A barghest may assume the shape of a goblin or a wolf (see LL rulebook for both goblin and wolf stats). It takes one round to change to or from a given shape. Also, should a barghest slay a humanoid opponent, it can feed on the corpse, devouring both flesh and life force. Doing so prevents the victim from ever being raised via Raise Dead and Resurrection and Wish have a 50% chance of being ineffective.

A barghest may cast the following spells at will; Haste and Levitate. Once per day it may cast Charm Monster and Dimension Door.

Bat, Monstrous

|--------------|----------------|
| No. Enc: | 1d4 (1d6) |
| Alignment: | Neutral |
| Movement: | Fly 180' (60') |
| : | |
| Armor Class: | 6 |
| Hit Dice: | 3 |
| Attacks: | 2 (claws) |
| Damage: | 1d4/1d4 |
| Save: | F3 |
| Morale: | 7 |
| Hoard Class: | none |
| XP: | 65 |

Enormous, horse-size bats. Monstrous bats are sometimes used as mounts by underground dwelling humanoids.

Once per combat, a monstrous bat may forgo attacking via its claws and instead target 1 foe with a sonic blast (Range: 70'/140'/210'). The target of the blast will suffer 2d6 points of damage and will be stunned and unable to act for 1d6 rounds. A successful save vs. Paralyze will half the effect.

Behir

|--------------|------------------|
| No. Enc: | 1 (1d2) |
| Alignment: | Chaotic |
| Movement: | 120 (40') |
| Armor Class: | 0 |
| Hit Dice: | 10 |
| Attacks: | 1 (bite or rake) |
| Damage: | 4d8 or 6d4 |
| Save: | F10 |
| Morale: | 10 |
| Hoard Class: | X |
| XP: | 1,700 |

The behir is a serpentine monster that can slither like a snake or use its dozen legs to move with considerable speed. A behir is about 40 feet long and weighs about 4,000 pounds. It can fold its limbs close to its long, narrow body and slither in snake fashion if it desires. The coloration of behirs ranges from ultramarine to deep blue with bands of gray-brown. The belly is pale blue.

A behir may attack by way of its powerful bite or by raking at its foe with 6 of its claws. Once every 10 rounds, a behir may discharge and electrical blast up to 20' which inflicts 7d6 points of damage (save vs. Breath Attacks halves the damage). On a natural 20, a behir may swallow its prey whole (see LL p.62).

Black Hunter (Darkling)

|--------------|---------------------|
| No. Enc: | 1d6 (3d6) |
| Alignment: | Chaotic |
| Movement: | 120' (40') |
| Armor Class: | 7 |
| Hit Dice: | 2 |
| Attacks: | 1 (knife or dagger) |
| Damage: | 1d4 |
| Save: | T2 |
| Morale: | 7 |
| Hoard Class: | VI |

|-----|----|
| XP: | 29 |
|-----|----|

Black hunters, or darklings, as they are sometimes called, are 4' tall cannibalistic humanoids. Darklings are jet black, hairless, and possess a wiry frame. Attacking a Black hunter in dim light incurs a -3 penalty to hit. Doing so in total darkness sees the penalty increase to -5. Darklings, for their part, see perfectly in darkness.

Darklings may use Darkness (reversed Light spell) twice per day.

Bladeling

|--------------|-----------------|
| No. Enc: | 1 (1d4) |
| Alignment: | Chaotic |
| Movement: | 120' (40') |
| Armor Class: | 5 |
| Hit Dice: | 3 |
| Attacks: | 2 (body blades) |
| Damage: | 1d8/1d8 |
| Save: | F3 |
| Morale: | 10 |
| Hoard Class: | XVIII |
| XP: | 50 |

An abominable crossing of man and steel, bladelings resemble humans whose bodies are covered in all manner of blades, be it knives for hands, spiked shoulder blades, or needles and razors protruding from the forearms. Every touch of a bladeling inflicts pain. Such abominations are not welcome in any civilized lands.

Blobs

Blobs are kin to slimes, jellies, puddings, and goos. Although there are various types of blobs (determined by color), all blobs share certain common characteristics. Physically, blobs stand around 2 to 3 feet in height and are roughly spherical in shape. Because of the gooey nature of their bodies, blobs take half damage from blunt weapons such as maces or hammers. Blobs damaged via edged or piercing weapons will expel a hazardous effect as the weapon pierces the blob's gooey skin. The exact nature of the effect caused by cutting into a blob is determined by the particular type of blob encountered.

It is interesting to note that blob types are divided according to color, and that these color types run parallel to those of dragons. This has lead scholars and wizards to believe that blobs may have been (accidentally?) created by dragons.

