INTRODUCTION

Welcome to Palace of Pain's Pleasures, an adventure for the Guildmasters' Guide to Ravnica. This adventure is designed to follow the introductory adventure Off to a Weird Start, allowing the characters from that adventure to continue their efforts to solve a compelling mystery.

This adventure takes place on Tin Street. As described in the Guildmasters' Guide to Ravnica, "Tin Street is the longest thoroughfare in the city, a vital center of trade, and a hub of activity day and night. In addition to its shopping attractions, Tin Street is also a popular spot for nightlife, with its many restaurants and theaters. Much of the street runs through the western part of Precinct Four, and other parts are claimed by goblin gangs. The prominent presence of Boros soldiers along the length of Tin Street helps the populace feel safer, but the threat of rubblebelt raiders and goblin thieves remains."

As such, there is an opportunity for the Dungeon Master to explore the environment of Tin Street, making the experience of tracking the Palace a significant and flavorful portion of the adventure. Searching for clues about the Palace's current location can cause the party to cross paths with Boros soldiers, goblins, or any number of rivals and threats visiting the numerous attractions and shops on Tin Street. Some options for such encounters are included herein, but the majority of the following content is devoted to fleshing out the Palace and its occupants as well as forwarding the plot introduced in Off to a Weird Start. While this adventure is designed for a party of three to five characters of 2nd or 3rd Level, the Dungeon Master can easily scale the adventure up by adding additional enemies or increasing the hit points and damage output of the listed antagonists.

ADVENTURE BACKGROUND

This adventure begins in media res. The inciting incident, a galvanice weird going berserk in an Izzet Laboratory and wreaking havoc on its way out, has caught the attention of the characters. If the adventurers played through the events of Off to a Weird Start, they have been tasked to track the missing galvanice weird by Bellov, the Izzet Supervisor of the laboratory the weird escaped from. Characters who did not play through Off to a Weird Start could become embroiled in the plot in a number of ways, detailed in the Adventure Hooks section.

Whatever brings the adventurers into this story, the basic goal is the same: investigate the erratic behavior and subsequent abduction of the galvanice weird by the Cult of Rakdos.

The galvanice weird's violent behavior targeting the Rakdos performers of the Palace of Pain's Pleasures is no anomaly or accident. A Dimir spy named Rogad Nar gained access to the weird by impersonating an Izzet researcher. Rogad implanted a mental command in the weird, compelling it to violently escape and pursue the Palace. Rogad had gathered intelligence regarding the Palace's schedule on Tin Street and decided to use the galvanice weird at Bellov's Laboratory to disrupt and distract the performers at the Palace, allowing him to sneak aboard. While aboard, Rogad stole a personal item from the Palace's star performer, a Simic hybrid named Ophyira.

The objective of this adventure is simple: to locate the Palace, investigate the activities of the galvanice weird, and, if possible, return the weird to Bellov's Laboratory. Once this objective is complete the party may consider their work here done and move on to other pursuits. However, if the party digs deeper and discovers the involvement and motives of Rogad Nar, they may continue to pursue that lead in The Felicity Triskelion, coming soon to DMs Guild. Options for both outcomes are provided at the end of this adventure.

ADVENTURE HOOKS

There are a number of ways that the characters might become involved in the action of this adventure. Those who are following the events of Off to a Weird Start should have all the hooks they need, but characters beginning with this story may need additional hooks to get involved. The table below offers a number of potential hooks for members of each Guild. The DM may choose to use multiple hooks, especially if the party begins play as members of different Guilds. Alternatively, the DM may choose to create their own hooks using this table as inspiration.

ADVENTURE HOOKS BY GUILD

Orzhov Syndicate

2. One of the Advokists in the district seems very concerned about this situation (he's been jumping at shadows for weeks.)

Cult of Rakdos

1. A rival star performer heard that the Palace has acquired a strange new attraction. They want you to find out what it is.
2. The Rakdos has a personal relationship with Bellov. This could be a business relationship or a personal one. They are inclined to try and help him reclaim his weird.

