100 Jungle Encounters

d100	Encounter
01	The party comes across a cave filled with mushrooms that emit a strange blue glow.
02	Whoever is last in the party feels a small tug on their pant leg. When they look down, a Chwinga is offering them a small necklace made of sea shells.
03	A few baboons begin howling at the party below. This attracts the attention of a nearby enemy.
04	A group of tribesmen are hunting a large dinosaur nearby. They have not spotted the party, and it looks like they could use some help.
05	Animal noises go quiet as the branches above you move and shake as if some- thing is moving through them. Normal sounds continue a few minutes later.
06	You see the bones of a creature in the under growth. It has been picked clean by scavengers.
07	While resting a small swarm of loudly croaking frogs hop through the camp. Anyone touched by the frogs dreams pro- phetic dreams that nights.
08	While moving through a river a few faint- ly glowing leeches attach themselves, but it's not blood they're draining but magic itself.
09	A thick curtain of vines hangs before you blocking the path. If looking carefully small jungle creatures can be seen en- twined. When cut the vines quickly strike like snakes trying to ensnare the party.
10	Suddenly an empty clearing appears ahead nothing but dry grey skeletal trees hanging with a yellow moss.

11	Along the path primitive markers are spaced every 50 foot starting as human- oid in shape each seems more demonic.
12	A ramshackle reed hut sits off the path, inside a grey furred Tabaxi slowly rakes its arms with its claws muttering about empty eyes and a glowing maw over and over.
13	There is an arrangement of once brightly colored, wilting, flowers pinned to a tree ahead with the name of a stranger carved underneath.
14	Shallow panting can be heard to the right. Leads to a critically injured animal unable to run.
15	A spider monkey jumps on the shoulder of a party member pawing at their back- pack for food, in return for food the monkey returns later that day and drops a polished stone out of which a frowning face can be glanced.
16	A swarm of insects surrounds and fol- lows the party, not dangerous but makes all tasks more difficult due to buzzing, biting and making it difficult to see.
17	A weathered leather journal is found cov- ered in small scratch marks. Insides is the diary of a treasure hunter. The writing quickly turns into ineligible scribbles after the hunter thinks they're into some- thing.
18	You see a brilliantly colored bird flit through the trees ahead, cawing and crying through the jungle air. It lands on a branch and screeches at you, before flying off.
19	You come across the rotting remains of a cart, alongside rusting armor and fetid bones. A tattered and unreadable banner hangs at the front of the procession. The line of bodies, carts and bones stretches almost a mile long through the forest. Nothing of value remains but bones and rot.
20	A man who must have been alive mere hours before, lies dead in the jungle heat. He wears no armor, but is covered in deep, bloody wounds, and some type of poison fills his veins.

21	The party passes an old tree with dozens of ancient tunes and carvings burned into its wooden surface. Occasionally, one of the runes glows a gentle blue, sending off		32	You feel your left elbow get caught on something sticky. A giant spider web has caught your arm. A Giant Spider's eyes lock on you from 60 feet away.
	pearlescent but harmless sparks, before going dark once again.		33	Another adventurer is spotted through the leaves struggling a against a creature.
22	A trio of jungle cats gnaw on the body of an unidentifiable creature. They scatter into the woods as the party nears.			Getting closer, the man is seen getting constricted by a Giant Constrictor Snake. His sword and shield on the ground where he once stood.
23	At dusk, a young voice begging for help whispers to one member of the party. The voice seems to come from the trees themselves.		34	Walking past a large purple flower a puff of near invisible (DC 16 perception or nature) spores release, for the next 5 min- utes each member hears a loved ones
24	The party is waken up to a high pitch scream coming seemingly from the			voice whisper that the path they are taking leads to doom and death.
25	surrounding trees, then silence. An aged map is found rolled up. It's a large map of the jungle with "LIES" written repeatedly in dried blood on it.		35	You find five corpses hanging by their feet from the tree above you. All of the skin has been removed from their bodies. A few discarded items litter the ground be- neath them. One of these items is a badge
26	A small hunting party of aggressive Goblins chasing an animal crosses paths with the players.			belonging to a soldier named Captain Seeyi Hopper. If any players have the sol- dier background they recognize the name as someone they once served with.
27	A young Stegosaurus' foot is seen trapped between two fallen trees. It cries out for its herd.		36	As if from the shadows a weretiger steps out. It levels it's golden spear head at a party members throat "you trespass on sacred ground, you have until the moon
28	A tribal dragonborn lays slumped against a tree holding his eviscerated abdomen,			shows her face, then let the hunt begin".
	in a rasping grunt he says in draconic "opened, by bahamuts breath they opened them all!"		37	You come upon a moss covered statue, fallen and showing the decay of centuries. A group of lemurs huddles together un- derneath to wait out the sudden down-
29	A large stone well is covered in vines and moss. Inside, it looks like it is filled with water. A DC 12 survival will tell you that it looks like drinkable water.			pour.
			38	A giant stone head, toppled from some long perch, lies before you. In it's eyes, light flickers faintly. Could something be inside?
30	A witch's hut sits in a small clearing.
	When approached, the hut stands up on giant chicken legs and flees.		39	A pool of bubbling tar is in front of you. You see an animal go in and screech in
31	You enter into a clearing and shrieking starts. A patch of Shrieker plant is found a few yards ahead. The sound reaches to anything within 300 feet of it.			pain, then silence. Suddenly, the crea- ture's skeleton covered in tar struts out and into the jungle as if nothing happened.