Damage: 1d6
Save: F3
Morale: 9
Hoard Class: IV
XP: 65

Blue (or lightning) blobs release a powerful electrical charge every time their bodies are pierced. This electrical blast immediately deals 2d4 points of damage to the bearer of the weapons which pierced the blob (no to hit and no save).

Blob (Black)

No. Enc: 1d6 (2d4)
Alignment: Chaotic
Movement: 60' (20')
Armor Class: 8
Hit Dice: 1+1
Attacks: 1 (slam)
Damage: 1d4
Save: F1
Morale: 9
Hoard Class: II
XP: 21

Black blobs, also called corrosive blobs, will expel an acidic goo when their skin is pierced via edged or missile weapons. In such instances, the edged or missile weapon dealing damage runs the risk of being destroyed (see Item Saving Throws, LL p.55).

Because of their coloring, when in dark and lightless environments, a black blob may surprise on 1-3.

Blob (Green)

No. Enc: 1d4 (1d6)
Alignment: Chaotic
Movement: 60' (20')
Armor Class: 7
Hit Dice: 2
Attacks: 1 (slam)
Damage: 1d6
Save: F2
Morale: 9
Hoard Class: III
XP: 29

When a green blob's (also known as poisonous blob) body is pierced, it expels a gaseous poison which affects all within a 30' radius. All those within the poison's area of effect must save vs Poison or suffer 1d6 points of damage and may not act on the following round. A successful save halves the damage and does not cost the victim his or her next round of action.

Blob (Blue)

No. Enc: 1d2 (1d4)
Alignment: Neutral
Movement: 60' (20')
Armor Class: 6
Hit Dice: 3
Attacks: 1 (slam)

Blob (Red)

No. Enc: 1 (1d2)
Alignment: Chaotic
Movement: 60' (20')
Armor Class: 5
Hit Dice: 4

Attacks: 2 (slam)
Damage: 1d4/1d4
Save: F4
Morale: 9
Hoard Class: V
XP: 135

As a red blob's (sometimes called a fire blob) body is pierced, it will expel a gas that instantly combusts as it comes into contact with air. All those engaged in melee combat with a red blob are afforded a DEX roll (see Ability Checks, LL p.55) in order to avoid the effects of the fiery blast. A failed roll means the combatant was caught in the blast, incurring 1d6 points of damage. There will be a 2 in 6 chance that the clothes (and other flammable ware) of those caught in the fiery blast will ignite, dealing a further 1d2 points of damage for 1d4 rounds (or until the fire is put out).

Blob (White)

No. Enc: 2d4 (2d6)
Alignment: Neutral
Movement: 60' (20')
Armor Class: 9
Hit Dice: 1
Attacks: 1 (slam)
Damage: 1d4
Save: F1
Morale: 9
Hoard Class: II
XP: 13

White blobs, or frost blobs, will encase the weapon that pierces or cuts its body in ice. A weapon so encased may be destroyed if used after this effect (see Item Saving Throws, LL p.55). Items left to thaw out for 1d6 hours return to normal.

Boar (Dwarven, War)

No. Enc: 1

Alignment: Neutral
Movement: 150' (50')
Armor Class: 5
Hit Dice: 3
Attacks: 1 (tusk)
Damage: 2d4, 3d4 with head-gear
Save: F3
Morale: 10
Hoard Class: none
XP: 50

There have long been rumors of domesticated boars being trained for war by the dwarves. Dwarven war-boars are used in the same manner as humans use war horses. Only the dwarves have perfected the technique required to domesticate and train these ferocious and wild beasts, and only dwarves (or the very rare halfling) may mount them. The dwarven war-boar presented here is assumed to be fully equipped with war-boar barding (a mixture of chain and scale mail), as well as horned head-gear to maximize the boar's natural tusk attack.

Like the war horse, a war-boar will not shy from combat. Also like the war horse, in close range both boar and rider may attack simultaneously.

Bomber Bird

No. Enc: 1d6 (2d6)
Alignment: Neutral
Movement: Fly 480' (160')
Armor Class: 8
Hit Dice: 1
Attacks: 1 (claws)
Damage: 1d4
Save: F1
Morale: 7
Hoard Class: none
XP: 13

Bomber birds resemble large, carnivorous turkeys with massive wing spans. Bomber birds are excellent and adept fliers and will always receive a +1 to initiative when in flight (when on the ground, bomber birds are slow and will always attack last in a combat round).

Bomber birds derive their names from their particular ability to produce eggs which explode upon impact. Bomber birds have learned to put this peculiar ability to good use when bringing down prey. A bomber bird in flight may produce an explosive egg which it will attempt to drop upon its prey. A roll to hit is required to hit the victim. A successful hit will inflict 1d6 points of damage to the victim, and 1d4 points of damage to all within 15' of the blast. A bomber bird may produce 1 explosive egg per combat.

