INTRODUCTION

Introduction

Welcome to the Mother of All Encounter Tables!

I think you will agree this book lives up to its title. It contains nothing but tables, tables and more tables full of encounters and special events. This book is a DM's best friend.

Find yourself preparing for a game session and noticing you tend to create the same type of encounter again and again. Need some ideas to help you break out of the normal orcs and ogres type of encounter? Perhaps your players wandered off somewhere you hadn't planned for them to go and you need an encounter right away. Or maybe they are roaming the shadowed alleys of their favorite fantasy city and you want to know who or what they run into. Are your players exploring the dark caverns beneath the earth or a deadly dungeon of your own devising? Then this book is for you.

This is not just a random book of tables, but a well thought out DM utility that makes wilderness travel, city streets and dungeon corridors all more interesting. It contains encounters for each terrain type from mountains to seas, in each climate from arctic to tropical, and has separate tables for day and night encounters. Also factored in are relative rarities of individual encounters. Space has even been left for you to insert new monsters from your own favorite books.

In addition to encounters with monsters and men, there are tables for unusual weather events, strange occurrences, accidents, and encounters with NPCs. Trade routes and caravans are detailed as well as trolls and dragons. After all, you never know when ants will infest your players' food, or when the cleric will get struck by lightning!

When To Use This Book

We love tables. And if you picked up this book then chances are you do, too. Though there are probably hundreds of reasons why you might use this book, we have found three primary times that we wind up pulling this book off the shelf or out of our backpacks.

1. Random Encounters. The most obvious use for a series of random encounter tables is, of course, for random encounters. Your players wander into an area that you hadn't expected them to go and you need an encounter. No problem. Follow the rules below and you will have a few encounters suitable for the appropriate situation in no time.

2. Session Preparation. You know that your players are heading through the Jungle of Death and you want to prepare some encounters ahead of time. Roll a few results. Get creative. Choose the best ones. This is perhaps our favorite way to use this book (not that using it on the fly isn't great). I don't know about you, but I always find myself using a normal group of "staple" monsters in my encounters. Undead. Ogres. Trolls. Using these tables, we believe, will help you break out of your encounter design rut if you are in one and perhaps try monsters as encounters that you would not ordinarily use even if you weren't in a rut.

3. Idea Resources. Unlike session prep where you know the type of encounter you need, idea generation is just taking a random result or two and using that idea to create a story or a lair or an adventure. Use these tables to help you create fresh ideas that you wouldn't ordinarily come up with yourself. You will find this a really great inspiration as well as a refreshing change. Your players will, too. So use these tables to give you ideas for encounters. And then, once you have generated the encounter, come up with a reason for the existence of the encounter. Turn it into an adventure, or maybe even a mini-campaign. Get creative. Twist things around. Let's say the encounter you randomly generate are some treants. Make them evil treants. Better yet, infernal treants. Then generate some servant creatures for them. Come up with a reason why they are working together. It is surprising how quick these random ideas get your creative juices flowing in new directions. Now all of a sudden you have a cool adventure idea. All that from a few rolls to generate ideas. Amazing.

Generating Encounters

Generating encounters with this book could not be easier.

1. Turn to Section 1: the Master Tables at the front of this book. That is where it all starts. There, you determine if you want an Overland, Urban, Trade Route, Overseas, Underwater or Subterranean encounter.

2. Roll on the appropriate Master Table using d100, meaning you roll two ten-sided dice reading the first die as the tens digit and the second die as the ones digit. 00 is 100. For example "9, 6" would be 96. "0, 8" would be 8. Using two different color ten-sided dice helps you remember which is the tens digit and which is ones digit.

3. Cross-reference your roll on the Master Table to determine the type of encounter you have. This refers you to the next table. Several of the Master Tables have sub-types. For instance, Trade Route Encounters and Subterranean Encounters require you to specify if the encounter occurs on a Major Road, Secondary Road or a Trail (remember, if there is no road, it is a Overland Encounter); or for the

THE MOTHER OF ALL ENCOUNTER TABLES

Subterranean table if the encounter occurs in a Primary Passage, Secondary Passage, Tertiary Passage or if it is in an Aquatic setting.