Selesnya Conclave

1. This is causing too much destruction, they need more information on the Weird, so it can be stopped.
2. The character has a personal connection (childhood friend, lover, relative) who works at the lab.

Simic Combine

1. The Izzet can't be left alone for five seconds without breaking the Holdfast principle, someone needs to calm these waters down.
2. You have been informed that this Rakdos platform that suffered an attack from one of your Izzet neighbors is run by someone that was once a member of the Combine. You hope to use your influence with them to discover what is going on with this galvanice weird.

Unaligned/ Any

- I was just walking by and now I have to help fix this mess.

TRACKING THE PALACE

The Palace of Pain's Pleasures was last seen in a plaza on Tin Street, about three miles north of Nivix. Once they reach the plaza, the party may begin asking around about the Palace. To determine who is out on the plaza, you may roll on the table below. These creatures use the stat blocks for commoners unless otherwise noted.

PEOPLE ON THE STREET — TIN STREET

d12	Description	Attitude
1	A female minotaur bounty hunter ( soldier ) named Drakisla, asking about a mark, a goblin named Krenko.	Indifferent
2	A female goblin alchemist named Noggra, carrying some alchemy supplies to her shop on Tin Street.	Indifferent
3	Zizzix, a male goblin messenger, anxious and impatient	Hostile

4	Heruj, a loxodon healer ( acolyte ), covered in blood	Indifferent
5	Janik, a human male leatherworker, carrying some flowers	Friendly
6	Brazia, a female vedalken merchant, whistling a tune	Friendly
7	Blixanix a goblin Izzet scientist ( counterflux blastseeker ), lost in thought	Indifferent
8	1d4+2 goblin gang members	Hostile
9	Izolda female human soldier, on duty and eating a quick bite	Indifferent
10	Evern, male human soldier, off duty and fixing his armor	Hostile
11	Osidar, a male human thrill seeker, hoping to see some Gruul raiders	Friendly
12	Tomis, a male centaur transient, looking for a good place to sleep	Friendly

There are multiple citizens in this plaza who may have the information the party needs. You can have the characters interact with these random folks in the plaza to find information on the Palace, rolling on the People on the Street — Tin Street table, or if you wish to you can ask the party to make an Intelligence (Investigation) check and summarize the information they learn based on the results.

Intelligence (Investigation) Check Result	Information
10	There was a Rakdos circus here not long ago. They took off, headed south on Tin Street.
13	There were 2 Rakdos performers coaching the weird into a specific direction.
15	The weird was seen entering a circus house that isn't here right now.
20	The Palace of Pain's Pleasures was set up in this plaza when the weird arrived.

The party members can also make an Intelligence (History) check to see what they know about Ophyira's Palace of Pain's Pleasures. Characters who belong to the Cult of Rakdos make this check with advantage.

Intelligence (History) Check Result	Information
12	There is a Rakdos circus that traverses Tin street and stops every sundown to perform a show.
15	That circus is Ophyira's Palace of Pain's Pleasures.
20	The palace is actually a construct.

HEADING SOUTH

Once the party has had an opportunity to do some investigation, they should have little difficulty figuring out that the Palace has headed south for the night. If the adventurers follow, you may have them travel south with little incident. If you wish to make the travel interesting, you may pepper in an encounter using the Tin Street Random Encounters table. You may set the attitude of these NPCs to friendly, indifferent, or hostile at your discretion.

TIN STREET RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

1d6	Encounter
1-2	1d4+3 cultists of Rakdos
3-4	1d4+1 Boros soldiers
5-6	2d4+2 goblin gang members

Once the characters have traveled about three miles south on Tin Street, they see Ophyira's Palace of Pain's Pleasures parked on Tin Street in front of Nivix, drawing on the cacophony of industrial sounds, sparks, and explosions to maximize the presentation of the night's show.