Mundane Item: Explosive Eggs

It is quite conceivable that crafty adventurers may seek to capture a pair of bomber birds in order to produce explosive eggs for their own personal use. A bomber bird may produce 1 explosive eggs per month and the egg produced will retain its explosive properties for 1d6 months (after which, it becomes useless).

Damage: 1d6 + 1d4 to all within 15' of the blast. Range: 15'/30'/45' remains. As potential victims draw closer, its animate nature is revealed, with skeletal parts springing to life. The skeletal remains and pieces that make up the mound will attempt to claw, kick, or bite the victim(s).

Much like the treacherous treasure, a bone mound is actually a slime-like creature which exudes a sticky film from its pores. This adhesive film picks up osseous martial which sticks to the slime-beast's blob-like form, giving it the appearance of a pile of bones.

This bone-collecting slime possesses a secondary ability which makes it a truly dangerous foe. In addition to the adhesive film it exudes, the bone mound possess an innate spell-like ability which acts in a similar manner to an Animate Dead spell. The effects of this spell-like ability extend up to 2' away from the creature's body. The creature may animate 1d6 boney remains that have adhered to it. Each of the animated parts may attack once, inflicting 1d4 points of damage. A cleric may turn these newly living bits of skeletal remains as if they were 1 HD Undead. The bone mound may shift its animate dead power from one set of boney remains to another at any time.

Chevls are shape shifting creatures. They may assume either the form of a powerful centaur or an intelligent horse. In either form, chevls are immune to mundane weapons and may only be harmed by silver or magic weapons.

Chevls concern themselves with the wealfare of all horses, especially those in the care of humans or demihumans. In either centaur or horse form, chevls may communicate with horses and command them to do their bidding. Once per day, a cheval may summon 1d4 war horses which will appear in 1d6 rounds (see Horse, War, LL p.82).

Clawed Fiend

No. Enc: 1d6 (3d6)
 Alignment: Chaotic

Clawed fiends are 5' tall, pale green humanoids. Their legs are short stumps and their hairless facial feature carry a distinctive frog-like cast (large, bulbous eyes, wide mouth). This creature is so named because of its absurdly long arms which end in long, viciously sharp claws. The arms themselves extend to 5', with the claws reaching 2 to 3 feet. With such a long range, the clawed fiend isn't limited to attacking foes directly in front of it, but may also attack those up to 8' away. Although clawed fiends can inflict devastating damage on their foes by way of their vicious claws, they are slow critters, and are penalized with a -1 to initiative rolls. Without the digits required for fine manipulation, clawed fiends are unable to employ weapons of any kind.

When resting or lying in wait, these creatures are almost impossible to distinguish from common black cloaks (the cloaker's ivory claws look very much like bone clasps). Only when it unfurls does the horrific nature of the creature become apparent. Once unfurled, its white underside displays a fully visible face, with burning red eyes, and fang filled mouth. A whip like tail unfurls as the cloaker reveals itself, which it puts to use in combat. Cloakers are apt fliers, possessing a wingspan of about 8 feet. It weighs about 100 pounds.

In combat, cloakers prefer to spring upon an opponent, engulfing it in the folds of its body, thus inflicting 1d4 + victim's AC points of damage/round. In such a situation, a cloaker will fend off anyone coming to the victim's aid by way of its 2 tail attacks. Any damage done to the cloaker when it has a prey engulfed will result in the cloaker taking half the damage inflicted and the engulfed prey taking the remaining half.

Cloakers can emit a sub-sonic moan which causes varying effects depending on the frequency of the moan. Moaning cloakers may not moan and bite on the same round.

The first frequency causes all those within 80' to attack with a -2 penalty. Furthermore, those subjected to this first frequency moan for 6 consecutive rounds are forced into a trance and may neither attack or defend themselves.

The second frequency moan acts as a Confusion spell.

The third frequency affects those within a 30' X 20' conical area. Anyone caught in this area must save vs Poison or suffer nausea and weakness lasting 1d4+1 rounds.

The fourth intensity of moaning acts as a Hold Person spell, affecting 1 person within 30' for 5 rounds.

Cloakers have the innate ability to manipulate shadows. This power can be used in the following ways; A cloaker may use the ability to obscure an opponents vision thus giving the opponent a -2 to hit. It may also use this ability to create forms out of the shadows resembling cloakers. This is similar to a Mirror Image spell and creates 1d4+2 duplicate cloakers.

A Light spell cast at the cloaker will blind it and prevent it from using shadow shifting abilities.

Above these are two longer arms ending in massive pincers which the crabmen use in combat. Crabmen are unable to wield weapons. If severed, a crabman's limbs will grow back in 1d4 weeks.