Your roll on this table then leads you to the next table where you roll your actual encounter. For example, let's say you need a Subterranean Encounter and you determine your PCs are traveling along a Secondary Passage. You roll d100 on the "Subterranean Encounter" Master Table and look under the "Secondary Passage" column. If you roll a 59, that means you have no encounter. If you roll a 13, that means you have a Creature Encounter and must roll on The Creature Encounter Table, Table 2-7.

4. Determine your climate type, be it arctic, sub-arctic, temperate, sub-tropical or tropical.

5. Find the appropriate sub-table, if any. Some tables have sub-tables. For example, the Subterranean Monster Table is divided into Table 2-7A and 2-7B, the first is for close to the surface and the second is for truly deep below ground (like the Underdark).

6. Roll on the indicated table using d1000. That's right, d1000. All you have to do is get one more d10 (preferably of a different color than the other two d10s you used above). Go to the table indicated from the result on the Master Table you rolled on above. Roll all three d10s. One is the hundreds digit, the other is the tens digit and the last one is the ones digit. 000 is 1000. Easy as pie. Now cross-reference that result in the relevant column of the table you were guided to from the Master Table.

For example, the "13" you rolled above on the Subterranean Encounter table led you to the Creature Encounter Table (Table 2-7).

7. Determine intent. This is mostly up to you. You don't have to have every encounter be a combat encounter. Perhaps the creatures want information. Or perhaps they need help. Maybe they want to spy on the party. Or maybe they want to trade with the party. Consult the Player's Handbook and the DMG for more about NPC attitudes or see the sidebar to randomly generate attitudes.

8. Lather, rinse, repeat until your players have had enough or until you have generated the needed number of encounters.

Attitudes

The DMG and the Player's Handbook detail several types of attitudes the monsters and NPCs you encounter may have towards the party: hostile, unfriendly, indifferent, friendly and helpful. You should always choose the one that best fits the encounter and the particular situation. Most people encountered are indifferent. Most monsters are unfriendly but not necessarily hostile. Characters may make Diplomacy or Charisma checks (or Wild Empathy checks on animals) to influence attitudes. Refer to the Diplomacy skill in the Player's Handbook for more information.

Sometimes, though, it is fun to generate attitudes randomly. This can create interesting story ideas. Remember, though, that your common sense should control.

d20	Attitude
1-4	Hostile
5-9	Unfriendly
10-15	Indifferent
16-18	Friendly
19-20	Helpful
Modifiers (cumulative)
Same general alignment or ethos, if obvious +4
Opposite alignment or ethos, if obvious -4
Predatory or naturally warlike creature -2

What This Book Does Not Do

There are a few things this book does not do.

1. It does not dictate how often you should have an encounter. You should refer to the guidelines from the DMG, as detailed in chapter 3, under "Wandering Monsters," "Random Wilderness Encounters," and "Urban Encounters" to see what they suggest. Then just do it however you want.

2. It does not divide tables by Encounter Level ("EL"). We leave that to your discretion. It would have been way too confusing to have a sub-table for all 20+ possible ELs for each of the tables in this book. So we decided the best thing was to put them all together. That means the Subterranean Monsters table has EL 1/8 encounters and EL 20 encounters. As the DM you know your group and know what encounters will be best for them. We do list the CR of each monster, however, so that you can compute the final EL of the encounter depending on the number of monsters encountered. See the sidebar for more on how to compute Encounter Levels and also refer to the DMG, chapter 3, “Challenge Ratings and Encounter Levels,” for details on what Encounter Level of encounter is appropriate for the level of your group.

Encounter Levels

The ELs we have listed in the tables are for one of the creature encountered (which is equal to the creature’s Challenge Rating, see the DMG, chapter 3, “Challenge Ratings and Encounter Levels.”) The tables, however, provide for a range of numbers of creatures encountered. Encounters with multiple creatures obviously have a higher EL. Here is how to figure the EL of an encounter. Once you get used to it, it is real easy.