OPHYIRA'S PALACE OF PAIN'S PLEASURES

As the characters approach the Palace, read the following text:

As you make your way down Tin Street, you see Nivix, the massive guildhall of the Izzet dominating the eastern sky. On the street in front of the tower, stands a three-story stone structure. The outer walls of this monstrous construct are crafted of stone. The front gate looks like an enormous skull. A long stage, lined with barbed wire, extends from the gaping maw.

1A. GROUND STAGE

The main stage for the public performances, the area is divided by a barbed wire net standing 9 feet above the ground. On this net performers go about their routines, and every time something goes wrong, or fantastic depending on who you ask, the public below is splattered with blood. The net has seen its fair share of mishaps, because it's caked in dry blood. Usually there are 5 routines per show, as follows:

- Two Rakdos performers stand on each side of the stage and throw daggers at each other, so that the knives slightly nick the skin of the other performer, but do not get stuck there. They will get closer to each other after every throw. This continues until they are close enough to touch each other.
- A Rakdos lampooner takes the stage, dancing near the walls removing the knives stuck there from the performance before. This lampooner is dressed very scantily, wearing only rope. Every time they take a knife from the wall, they'll teasingly store it in the rope, sometimes cutting their skin or the rope itself.
- The Rakdos performers get back on stage wielding torches and give a fire juggling performance.
- A different Rakdos lampooner will get on stage dressed only in a mask that is a caricature of the face of a political leader or newsworthy person. The lampooner makes a mocking performance focused on current events. Sometimes one or two of the cult fanatics will join this routine depending on the skit.

It is left to the Dungeon Master's discretion which of these performances, if any, are actively occurring when the party arrives on the scene. Between each performance, two cult fanatics walk to the end of the stage, inviting audience members to step inside for the full experience. Guests may pay 1 gold zino each for the private attention of a pain artist, or 10 gold zinos each for the private attention of the infamous Ophyira. Once the fee is paid, the cult fanatic provides the patron with password to access the doors inside the Palace, appropriate to their purchase.

1B. EGO RAMP

This is a rusty metal catwalk that connects the Ground Stage to the main Palace. It is used during performances as a second stage surface.

1C. FANATIC QUARTERS

This is the bedchamber shared by the fanatics. The wall in the north corner has bloody handprints that belong to the fanatics that sleep here, and those who lived here in the past.

Treasure: There are a couple of costumes scattered about and a DC 13 Investigation check will reveal a cattle branding iron with the brand of Rakdos.

1D. ADMITTANCE ANTECHAMBERS

Guarded by a cult fanatic and an imp, each of these antechambers are where customers seeking the attention of a private pain artist pay their admission. Customers must then wait for the pain artist to become available and escort them up the stairs to the second floor. The fanatic keeps the earnings of the night with them until closing time.

Treasure: Apart from the weapons carried by the cult fanatic, each cult fanatic is carrying 2d12 gold zinos in a coin purse.

1E. INTERNAL STAGING

This acts as a stage for small performances and a waiting room for clients seeking private pain sessions. There are comfortable armchairs lined with red velvet scattered about in the corners and 4 torches in the middle bathing the area in bright light and allowing ready access for fire-based performances. If there is no combat occurring, but a show on stage, a cultist can generally be found here dancing for the entertainment of 2d4 commoners. In the event of combat, the commoners attempt to flee out of the palace while the cultist joins the fray.