On a successful attack, a crab-man may forgo inflicting damage in exchange for pinning their victim in the grasp of their vice-like pincers. Foes trapped within the crab-man's grasp are immobilized. A successful STR check (see Ability Checks, LL p.55) on the part of the pinned victim will release him from the pincer. A crab-man holding a victim in the grasp of its pincer will usually use the second pincer to inflict damage upon his immobilized foe. A victim so pinned does not receive any bonus to AC from DEX.

In addition to attacking via tooth and claw, a draconic basilisk may spit acid up to 30' away for 4d6 points of damage (a successful save versus Breath Attacks halves the result). A draconic basilisk may use its breath weapon 3 times per day. A draconic basilisk likewise possesses the petrifying gaze of its basilisk parent. Anyone within 20' meeting a draconic basilisk's gaze runs the risk of being turned to stone. Attacking a draconic basilisk while avoiding its gaze incurs a penalty of -4 to hit. Dragolems are able to see the invisible and 3 times per day they may breath a poisonous cloud (20'X20'X20'). The victim of the poisonous cloud must make a successful save vs. Breath Attacks or die.

Dragons (Jewel)

Jewel dragons are similar to their standard dragon counterparts with regards to size, attacks, terrain, spells, treasure, etc. In fact, each type of jeweled dragon is a subtype of one of the standard dragons (White, Black Green, Blue or Red). For a jewel dragon of a particular type, use the statistics of the corresponding standard dragon (Example; a crystal dragon would use the statistics of the white dragon).

At distances greater than 120', jewel dragons are usually mistaken for their standard counterparts (a jade dragon would appear to be a green dragon at such a distance). At closer distances, the shimmering scales of the jewel dragon will reveal its jewel-theme origin.

Jewel dragons differ from their standard counterparts in regards to breath attacks. In addition to using the breath attack associated with their standard dragon counterpart, jewel dragons also possess an additional type of breath attack proper to their jewel type. Jewel dragons may decide to use either of the two in combat.

Dragons (Jewel): Breath Attack

Crystal (crystal): On a failed saving throw, in addition to taking full damage, all the non-living items carried by the victim are turned to crystal. A successful save vs Breath Attacks results in 1/2 the damage and items are unaffected. Weapons turned to crystal have a 1-5 in 6 chance of breaking upon a successful hit (yet still inflicts damage before being destroyed). A Stone to Flesh spell may be used to revert items turned into crystal back to their original state.

Onyx (darkness): On a failed saving throw, the victim takes full damage from the breath attack, and a Darkness spell (see Light (reversible), LL p.23) appears, centered on the victim. The darkness moves with the victim and lasts 1 round/dragons HD. The onyx dragon is able to see through the cast darkness. The darkness may be removed by either a Light or a Dispel Magic spell. A successful save negates the darkness and halves the damage inflicted.

Jade (disease): A failed save vs Breath Attacks indicated that full damage was taken by the diseased cloud. Also, all items carried by the victim become infected with a rotting disease which will render the items useless in 1d6 rounds. A Cure Disease spell cast on the affected items will halt the rotting. The disease will also inflict 1 point of damage per round upon the victim. This may only be cured via a Cure Disease spell (no other healing spells or items will cure the poison). A successful save will result in half the damage being taken and will negate the effects of the poison.

Sapphire (vaporize): A person hit by a vaporizing breath attack who fails his save takes full damage. In addition, both the victim, as well as all items carried, are turned to gaseous vapor for 1 turn per dragon's HD. In this state, the victim may move 60' (20'), but is unable to affect any solid matter, nor may the victim Speak or make any kind of noise. Vaporized items and creature appear to be invisible and are immune to most attacks. A Dispel Magic can restore both victim and items back to normal form. A successful save vs Breath Attacks means only 1/2 damage was taken, and the victim remains in his solid state.

Ruby (Fire & Melt): On a successful save vs Breath Attacks, the victim suffers half the the normal damage. On a failed save, full damage is taken. In addition, all items carried begin to melt. The number of rounds it takes for the melting items to be rendered useless depends on the material.

| Material | Rounds to Destroy |

| Leather | 1 round |
| Non-metal items | 2 rounds |
| Non-magical metal items | 3 rounds |

A drakeling in its natural form looks much like a small dragon, without front legs, and with small wings which allow it to slowly fly for up to 1 hour. However, drakelings are most likely encountered in human or demihuman form. Unlike their dragon counterparts, drakelings do not have breath weapons, nor do they cast spells. Drakelings are immune to all spells of up to 4th level, but may suppress this immunity for 1 round in order to receive beneficial spells.