Rule of Thumb: for creatures above CR 1, doubling the number of monsters increases the CR by 2. An encounter with 1 doppelganger is EL 3. 2 are EL 5. 4 are EL 7. For creatures of CR 1, adding a second CR 1 monster only raises the EL by 1. From then on, doubling the monsters raises the EL by 2. For creatures less than CR 1, whose CR is expressed as a fraction, multiply the CR by the number of monsters. For example, 8 CR 1/2 orcs would be EL 4. 8 CR 1/4 kobolds would be EL 2.

Mixed Pairs: an encounter that contains several monsters of different CRs is more difficult to determine. Generally, a monster that has a companion creature of a CR 2 lower than the primary creature adds 1 to the EL. Thus, a CR 7 monster with a CR 5 companion monster would have an EL of 8.

Creatures as Groups: In determining mixed pairs when there are large groups of monsters, it is best to determine the EL for each group. For example, let’s take an encounter with 8 orcs and 2 ogres. The orcs are CR 1/2. 8 orcs are EL 4. Ogres are CR 3. 2 ogres are EL 5. Using the mixed pairs rule above, together they are an EL 6 (adding 1 to the higher EL).

3. It is not a substitute for common sense. If you generate an encounter that is certain death or (perhaps even worse) wildly under-challenging for your group, discard or modify it. This book is not an oracle that must be obeyed. It is a tool for you to aid you prepare for sessions and help you with unique encounters in a pinch. You should never, ever justify an encounter to your players by saying “hey, that’s what I rolled in the book.” Again, refer to the DMG, chapter 3, “Challenge Ratings and Encounter Levels.”

If you generate something you think is too hard or too easy, either re-roll or modify what you rolled. If you rolled an encounter that is too easy, you might just roll again and add this new result as the “boss creature” leading the creatures that you generated originally.

For example, let’s say you have a party of four 10th level characters wandering around in a dungeon. You need an encounter. You roll on the Master Table and get a creature encounter from Table 2-7. You use Table 2-7A because they are not that far under ground. You roll “102,” which is a result of 2-12 giant bombardier beetles. You roll 2d6 (which gives you a range of 2-12) and get 4, meaning there are 4 beetles. Each beetle is CR 2, so 4 of them is EL 6.

That is obviously not challenging enough for your PCs. So you roll again. Lets say you roll a 815, a Roper (EL 10, still EL 10 with the beetles)! Perhaps you decide that the Roper uses the beetles as a distraction to attack large opponents, thereby making it easier to take down unsuspecting larger prey. Perhaps he waits until opponents are busy with the beetles, perhaps he has them “tamed”, and has created a symbiotic relationship with them for sharing food, its all up to you!

4. It doesn’t trump your creativity. The best ideas for your campaign are always your own. This book is an aid. If you roll a result using this book but you think that an encounter that you thought up would be better, scrap the random result and use your idea.

5. It doesn’t promote the idea of “random monsters.” Again, this book is an aid. We aren’t intending to promote the idea that campaigns should be nothing but a string of random encounters. If you don’t want randomness, don’t use this book for that. Use it as a preparation tool.

6. It doesn’t limit you to one roll. As discussed above when you have generated an encounter that is too easy, perhaps you roll a second time and add that second monster as a “boss” monster over the first monsters you generated. Don’t limit yourself. Roll twice. Roll three times. Use those results. Get creative. Come up with a reason for that encounter. It will spark your creativity.

How To Customize This Book

In today’s d20 world there are tons of monster books out there, aside from the official books. Different DMs have different collections. And even DMs with the same collections have different favorite monsters.

We wanted to create a set of tables that were customizable. It will take a little work to customize the charts. That couldn’t be avoided, since there is just no way to know what books each DM owns. This way, our tables are useful to every DM with just a little tweaking. We hope you find that flexibility to your liking. If you don’t want flexibility, see the “Simple Solution” section, below.