1F. PROP STORAGE

This is the area where props are kept. There is also a small cage in this area that is currently inhabited

SNEAKING INTO THE PALACE

Some party members may wish to attempt to sneak into the Palace during a performance. Unless the characters doing so are able to bring some form of magic to bear, this is nearly impossible. Between the performers on the stage, the Rakdos puppeteers watching from their chambers, and the crowd watching the show, sneaking into the open door to area 1D requires a successful DC 20 Dexterity (Stealth) check made at disadvantage. If more than one character attempts to sneak aboard at the same time, they must make a successful DC 20 group Dexterity (Stealth) check made at disadvantage. A character allowing themselves to be captured away from the group or otherwise acting as a sufficient distraction may cancel the disadvantage on these checks.

by the galvanice weird. The weird is magically incapacitated and will remain so for 12 hours after being removed from the cage unless a lesser restoration spell or an effect that removes curses is applied to it. The cage itself is constructed of mizzium. The bars require a successful DC 30 Strength check to bend enough to retrieve the weird. The cage door can be picked with a successful DC 20 Dexterity check using thieves' tools. Ophyira has the key to this cage among their possessions in area 3B.

Treasure: This area contains 20 10-foot lengths of spiked chain, 6 costumes with masks, 20 20-foot lengths of rope, 5 casks of grain alcohol, 5 humanoid dummies that can be used as effigies, and two cackler dolls constructed of leather. This area also contains ten items from the Rakdos Trinkets table (see page 11). The Dungeon Master may choose ten items or roll ten times, including duplicate items if rolled.

2A. PAIN THEATRE ENTRY

These spiral stairs lead from floor 1 up to floor 3, though floor 3 has doors that are under an arcane lock effect. The password is "key lime." Red and black curtains cover the walls of the staircases.

2B. PERFORMER BEDCHAMBER

This is where the magic (and sleep) happens. A chest in the east corner is filled with toys, some of which have more spikes than what seems medically safe.

Treasure: A DC 12 Perception check will reveal that behind a velvet curtain there are several empty potion bottles and two potions of masochist's essence. This area also contains four items from the Rakdos Trinkets table (see page 11). The Dungeon Master may choose four items or roll four times, including duplicate items if rolled. Any items that would reasonably fit in the chest are kept in the chest. Others (like the chair, for example) are easily spotted sitting out in the room.

2C. PAIN THEATRE

This is where the pain artists perform their routines. The room can be sectioned off with curtains if more than one pain artist is engaged simultaneously.

2D. LAMPOONER BEDCHAMBER

This is the lampooners’ private quarters. Much cleaner than the fanatic’s bedchamber, it features cozy pillows scattered about and some notes on recent events of Ravnica. Most of these events are just gossip.

Treasure: The DM may use the List of Rumors table on below or the People and Rumors tables in Chapter 3 of Guildmasters’ Guide to Ravnica to determine the contents of these notes. This area also contains ten items from the Rakdos Trinkets table (see page 11). The Dungeon Master may choose ten items or roll ten times, including duplicate items if rolled.

LIST OF RUMORS

1d8	Rumor
1	An Izzet inventor made what he thought was a perfect gemstone, but it blew up his supervisor
2	The famous Bard Paxiz is dying of an incurable disease
3	The house of a wealthy Kardun has been spreading a foul smell for days, yet the guards have done nothing
4	The Guildpact is not missing but is in fact imprisoned by the Azorius
5	Half of the apple supplies have been contaminated with some weird fungus
6	Lareen has been sneaking out at night, multiple times
7	The statues near the sewer entrances are actually petrified citizens
8	Mysterious lights have appeared above Lawmaker Tull’s house

3A. PRIMARY CONTROL/ PUPPETEER QUARTERS

This is the room where the Rakdos puppeteer pilots the construct. The area is also setup as a bedchamber for the puppeteer. The machines lining the walls make a constant humming noise that can’t be heard outside of this room.

Treasure: This room contains an Andrews crossbar, which allows an attuned user to pilot the Palace, but also can be used as a platform to tie a small character to. The Rakdos puppeteer carries 1d12 gold zinos in a coin purse. This area also contains two items from the Rakdos Trinkets table

CONTROLLING THE PALACE

The palace must be controlled by Rakdos puppeteers who are attuned to the Andrews crossbars. If both puppeteers are killed, the construct will begin to act of its own accord, returning to Rix Maadi, the Rakdos Guildhall. Any hostile creatures who emerge from the palace (such as the characters) draw its ire. It will spend 1d4 rounds attacking the party if they abandon the palace once it starts moving.