40	While making your way through thickets of vines your scratched by long yellow thorns (dex, con nature to miss) although painless the veins near the scratch have turned a vivid orange.	51	Along the path ahead the party hears the sound of people arguing profusely. A small gathering of people are the source of the noise and on further inspection the party finds the group is arguing about last night's watch. It seems during the night bird like each only has 4 prints before shifting.	54	Taking a wrong step, a party member steps on an active insect nest. At first it appears to be mere ants but they are actually a minute species of rust monsters. Act quickly or lose all metal.

44	A bright pink pool sits peacefully in the shade, smelling like strong cheese. Dis- tilling the water and healing algae makes
45	for a potent potion. The jungle opens up upon a gorge with an narrow rope bridge spanning it's width. Halfway across, the drums begin	55	You come to a blackened patch of jungle. Everything seems scorched but thorny. If these thorns spill blood, the plants almost instantly revive and attack.

47	The jungle opens up upon a narrow gorge. As the first creature to crosses, a net of webbing shoots out from the gorge to ensnare them, dragging them down.	57	The party hears a splashing sound on their path. On arrival, the pool is clean, clear, and brimming with fat fish.
48	The jungle opens up upon a wide gorge. The walls are steep and what looks to be cave mouths litter the sides.		Strangely, the nearby waterfall if traveling upwards.
49	The party comes across a river bed that has run dry. Embedded in the hard dirt	58	Hanging from one bound ankle, an irate nobel dressed in the finest (and mostly useless) expedition gear swings before

		60	Swollen gourds hang ripe in a tree and on the ground around it. It's a shame that a breed of poisonous frogs have such similar markings.

61	A jungle cat watches as her cubs attempts to kill a solitary goblin.		71	You come across a section of forest smell- ing of rancid flesh with a hundred plus kobold and goblin skeletons suspended
62	The party comes upon an area of jungle where all the vegetation is decaying and			from the branches.
	beasts litter the ground dead. Oddly, none have been scavenged.		72	You feel like something is moving, just beyond your vision. When you take a look behind you, you could swear that the ter-

70	You find a rich couple having a pi cnic.		82	You stumble across a group of smugglers arguing about which tree they buried their treasure under. It appears that they haven't noticed you.

83	As the party journeys through the forest, a slow hiss of a voice can be heard by the lead member "Turn back from the path!"
84	While crossing a dried river bed, more and more mud gathers around the legs of the party reducing speed by 10 ft until they take a short rest.
85	A lone shack stands in a clearing. A humanoid wearing a brightly coloured mask stirs a bubbling pot. In exchange for some rare ingredients, they'll trade you some of their potions.
86	The party comes to a narrow gorge made from dusty red clay. Hunters painted with the vidid clay are ready to ambush a distracted party member or animal.
87	A small cluster of blue gems breaks the surface of a stone wall. Trying to pry them out scatters the small swarm of sapphire scarabs.
88	A tribal statue stands tall and armed, but weathered all the stone smooth except its stone axe head that still holds a wicked edge.
89	A cracked and erroded stone alter has been left to the jungles growth. Creepers cover almost all of the blood stained stone.
90	The path suddenly become clearer, almost tended. Crude traps line the path.
91	Painted arrows lead the way through the trees, at the dead end make a dex save to avoid the boulder trap.
92	A sweet melody follows the party. It seems a song bird wants something the party has.
93	The humid air has taken its toll. the party should tend to their equipment before it rusts.
94	From the trees behind the party one of the members stumbles out clearly injured. They point at their doppelganger and say, "You have a imposter with you!"
95	A scattering of golden coins and ritual tools litter the mouth of a temple.

96	The party comes across a long forgotten cache of weapons. Most of the mundane weapons have long rusted, but a single weapon lies at the bottom of the cache looks brand new. Maybe a magic item? Cursed?
97	The party feels a pleasant cool breeze, which is a welcome moment in the in- tense heat of the jungle. If the characters spot it, the air is coming from a couple of curious Chwingas that are hidden nearby.
98	A stegosaurus is having a meal in the middle of the path. It has not seen the party, yet.
99	A group of adventures have made camp, and if the party is kind, will invite them to camp with the group. They are experi- enced adventures who know of a nearby location in the jungle.
100	The party hears a mighty roar. Behind them, a Tyrannosaurus rex comes barrel- ing towards them. They only have a few seconds to react before it reaches them.