Everyone owns the “MM.” The MM? MM stands for “the official monster book by the guys that make the game.

We would like to be able to say the name of the book, but the d20 license prohibits us from using its name. We can say “Player’s Handbook,” but we have to say MM and DMG for the other two books. Don’t ask us why, it’s just the way it is. We trust you all are smart enough to figure out what MM stands for. Since everyone owns the MM, and since it contains the core monsters, most of the monsters in this book come from that book.

The Tome of Horrors. We also included monsters from the popular d20 product the Tome of Horrors (abbreviated the ToH in the tables). Why? Because the Tome of Horrors contains all of the monsters from the original First Edition MM that were left out of the Third Edition MM. We think they should all be included. So here they are. Of course, if you don’t want them, then customize them by changing them as described in this next section.

The Creature Collection or DM’s Choice. This is where the flexibility comes in. The tables include some monsters from the various Creature Collection monster books from Sword & Sorcery Studios (abbreviated CC1 and CC2; for the CC1 you can use either the original or the Creature Collection Revised). If you don’t own those books or if you want to add your own monsters, feel free to simply write in your favorite monsters in place of those entries. Some of you might want to use the “MM2” or the “FF” (again, the license says we can’t say the names, but just like the MM we are confident that you can figure out that these are abbreviations for the titles of the other “official” monster books) or maybe even monsters from some of the other great d20 books available these days. Perhaps you like a few monsters from some of the various magazines that publish content for the game. Maybe you have created your own home monsters. Go ahead and fill them into the charts.

Simple Solution. Let’s say you don’t own the Tome of Horrors or the Creature Collection and you don’t want to take the time to customize the tables. They are still useful. If you roll a result from one of those books, simply roll 1d6. 1-3: use the monster above the entry for the monster from the book you don’t own, 4-6 use the monster below the entry for the monster from the book you don’t own.

Examples of Use

This book can be used to spark creativity, and with a little work, can be used for a whole evening of adventure. The following are examples of how we used it. Roll some dice and add a little DM creativity, and this is the type of encounters this book will help you devise!

Example 1

The DM is running a group of five 7th level PCs through Vault of Larin Karr. The group has decided to head north of Quail Valley to “see what’s up there”, and the DM has not prepared anything in that area. The party is traveling up along a hilly valley by day. Hoping to discourage undue exploration off the beaten path, the DM decides to err on the side of a higher level of difficulty in what he rolls.

(Temperate Hills, Day)

ROLL: 542 on the appropriate wandering monster table yields 1-5 hill giants. The DM decides to go for the maximum .

RESULT: As the party travels up the valley, they hear distant, loud bellowing in Giantish. Proceeding around a bend in the rushing mountain stream, they may spy five hill giants on a ridge to their left, with large stacks of boulders piled around them. They are a watch and scouting party currently amusing themselves with some target practice at random trees in the valley beneath them. The PCs have the option of retreating before they are seen, trying to perform an ambush, observing them from afar, or directly challenging them (and probably getting slaughtered).

Example 2

A group of six dungeon delvers averaging 11th level have made it deep into Rappan Athuk, and have found a passageway accessing the Underdark. Since the DM has nothing prepared, he starts rolling on the random tables to see what they might meet

(Underground, Deep, Primary Passage)

ROLL: 18 on the subterranean master table’s results in a creature encounter, and rolling 23 on the Deepearth table yields 1-4 assassin vines. A 2 is rolled on 1d4 .

RESULT: After consulting the entry in the MM, the DM tells the players that after traveling half an hour, they start to feel a warm, moist breeze on their faces coming from the passage ahead. The air is filled with the reek of rotten eggs. After five more minutes of travel, the passage opens into a roughly oval chamber, lit faintly by croppings of phosphorescent fungi. Toadstools of small to moderate size crowd the floor in clusters, surrounding a trio of bubbling hot springs. PCs making a Spot check (DC 10, stonecunning applies to the check) note what appear to be thick silver and gold mineral veins spidering along the floor amid the toadstools. If the Spot check beats DC 20, they realize that these are thin grey vines shot through with minerals.