A drakeling may polymorph into a humanoid type (and back) as often as it wishes. The humanoid form the drakeling takes is determined by the type of drakeling. In humanoid form, a drakeling may use any weapon allowed to thieves. Also, in humanoid form, a drakeling possesses all special abilities of a 5th level thief.

Drakeling (common): These are the most common type of drakelings. The tan-colored drakelings can assume the shape of humans and genuinely enjoy human company. Some have been known to actually join thieves' guilds, raising up through the ranks to attain lofty positions.

Frost-Drakeling: These white drakelings shun daylight, preferring underground, icy caverns. Frost-drakelings will assume the form of either dwarves or gnomes and can sometimes be found living among them, deep underground.

Forest-Drakeling: These dark green drakelings will take either elvin or halfling form and can sometimes be discovered amidst elvin or halfling communities.

Elemental Drakeling: There are 4 sub-types of elemental drakelings: air (blue), earth (brown), fire (red), and water (green). In addition to the special abilities shared with other drakelings, elemental drakelings are also immune to both normal and silver weapons.

They usually reside on the elemental planes and are rarely found on the material plane. On the Prime Material plane, elemental drakelings assume the form of giants. In their giant humanoid form they do not gain the ability to throw boulders and rocks, and their damage in melee combat is limited to 2d6. An air drakeling will assume the form of a cloud giant, an earth drakeling the form of a stone giant, a fire drakeling can take the shape of a fire giant, and a water drakeling that of a storm giant (see Giants, LL p.76). On their home plane, elemental drakelings do not assume giant form but take the form of 8HD elementals of the appropriate type.

An ethereal shade resembles a mass of black, wispy smoke which billows and contracts as it floats about. Ethereal Shades are undead and thus affected by a cleric's Turn Undead ability. At night, or in darkness, it becomes nearly invisible. The LL may require a WIS check to spot an ethereal shade in such conditions. A failed check means those battling the ethereal shade must do so at a -4 penalty to Hit. The ethereal shade inflicts damage by use of its icy touch.

Ethereal Shades may only be harmed by spells or magic items.

By wrapping itself around a victims head, the ethereal shade may momentarily distract and befuddle its foe. The effects are similar to a Confusion spell and last as long as the ethereal shade remains wrapped around the victim's head.

Nearly identical to skeletons in appearance, Exploding bones differ in coloring from their more mundane counterparts. Exploding Bones are a bright pulsating red, their coloring becoming brighter and pulsating faster as they near death and the inevitable explosion which gives them their name.

When these skeletal foes reach 0 hit points their bodies explode sending a shower of jagged bones which hit all within a 10' radius. All within this radius must save versus Petrify or suffer 1d6 points of damage. Like their skeletal kin, exploding bones are immune to Charm and Sleep spells.

Firbolgs are human looking giants, standing 10 to 11 feet in height, of considerable physical might coupled with innate magic abilities.

In combat, firbolgs use double sized weapons which, if used two-handedly, inflicts double the damage. A firbolg with one free hand is able to "bat away" any incoming missile weapons on a roll of 1 to 15 on a d20. This may be done twice per round.

Firbolgs also possess innate spell-like powers which may be used at will, once per day. These spell-like abilities include; Detect Magic, Confusion, Polymorph Self, and Hallucinatory Terrain.

Firbolgs also possess the ability to reduce their size to human proportions. This ability may be used at will.

Floating skulls are usually raised from the corpses of beheading victims. A floating skull does not move itself along the ground but floats through the air. The floating skull may float both horizontally or vertically at it's listed Movement.

A floating skull possesses the following spell-like abilities; Levitate (at will), Detect Invisible (at will), Grasping Hand (2/day), Invisible Stalker (1/day).

Once per day a Floating Skull may emit a blood curdling wail that paralyzes all within 30' with fear for 2d6 rounds (save vs. Petrify or Paralyze negates).

A furious fountain resembles a large anthropomorphic stone fountain, usually spraying a jet of water from its mouth. These creatures are similar to golems, but the animating spirit within is an imprisoned water elemental. When standing still, a furious fountain is indistinguishable from any ordinary fountain.

A furious fountain may attack with its stony fists, or with a jet of water. The animate fountain can spew out a violent stream of water at a range of 200', three times per day. The target suffers 3d10 points of damage, and is pushed back the full remaining distance of the jet's range (a successful save vs Breath Attacks halves both the damage and the distance pushed back). A second roll (ability check vs DEX) allows the victim to remain standing and avoid dropping any items held in hand (see Ability Checks, LL p.55).

Like golems, furious fountains are unaffected by non-magical weapons, as well as Hold, Charm, and Sleep spells. These magical creatures can only be affected by spells that specifically target water or stone, with appropriate results to be determined by the LL. As a guideline, the fountain will lose, at most, 4d10 hit points from such spells; Part Water would be an example of a spell that might inflict such damage.