If at least one of the puppeteers lives, the Palace will not autonomously move unless directly threatened or attacked.

(see page 11). The Dungeon Master may choose two items or roll two times, including duplicate items if rolled.

3B. OPHYIRA’S PRIVATE QUARTERS

A big red bed stands at the center of this room. Behind the bed hangs a wall of black and red velvet curtains. Next to the bed is a night stand with a potion of masochist’s essence on it. In the west corner there’s a work desk, with scattered tools on it. This is where Ophyira creates new gadgets for their performances. Behind the wall of curtains sits the chest where they keep their most precious items. To find the chest a player must make a DC 15 Investigation check.

Treasure: The table contains a number of parts and pieces of gadgets in process of being designed as well as a full set of tinker’s tools and an alchemist’s kit. Ophyira keeps a notebook in the chest. This notebook has notes on every customer, every place the palace has set up, and daily notes of a personal nature. Those seeking information on Cevraya find that she did visit the palace two days ago, took a personal session with Ophyira, and left four hours later inebriated but alive. There is also a ledger containing the sale of a number of items in the back of the notebook. A number of pages have been torn out of the journal entries as well as the ledger. The chest also contains the key to the cage in area 1F. This room also contains eight items from the Rakdos Trinkets table (see page 11). The Dungeon Master may choose eight items or roll eight times, including duplicate items if rolled. Any items that would reasonably fit in the chest are kept in the chest. Others (like the chair, for example) are easily spotted sitting out in the room.

INTERACTING WITH OPHYIRA

The party's interactions with Ophyira will be largely determined by their method of approach. If they are paying customers, Ophyira will greet the adventures at their private stage and will begin interactions with a friendly attitude. Ophyira will not freely give information about their private business but will happily explain how the galvanice weird came to be imprisoned in the Palace.

If the party sneaks into the Palace, but does so without killing anyone, Ophyira will be indifferent to the party, offering a begrudging respect. In this case, Ophyira will be found in their private chambers working on a frightening looking toy. Any failed Charisma checks directed at Ophyira will shift their attitude to hostile – the characters are on thin ice with the star attraction.

If the party uses blatant and wanton violence to storm the palace and enter Ophyira's private stage, the Rakdos will be hostile, and will attack immediately.

If violence breaks Ophyira will fight until they are reduced to 10 hit points or fewer, at which point they will attempt to escape, trying to bait the party outside where the construct can be used to its fullest potential.

To determine what information the Rakdos is willing to share, utilize the "What Ophyira Knows" section on page 12.

3C. OPHYIRA'S PRIVATE STAGE

This room is used for semiprivate and group performances by Ophyira, it features several chains and hooks dangling from the ceiling. The torches are not as strong here, creating a play of shadows in the walls and filling the area with dim light.

3D. SECONDARY CONTROL/ PUPPETEER QUARTERS.

This is the room where the relief Rakdos puppeteer pilots the construct. The area is also setup as a bedchamber for the puppeteer. Like room 3A it's constantly filled with the hum of machines.

Treasure: This room contains an Andrews crossbar, which allows an attuned user to pilot the Palace, but also can be used as a platform to tie a small character to. The Rakdos puppeteer carries 1d12 gold zinos in a coin purse. This area also contains two items from the Rakdos Trinkets table (see page 11). The Dungeon Master may choose two items or roll two times, including duplicate items if rolled.

3E. ROOF ACCESS

This chamber has stairs to the roof and also contains ancillary prop storage for the Palace.

Treasure: This area contains 20 10-foot lengths of spiked chain, 6 costumes with masks, 20 20-foot lengths of rope, 5 casks of grain alcohol, 5 humanoid dummies that can be used as effigies, and two cackler dolls constructed of leather. This area also contains ten items from the Rakdos Trinkets table (see page 11). The Dungeon Master may choose ten items or roll ten times, including duplicate items if rolled.