Those unwary souls wandering among the toadstools are subject to attack by the vines (which the DM bumps up to 16 HD specimens, increasing their CR to 10 each). As treasure, the DM decides that one of the apparent ore veins is in fact real, a rich vein of gold ore worth 15,000 gp, though a week of mining by a dozen workers is required to win it all free safely; however, a good 8,000 gp worth can be harvested with only a few hours of effort.

Example 3

After exploring a set of ruins, a band of three 4th level characters hauling the bodies of two fallen PCs have regained a trade route and are heading back to Bard's Gate (or whatever city is closest in the DM's campaign). Dusk falls, and the party, still a day's journey from town, starts to look for a suitable campsite.

(Overland Major Trade Route, Night)

ROLL: 13 on the trade route master table (after rerolling “no encounter” twice, the DM wants SOMETHING to happen) results in travelers. Examining that subtable, the DM chooses a caravan encounter (woo hoo!), and pauses the game a moment to roll up the caravan.

Rolling on the caravan generator, the cargo value comes to 26-250 gp, 150 gp rolled randomly with 1d10. The cargo table for a caravan of this value results in a shipment of grain, worth 0.3 gp/lb. Simple division shows that there are 500 lb of wheat present. Looking at the “means of transport” chart, the DM decides that a trio of carts (200 lb max load each) would be ideal transport. A Com1 drives each cart, and a Com3 merchant leads the entire group. Finally, a roll on the “sentient species” table determines that these are elves.

RESULT: As twilight descends on the party, they hear the sounds of gay laughter ahead, coming from a bonfire located in a stand of trees to the side of the road. As they approach, they see three elegantly carved carts, each led by a pair of snow-white ponies currently hobbled to one side of the camp. Sitting around the fire are four elves, chuckling in elvish over some jest. Assuming they spot the PCs, they quickly break off their converse and grab simple weapons, ready to defend their cargo if need be.

Note that the prepared DM might roll up a few random caravans and groups of travelers before the session begins, so they can be ready for use at a moment's notice.

Example 4

Thirsting for adventure, a group of six first-level adventurers calling themselves the Hamfist of Fate have heard rumors of an ancient shrine located deep within the Tanigal, a jungle located on the coast 100 miles away. To reach the jungle they will have to travel from a small river community through 60 miles of sandy desert to reach the jungle's edge. They set out in the morning, with the sun a molten ball rising in the east.

(Tropical Desert, Day)

ROLL: Rolling on the overland table yields a creature encounter. 880 is rolled on the tropical desert, day table, resulting in a diamondback rattlesnake (listed in the Tome of Horrors, snake appendix).

RESULT: Near noon, the party comes upon a wadi, or dry riverbed, running in the direction of their travel. Unlike the surrounding dunes, the bed of the wadi is smooth and flat, and would greatly speed travel. However, rattlesnakes lurk among the rocks of the wadi sides, currently sheltering themselves from the great heat in the shadows of rocks. PCs that fail a Spot check (DC 22, assume medium-sized vipers taking 10 on a Hide check) are subject to a surprise bite attack from a disturbed snake. Those bitten will have to deal with the effects of rattlesnake venom as presented in the Tome of Horrors.

Example 5

The Hamfist of Fate beds down for the night amid some rocky outcroppings located 30 miles from the edge of the jungle.

(Tropical Desert, Night)

ROLL: The DM wants something to happen, so he rolls on the overland encounter tables, and gets a 40, roll twice using 2d20. Rolling these yields a 39 (roll twice again), a 4, a 15, and a 26. This results in two creature encounters and one notable occurrence. Rolling on the nighttime creature table results in a 913 and a 609: a sand viper (ToH) and a pair of ogrillons (CR 1 each, also in the ToH). The unusual occurrence roll is: “Battle site: Vultures, crows, or other carrion animals are spotted nearby, feasting on the remains of some creatures. Roll or pick two creature encounters from the wandering monster table of the appropriate climate/terrain to determine which creatures fought. Only 5% chance the bodies were unlooted.”