Hounds of Chronos, also known as temporal dogs, are canine creatures from the Plane of Time. They possess the innate ability to manipulate time in a limited manner. Temporal dogs hunt in packs that usually consist of 2 to 8 hounds. A Hound of Chronos will always know where, temporally, the other members of his pack are.

Hounds of Chronos possess the ability to move forward in time. Twice per day, a Hound of Chronos may “jump” forward in time. This allows the hound to disappear from the present and reappear 1d4 rounds later. The hounds use this ability in conjunction with surprise to get the drop on their prey. As they re-materialize 1 to 4 rounds into the future, the temporal dog’s prey has a chance of being surprised (1-2 on 1d6).

Once per day, a Hound of Chronos may “travel back” in time to a time where it was healthier. It then instantly travels back to the “present”, with full HP.

Ice giants attack with huge, club-like icicles and are immune to any form of cold, be it mundane or magical. Fire-based damage does twice the amount of damage to ice giants. Like their frost giant kin, ice giants likewise keep wolf or polar bear guards (see Frost Giant; LL p.76).

Krakens are enormous, giant squids of increadable intelligence. A kraken's tentacles and head have an AC of 5. The rest of its body is protected by a hard exterior shell affording it an AC rating of 0. A kraken may move itself by swimming forward at a rate of 30' or by jetting backwards at a rate of 210'.

A kraken will attack with its two clawed tentacles, 1d3 + 3 normal tentacles, and bite from its powerful beak-like mouth. 20 points of damage inflicted upon a tentacle will sever it. If 4 or more tentacles are severed, the beast will most likely retreat. While retreating, the kraken will dispell an ink cloud that covers a 80' X 80' X 120' area. All those caught in the ink cloud suffer 1d4 points of damage per round. The poisonous ink dissipates in 1d6 rounds. Krakens may likewise use their tentacles to grasp and drag a water-born vessel beneath the water (for vessels of up to 60'). Larger vessels will simply be dragged to a halt and must be sufficiently damaged before being dragged under.

Krakens also possess a number of spell-like abilities which they may use at will, up to 3 times per day. These spell-like abilities include; Conjure Animals (limited to fish), Control Weather, Lower Water, and Part Water.

Lashers hate their goblin kin to such a degree that they will halt in their attack of an adventuring party to engage any nearby goblins.

Like their goblinoid kin, lashers suffer a -1 penalty to attacks when in daylight and possess infravision extending to 90'. Because of the flexible nature of a lasher's tentacles, attacks by lashers negate any shield bonus the victim may have.

With regards to lasher kings and accompanying bodyguards, as well as Hoard found in lair, refer to the Goblin entry (LL p.78).

Mirror fiends inhabit mirrors. They appear as emotionless humans staring out of the reflective surface to the world beyond. If a mirror fiend locks his gaze with someone looking into the mirror, the victim must make a successful saving throw vs Petrify/Paralyze or have his soul sucked into the mirror, while his body remains motionlessly staring at himself in the mirror. While within the mirror, the victim's actions are controlled by his immobilized self as the mirror fiend attacks the victim's mirror-self. The victim's mirror-self suffers -4 to his first attack due to being unfamiliar with the mirror-image environment, but the penalty is reduced by 1 in each subsequent round. Should the immobilized victim's gaze be moved away from his mirror-self, he will no longer be able to control his movements within the mirror, and the mirror-self will become a motionless target for the mirror fiend. Slaying the mirror fiend will restore the victim's soul to his body, but shattering the mirror will forever trap the soul within the mirror.

Mirror fiends are immune to attacks from normal weapons, and are immune to spells of level 1 to 3. Weapons used from outside will likely shatter the mirror, and spells used from the outside will reflect back upon the caster rather than enter the mirror-realm.

A 12' bulbous body resting atop tiny legs, a monstrous mouth is made up almost entirely of a huge, gaping maw equipped with rows upon rows of sharp, pointed teeth. Topping the strange creature, two short eye-stalks allow it to see its prey, even in total darkness.

A monstrous mouth may attack its victims via its devastating bite. Other abilities help this aberrant critter defeat prey. Its two eye-stalks may each cause a potential prey to fall into a deep slumber. This effect is identical to a magic-user's Sleep spell. Each eye-stalk may do so 1/day.

Another even stranger ability is the monstrous mouth's capacity to inhale with such force that a target, up to 30' away, may be sucked into the dreaded, toothy maw of the critter. A successful attack roll by the creature, followed by a failed save vs Breath Attacks on the part of the victim, will result in the victim being "sucked" into the creature's mouth. Once sucked in, the monstrous mouth constricts its interior to pin the victim, suffocating him in 1d4+2 round. A successful STR check is required to break free of the monstrous mouth (see Ability Checks, LL p.55).