4. ROOF

The open roof of the palace holds several 20-foot-tall poles which are fixed to the floor pointed toward the sky. These poles are used for dancing, acrobatics, and hook suspensions.

AFTERMATH

If the party handled this portion of their investigation diplomatically, avoided unnecessary violence in the palace, and retrieved the weird to return to Bellov, they may claim experience points as if they had defeated the inhabitants of the Palace (though not the Palace itself) If the DM is using milestones for leveling, this should allow the party to gain a level. This does, however, leave some questions unanswered.

If the characters discover the subplot regarding Peren, his debt to the Orzhov, and the details of the felicity triskelion, they may continue their investigation. The only substantial lead they have at this point is Peren's last known address (provided that they were able to get that information from Ophyira through discussion or interrogation.) Characters who go into this scenario with violence and kill Ophyira before they can gather the information about Peren effectively cut their one investigative thread. They have little to no hope of ever discovering the involvement of Rogad Nar or the true cause of the galvanice weird's malfunction. Their story ends elsewhere.

Those who do rely on investigation, subterfuge, interaction, and guile can get enough puzzle pieces together to recognize that Peren, and perhaps this item he possesses, are connected in some way to the incident in Bellov's lab. Further investigation points them to the events in *The Felicity Triskelion*, now available at DMsGuild.

New Equipment

This section contains new equipment and trinkets introduced in this adventure.

Spiked Chain

A spiked chain is a length of chain with a sharp spike or hook at the end of it. These are often used in Rakdos performances for suspending a performer by piercing the flesh with the hook and dangling the performer from a pole or high object.

When used in combat, the spiked chain functions as a whip in terms of proficiency required and properties. The spiked chain deals 1d4 bludgeoning and 1d4 piercing when used as a weapon. Characters using a spiked chain to suspend suffer 1d4 piercing per chain added to the suspension.

Trinkets

The following trinkets can be found scattered throughout the palace.

Rakdos Trinkets

1d20	Trinket
1	A small bench with 4 cuffs attached to it
2	A steel paddle
3	A set of velvet cuffs

6	10ft. of red velvet rope
7	A black hood

16	A leather straitjacket
17	Manacles with spikes on the inside
18	A red feather duster
19	A flogger with spikes on the ends
20	A one-foot length of fine but strong chain, each end of the chain bears a small metallic clamp

New Magic Items

The following magic items are introduced in The Palace of Pain's Pleasures.

Andrews Crossbar

Wondrous Item, very rare (requires attunement by a warlock of the fiend)

This magic item resembles an oversized marionette's crossbar, large enough to tie a small humanoid to with its arms and legs spread. Each Andrews crossbar is paired to a vehicular construct used by the Rakdos. While attuned to this item, the user may control the movement of the paired vehicular construct, using a Dexterity (Performance) check for any relevant check made to pilot the vehicle.

Potion of Masochist's Essence

Potion, uncommon

This potion is a thick black ichor that tastes bitter. Once you drink the potion, you gain the Relentless Endurance feature, which remains until you complete a short rest. When a creature with this feature is reduced to 0 hit points but not killed outright, they can drop to 1 hit point instead. Once used, this feature cannot be used again.

NEW SPELLS

The following spells are introduced in The Palace of Pain's Pleasures.

OPHYIRA'S CARESS

2nd Level Enchantment (Brd, Wiz, War)

Casting Time: 1 Action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

This spell makes the caster's touch take on the properties of the pain artist's lash. Make a melee spell attack against a creature you can reach. On a hit the target suffers 1d6 points of slashing damage and must make a Constitution saving throw. If the target fails, they become stunned as they are overwhelmed with extreme pleasure or pain (caster's choice.) To continue this effect on subsequent turns, the caster must maintain contact with the target, and the target may repeat its Constitution saving throw at the beginning of each of its turns, ending the effect on a success. If the target has suffered hit point damage since making their last save against this effect, they may claim advantage on their saving throw.