RESULT: The DM determines that near midnight the party hears the sounds of battle coming from beyond their rocky shelter to the south, back in the direction of their travel. Assuming they investigate, they discover the tail end of a battle between an ogrillon warband (8 ogrillons originally, 2 remaining) and a trio of ghosts that had been stalking the party. Currently the surviving ogrillons are looting the bodies, cursing over the poor pickings on their former comrades.

Unfortunately, investigating PCs pass near a sand viper, hunting rodents in the night. They must succeed at a Spot check (DC 22, higher if the PCs have no night vision) or be attacked, quite possibly alerting the ogrillon pair.

The DM decides that, although the ghosts had no loot and the ogrillons only a few coins, they do know something of the hazards of the jungle ahead, and if one is captured or charmed, it will be willing to share information with the PCs about the lay of the land.

Example 6

The next morning, the Hamfist sets out at an early hour, hoping to put the cursed desert behind them as soon as possible. They reach the edge of the Tanigal Jungle by noon, and plunge beneath its tangled bower.

(Tropical Forest, Day)

ROLL: 38, another “roll twice” result. Two 2d20 rolls later, the DM has before him a notable occurrence and a creature encounter. The notable occurrence table roll is 62: “Animal snare: Set up by trappers or local intelligent creatures for food, fur, etc. This could be an ankle snare, bear trap, net trap, concealed pit, etc. There is a 10% chance per hour that the creature that set the trap comes to check on it. Spot check (DC 20) avoids the trap.” The creature encounter is “rolled” as 666, number of the beast. This turns out to be a monstrous dire frog (from the Tome of Horrors)! The DM then examines the monsters on the tropical table, and decides the snare was set by a tribe of primitive goblins that live in this section of the jungle.

RESULT: Following game trails toward their goal, the Hamfist comes across an animal snare set by indigenes. Lurking nearby, hoping for a snack is the aforementioned dire toad, which will take advantage of the snare to feast on helpless prey.

The goblins that set the snare have been having problems lately with an increase in the numbers of dire toads. If the PCs slay the beast and stick around, eventually a goblin hunting party will come upon them, and a successful Diplomacy check (DC 12 if the toad is killed and the PCs are not hostile, DC 20 if not) will get them talking. It is even possible for enterprising PCs to befriend the goblin tribe, who could then tell them where in the Tanigal the ruined shrine they seek lies!

Example 7

Seeking the fabled Eye of Arden, four brave 12th level adventurers have hired a crew in a coastal town and set sail into deep waters, seeking the island upon which it is said to be hidden within a deadly maze.

(Tropical Aquatic, Day)

ROLL: The DM rolls a “roll again twice” result, then ends up with a creature and weather encounter. The creatures are a swarm of 13 small barracuda; the weather is a thunderstorm. The DM consults the DMG (Chapter 3), and rolls a 1 on 1d10 to determine if a tornado is present...looks like the PCs are in for a world of hurt.

RESULT: The skies darken ahead, and the sailors barely have time to reef the sails and batten the hatches before grey-black clouds roll in. As the wind picks up and rain starts to fall, the party makes out a frightening sight: lightning bolts crackle in the heavens ahead, limning the funnel of a great whirlwind bearing in their direction! The sea begins to roil beneath the vessel, and one sailor caught off guard is swept off the deck into the water. The PCs can barely make out his anguished cries and see him swarmed by barracuda before he is lost to view.

Time to make those Profession (sailor) checks and say their prayers

Example 8

The Company of the Oak forces its way along the treacherous mountain path. For days the relentless wind has driven snow and crystals of ice into their faces. Despite the icy breath of death, they knew that the entrance to the tomb lay not far ahead; they merely needed to persevere a little more to reach it.