Each successful hit by a mud man's hurled mud will reduce a victim's movement rate by 1/3. Three such successful hits will thus immobilize the victim. A bane to magic-users and minstrels, his odd creature derives its name as much from its silent means of movement as it does from its peculiar silencing ability. In appearance, a quiet floater resembles a mass of wispy black smoke which floats about, occupying an area of 40 square feet. Within the area this creature occupies, all sound is silenced, making communicating or spell-casting impossible (see Spell Casting Constraints; LL p.19). Those caught within a quiet floater have an increased chance of being surprised (1-4 on 1d6).

In addition, quiet floaters may only be harmed by magic items and spells. Because quiet floaters are physically incapable of inflicting harm, they tend to rely on others to fulfill the offensive role in combat.

Saurials are part giant, part lizard-men. They stand 15' in height and possess bodies covered in tough scales. Their long, powerful tail is used in concert with weapon attacks in combat. A saurial's tail may be used to attack any foes within melee range regardless of the foe's position relative to the saurial (front, flanking, or behind). Saurials do not throw boulders. Any magic that affects giants, lizard-men, or reptiles, will also affect saurials.

Shadow Kin

Hailing from the Shadow Plane, the dreaded Shadow-Kin will sometimes foray into the Prime Material Plane through a shadow-gate (a means of travel from one plane to the other through a set of identical shadows), or more rarely, by a Shadow-Lord's summons (see Shadow-Lord and Summon Shadow-Lord).

Shadow-gates being fickle in nature, many Shadow-Kin find themselves trapped upon the Prime Material Plane after one of the two identical plane-traveling shadows change (due to a change in light source) or disappears completely (due to a sudden absence of light or an object being moved so that it no longer casts the same shadow), thus severing the shadow-gate.

Shadow-Kin found upon the Prime Material Plane fall into one of 3 types; Shadow-Walkers, Shadow-Lurkers, and Shadow-Lords.

Shadow-Walkers and Shadow-Lurkers beholden to the same Shadow-Lord are known as a Veiled Drove. A Veiled Drove, though frightening to behold, is rare on the Prime Material Plane least a foolish sorcerer bungles a Summon Shadow

Lord spell. Penumbral Packs are much more commonly encountered, and usually consists of 2 to 12 Shadow-Walkers led by a Shadow-Lurker. Although a Penumbral Pack is more common upon the Prime Material Plane than a full Veiled Drove, it is still less encountered than an Umbral Gathering. An Umbral Gathering consists of 2 to 12 Shadow-Walkers beholden to the same Shadow-Lurker and Shadow-Lord. A Fourth social structure, a Gloomings, has emerged and is only found upon the Prime Material Plane. Trapped upon an unfamiliar plane, the clannish Shadow-Kin have begun to band together regardless of past affiliation to a Drove. The incessant wars between various Drovers are put aside, and Gloomings are formed to hunt for a suitable shadow which might belong to a shadow-gate pair, and the way back to (and forth from) the Shadow-Plane.

Shadow-lords lead a Veiled Drove and act as elemental lords of the Shadow Plane. Shadow lords possess all the abilities possessed by their lesser kin (see Shadow Lurker; teleportation, silent scream). In addition, they also possess the ability to summon their Penumbra Pack which will appear within 1d6 rounds of the summons. They are similar in appearance to both shadow-walkers and shadow lurkers, if somewhat taller and thinner.

New Magic-User Spell: Conjure Shadow Lord

Conjure Shadow Lord

Level: 5

Duration: Permanent (until dispelled)

Range: 240'

The caster summons a shadow lord from the shadow plane, and binds it to his commands. The shadow lord obeys the caster only for as long as the caster concentrates on it; and when the caster ceases to concentrate, even for a moment, the shadow lord is released and will first summon its Penumbra Pack before engaging the spell-caster in combat.

Although a shadow lord under the command of a magic-user may be ordered to summon its Penumbra Pack, the shadow walkers and shadow lurker rarely obey orders from a bound shadow lord and will attempt to free the shadow lord by attacking the controlling magic-user.

Midnight-black coloring affords them an advantage when engaged in combat under dimly lit or near dark conditions. Attacking a shadow-lurker in dim lighting incurs a -2 penalty to Hit. Doing so in near total darkness increases the penalty to -4.