APPENDIX: NPCs

The following stat blocks are used in this adventure.

OPHYIRA

Ophyira is a Simic hybrid of vedalken stock. When they evolved their experience was full of searing agony which opened them to a whole new world of sensation. The Simic Combine no longer held much allure for Ophyira, so they left and joined the Cult of Rakdos.

Ophyira's predilection for exploring the boundaries of sensation led to them gravitating toward becoming a pain artist. After months of study, Ophyira was granted an opportunity to perform in front of Rakdos himself. Selecting a suspension routine in which they slowly cut themselves free from a six-point suspending harness, Ophyira was able to impress the demonic Lord and was awarded control of the Palace of Pain's Pleasures as a result.

WHAT OPHYIRA KNOWS

Since taking over the construct, Ophyira has taken up a hobby as a collector and distributor of bizarre curios, occult items, and strange technologies. As a part of this hobby they came across the felicity triskelion, an item that is rumored to allow the user to transcend pain and pleasure, feeling ultimate and pure sensation. Accessing the triskelion's abilities requires solving a complex puzzle, which was beyond Ophyira's ability.

Shortly after gaining possession of the felicity triskelion, Ophyira was approached by a fellow curio enthusiast named Peren to rent access to the triskelion. Peren could not afford monetary compensation, as he was already deep in debt to the Orzhov. Instead, he offered to share the solution to the triskelion's puzzle with Ophyira. Ophyira agreed and handed the device over to Peren. This was a week prior, and Ophyira has not yet heard from Peren. Needless to say, they are unhappy about that development and plan to track the Devkarin down, claiming payment in flesh and blood.

Ophyira knows where Peren last lived. They also know that the Palace was attacked by a galvanice weird last night, which the performers easily subdued. Ophyira does not see any connection between these events. Though they wish to train the galvanice weird to use in performances. Talking Ophyira into handing over the weird requires a successful DC 10 Charisma (Persuasion) check if they are on friendly terms with the party. If Ophyira is indifferent to the party, the DC of this check increases to 15. If hostile, no check is possible.

Ophyira does not know that their room has been ransacked. While the weird distracted the crew, Rogad Nar snuck into Ophyira's quarters and stole the missing journal pages. There is little to be learned by investigating the area, but if it becomes apparent to Ophyira that they were robbed, they will assume the Dimir are responsible and happily hand over Peren's last known address, a Golgari controlled Undercity entrance in Precinct Four, to help the characters continue their investigation. Ophyira will also pay 20 platinum zinos for the return of the felicity triskelion and the head of the person who stole their journal pages. 5 platinum for either delivered separately.

PLAYING OPHYIRA

When playing Ophyira keep in mind the following traits:

Personality Traits: I derive genuine pleasure from the pain of others.

I enjoy testing other people's patience.

Ideal: Spectacle. People are inspired by the greatness they see in art.

Bond: I'm secretly hoping that I can change the cult from the inside, using my influence to help rein in the wanton destruction.

Flaw: There's no such thing as too much pleasure.

Underwater Adaption: Ophyira can breathe air and water and has a swimming speed equal to their walking speed.

ACTIONS

Grappling Appendages. Melee Weapon Attack: +2 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 3 (1d6 -1) bludgeoning damage. Immediately after hitting, you can try to grapple the target as a bonus action. Spiked Chain. Melee Weapon Attack: +2 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 2 (1d4) bludgeoning damage and 2 (1d4) piercing damage.

REACTIONS

Cutting Words. As a reaction when a creature (that's not immune to being charmed) Ophyira can see within 60 ft. makes an attack roll, ability check, or damage roll, they can expend one use of Bardic Inspiration, roll the die, and subtract the number from the creature's roll. Ophyira can do so after the roll but before knowing the result.