(Arctic Mountains, Day)

ROLL: After an uneventful morning, the DM finally rolls an 05 on the encounter table, resulting in a monster encounter. With a d1000 roll on the Arctic Day Mountain table, he gets an 032 brown bears (CR 2), 1-2. Considering the weather and climate, bears in this area would probably be hibernating. So the DM considers, and comes up with RESULT: The howling wind increases, in intermittent gusts that threaten to sweep the Company from their rocky ledges. Just as the howling wind becomes unbearable, they reach a cave opening that allows them to escape the weather. Assuming they enter, they may detect through frigid nostrils the heady musk of bear, for two brown bears hibernate in this chamber.

Assuming the characters don’t disturb the bears, they may even be able to rest near them, quietly, and regain their strength. If not, the bears’ fur coats could provide much-needed warmth as their journey continues

Taking shelter from a windstorm, note in the cave of hibernating bears that there is fading light shining from somewhere deeper within. They investigate, and find that the cave has another exit that opens into a narrow valley, sheltered from the wind. It is surprisingly warm here, with the smell of sulfur in the air, and a stream of water flowing, untouched by snow or ice, down the center of the dell from a steaming pool several hundred yards uphill.

As the day fades into night, the PCs proceed up the valley, and the DM decides another random die roll is in order.

(Arctic Mountains, Night)

ROLL: The DM gets rolls until he gets a result “roll again twice” and ends up with a monster and a notable encounter. The monster, rolled on the appropriate chart, is a group of 1-8 half-fogres (from the Tome of Horrors). The encounter is: “An area is contaminated with dangerous spores, poisonous gas, etc. Roll 1d100 to determine effect.” The DM rolls on a subtable and gets, “Coma (Will save DC 15 or fall into a coma, lasting as long as in the area plus 1-4 hours).”

RESULT: The PCs make the headwaters of the pool, over a rocky lip. Smoking thermal vents surrounds the bowl-shaped declivity at the headwaters, and several cave openings in the cliff face can be seen, leading further into the mountain. Near the far end of the pool, a group of six fur-wearing humanoids lie near the pool, apparently asleep.

In fact, the thermal vents in this area contain harmful toxins that cause lightheadedness and then an unconscious stupor to those failing Fortitude save (changed from a Will save because Fort makes more sense in this case). PCs that fail join the half-ogres in slumber. Those that make it can try dragging their comrades out of the invisible gas field, or even rescuing one or more of the half-ogres. If rescued, the grateful humanoids might provide the PCs with guidance on how to navigate the warren of tunnels in this part of the mountains to take them to the Deathfast, their name for the tomb the company seeks.

Example 9

The Company tries its best to forget the accursed teleporters of the frozen tomb, and the shambling corpse-infested forest into which they were cast. Fleeing a swarm of twitching juju zombies, the Company of the Oak finds a serviceable canoe on the bank of a river, in an abandoned fishing hamlet. Just steps away from the hopping, moaning corpses they push off into the stream and hope for the best

(Temperate forest; freshwater shallow, night)

ROLL: 35 on the encounter table (rerolling “no encounter” results) yields. Travelers! Rolling on the travelers subtable, the DM comes up with a caravan what would it be doing in a place such as this? (Note that a monster result could have ended up with a roll on the freshwater encounter table or the temperate forest encounter table, as the DM preferred). Rolling on the caravan generator, the DM arrives at a Poor caravan carrying salt, a total of 36 pounds of it, valued at only about 12.5 gp. This could easily fit into a canoe, so the DM decides that it is in fact in a canoe rowed by a lone commoner. But how did he manage to find his way here?