Although similar in appearance to shadow walkers, none can mistake the presence of a shadow-lurker within a Penumbra Pack. Their very presence exudes an aura of despair which may be concentrated and focused, to manifest itself as a dreaded silent scream. Twice per day a shadow lurker may focus the despairing aura which clings to it into a silent scream. Those within ear-shot of the voiceless wail must make a saving throw vs. Paralyze to mitigate the despairing effects of the silent scream. A failed saving throw results in the victim succumbing to total despair, rendering him inoperative. A successful saving throw reduces the effects to a -2 penalty to hit while the victim struggles with an overwhelming sense of despair. The effects of both a successful and failed save last 1d6+3 rounds. LLs may allow targets of a silent scream a save each round of inactivity to regain their bearings.

Like their lesser kin, shadow lurkers possess an innate ability to teleport by entering one shadow and exiting from another. This ability is identical to the 4th level magic-user spell Dimension Door with the added requirement that the shadow lurker must both enter and exit within shadows.

Snail men are bloated humanoids who possess a bulbous coiled shell upon their backs. When the need arises, snail men are able to retract arms, legs, and head within the protective confine of their shell. When completely tucked into its shell, or when resolving attacks from behind, a snail man's AC is increased from 5 to 3.

Instead of eyes, snail men possess two eye-stalks which jut out from the top of their heads. These eye-stalks grant snail men 360 degree vision, allowing them to see things from all angles. Although snail men may use any weapons, they prefer small weapons such as daggers or slings which can easily be tucked into their shell. Snail men are notoriously slow creatures and always attack last in a round.

Sonic prowlers resemble a wave of shimmering heat occupying a 12' square area. Although perceptible to the attentive adventurer, inattentive adventures may easily be surprised by the near invisible creature's presence.

Sonic prowlers are immune to physical and magical attacks (except magically created silence). The only way to harm a sonic prowler is by attacking it with sound and/or noises. Loud noises will inflict 1d4 points of damage, very loud noises will inflict 2d4 points of damage, and deafening noises inflict 3d4 points of damage (no to Hit roll required). Any magical silence will instantly kill a sonic prowler.

Because a sonic prowler attacks via sound, its victim's are treated as having an AC of 9 (unarmored), regardless of armor worn. Magical armor may apply its bonus to the victim's unarmored AC (for example, a character wearing a magical chain mail +1 will be treated as having an AC of 8 against a sonic prowler's sonic blast).

These tiny critters are often used by wizards and mages to subtly deplete an arcane foe's magical arsenal, covertly disarming the magic-user of his magical might. If a sorcery leech attaches itself to a wizard, it will slowly siphon off the spells pressed into the magic-user's mind. For each round a sorcery leech remains attached to a magic-user, it may deplete 1 level worth of memorized spell (a sorcery leech attached for 3 rounds may siphon a 3rd level spell). The damage inflicted by the leech's siphoning is so negligible that the wizard is usually unaware that something is amiss until he attempts to cast a siphoned spell.

By using two of its tentacles, a swapper may target two sentient beings for a "swap" instead of performing a normal attack. The two targets must be within range of two tentacles (within 34' of each other) and must be successfully hit. If both targets are hit, they effectively swap bodies. Each target will thus assume all the characteristics (stats) of the other. This effect lasts for 1d6 days. If only 1 target is hit by the swapper, the hit target is stunned and unable to act (for 1d6 rounds). Should one of two swapped targets die, the remaining target will be forced to live out the remainder of its life with the new characteristics of its swapping partner. Resurrecting the deceased nullifies this effect.

In play, a tentacled thing is treated as multiple creatures. Stats are given for both the creatures main body, as well as for each of the critter's tentacles. Destroying the main body will also destroy any remaining living tentacles. The number of tentacles such a beast possesses is determined by the age of the beast. Ancient tentacled things possess 2d6 tentacles, while primeval tentacled things usually possess 3d6 (or more). An even older breed is said to exist which possesses tentacles endowed with regenerative capabilities (each healing 1hp/round. Increase XP to 29).

A wandering hole is a creature of anti-matter. In its expanded form, it resembles a 10'X10' hole running 20' to 50' deep (1d4 + 1 X 10). The creature possesses the capacity to constrict its anti-mass to a 1/4" square. Contracting itself from a 10'X10' square to a 1/4"X1/4" square takes 2 to 5 rounds (1d4+1). Expanding its form back to 10'X10' takes 1 round.

The most common tactic used by wandering holes is to constrict themselves to their smallest size, then, as an adventurer walks above, the wandering hole expands, sending the victim plummeting down its depth. The wandering hole then compresses itself anew to crush the hapless victim. Victims of this tactic always run the risk of being surprised (1-3 on 6). Victims who find themselves within the depths of a wandering hole have but 2 to 5 rounds to get themselves out before the contracting anti-matter critter crushes them. On the last round, the constricting wandering hole crushes the victim to death.

Wandering holes may be damaged, but only by spells or magic weapons and items. Upon death, a wandering hole returns to its expanded size of 10'X10'.
