

MEMOS CENSORED BY THE D.E.O.

PHYSICAL POWERS

[Radar Sense - Vampirism]

MEMO

Subject: Radar Sense

Excerpt from Field Report: I use my H-Dial and suddenly everything goes black. I feel around my face and I don't have any eyes! Sockamagee! How am I supposed to fight crime with no eyes? Then I realize I have two antennae sticking out of my forehead. I concentrate on them, I hear a little crackling sound, and suddenly I'm getting outlines of the buildings around me. I've got radar! Wow!

Note: Remark by Bobby Reed, "Radar-Sonar Man".

MEMO

Subject: Shapechanging

Agent: Operative 367

Excerpt from Metropolis observation files: We are fairly certain that the Martian Manhunter is not Morgan Edge, Lucius Fox or historian Helena Sandsmark. Surveillance continues on Gregory Reed and S.C.U. Inspector Margaret Sawyer.

MEMO

Subject: Superattributes

Agent: Operative 4182

Excerpt from Field Report: You never get used to him, you know. It was a charity event, at least until yet another thinly veiled LexCorp attempt to kill him failed miserably. He picked up a tank. With one finger. Then he picked up another one, same way. Then he started juggling them with one hand. When the robot attacked him, he actually took the time to put the tanks down gently before putting the robot into some sort of wrestling hold. He had the time. He didn't want to damage it, you see, until he was sure that it was a robot and not a manned hardsuit. He had the thing disabled before I could even get down to the field. Not that people were running or screaming or anything—they were just trying to get closer. They knew that they'd be okay. They don't call him Superman for nothing, that's for sure. I just wish there'd been something to cuff besides a busted drone.

MEMO

Subject: Superbreath

Excerpt from the files of the C.B.I., predecessor to the D.E.O.: Three demons were found on the top of the Daily Planet building, covered in a thin layer of ice. Superman's involvement is suspected.

MEMO

Subject: Suspended Animation

Interviewee: Far-Out Man, sole known survivor of the Justice Experience

Excerpt from Interview: One heck of a way to travel through time, let me tell you. What happened to Dr. Trapp?

MEMO

Subject: Suspended Animation

Excerpt from S.T.A.R. Labs Report: Subject was found in a sealed chamber three hundred feet below the peak of Mount Bridwell. Subject appears to be a hominid with reptilian features. Garments, tools, and a possible weapon prove intelligence. Carbon dating of the chamber gives an age of 1.75 million years. Invasive analysis of the subject has proven impossible due to apparent invulnerability of the body and possessions. However, passive analysis has shown that the subject is alive. Minute movements have occurred suggesting the subject is rolling over on his side. Computer projections suggest subject will take 47,300 years to complete the roll.

MEMO

Subject: Sustenance

Interviewee: Jay Garrick (see file: Flash I)

Excerpt from S.T.A.R. Labs investigation into the “Speed Force”: Naw, we speedsters don't need to eat much, most times. It's got something to do with the way the power works—this Speed Force business that Wally's discovered. There's an automatic compensation that keeps us from starving to death in a few seconds. Wish I knew how it worked.

MEMO

Subject: Vampirism

Agent: Operative 367

Excerpt from Field Report: “Aw, geez, I'm not gonna turn into some wannabe goth, am I?”

Note: Agent was assaulted by a metahuman with life-draining capabilities. Said operative has thus far displayed no desire to wear white makeup or black lace.