RESULT: Half an hour downstream, the party is hailed from the far bank, where a lone canoe lies partly hidden by draping willows. The rower quickly moves his canoe out from the screening foliage and greets the party with a cry of welcome. The man in the boat claims to be a lone merchant from a small fishing community upstream who had gone into the hills further up the valley to trade for salt to pack fish with from the salt miners who live in that region. Unfortunately, on his way back downstream, as he was camping for the evening, a group of ill-washed gnolls came upon him in the dark and nearly overwhelmed him. Had they not spent so much time arguing over who was going to eat him, he would not have had a chance to make a break for his canoe. He made it, shoved off, and rowed frantically for midstream. The gnolls were furious, and shot sling stones at him. One of them scored a hit (knocking him unconscious, at -1 hit points, where he stabilized), and his canoe drifted downstream for hours before he came to, realizing to his horror that he had drifted past his village and into the bowers of the terrible Aldrych Forest, from which no one ever returns. Since then his life has been one of utter terror; he has seen humanoid shapes lurching and loping along the banks, with occasional glimpses provided by flashes of reflected moonlight on the river revealing only their inhumanity. Further, he believes that there are things in the river following his craft, and he can occasionally see unexplained disturbances in the water, as of some great thing moving unseen beneath the surface. He is at his wit’s end, and would be eternally grateful for any aid the PCs can provide.

“I told you not to go down the well,” muttered Blurgok for the fiftieth time. The dwarf was truly wearing on Asmandel’s nerves; he didn’t know how much more of it he could take before the bearded freak discovered the joys of life polymorphed into a cave lizard.

It had been a nightmare flight, first along an underground river, chased by flying spooks that claimed one comrade after another. Finally, only the two of them left, they came to a narrow side passage just above the surface of the water and dove in, hoping to make better time on solid ground. “My rock senses always tell me true,” Blurgok had claimed. “Hope lies on this path. I can feel it.”

That was uncounted hours ago hours of trudging along a narrow, cramped stone, like passing through the intestines of some cyclopean titan of old. As the hours passed without food or solace of any kind, the death of their comrades and the dwindling sense of hope soured Blurgok’s mood, and Asmandel was feeling no better.

Hearing Blurgok mutter something under his breath, the elf finally decided she had had enough. She rounded on the dwarf, ready to unleash a blistering tirade, then forgot her words at the look of excitement peering out beneath the thick padding of chin-whiskers that swarmed Blurgok’s face. His eyes gleamed in the light of their last sunrod; his nostrils flared, and he whispered excitedly, “Don’t ya feel it, lass? That heat can mean only one thing we’re near some thermal vents. And where there’s warmth, there’s light and food! C’mon!” With that, Blurgok and Asmandel hastened forward to see what would greet them in the chamber beyond .

(underground deep, secondary passage)

ROLL: The DM rolls on the subterranean encounters, secondary passage table, and comes up (after several “no encounter” results) with a 14: a monster! Consulting the subterranean, deep table, and rolling on the secondary passage column, he gets a 143, which is 1d4 darnocs (4 are rolled)! What manner of fell beast is this, culled from the Tome of Horrors? The DM pulls forth said book and consults it, shaking his head over the fiendishness of one Scott Greene. Doing a quick calculation, this looks to be an EL 10 encounter (four CR 6 creatures), against two fatigued 12th level PCs.

RESULT: Hurrying forward, the sense of heat increases, and is soon accompanied by a dim red glow. They round a final bend, and find themselves at the opening of a great cavern. The floor is festooned in patches near the walls with fungus reaching up to chest height, but the most arresting sight is the river of molten stone that flows along the far wall, bubbling from a large crevice in the wall. The heat is oppressive.

Blurgok, scanning the area warily, utters an exclamation and moves left several dozen paces, then bends over and picks up an ancient mining pick, still intact, though the head looks a bit wobbly. Examining it with a critical eye, Blurgok pronounces, "Dwarven manufacture. I'd stake my beard on it." He then turns his attention to the walls, and his eyes widen. He reaches out with trembling hands to touch the crystalline formations adorning the rock face. "By Lucifer's fiery beard, these are diamonds, or I'm no dwarf!"

Asmandel moved over to the dwarf more warily. Something about this place the abandoned equipment, the wall studded with such obvious wealth and a chill that seized her flesh despite the baking heat from the river of magma behind them all of these set her senses to high gear. And thus she noticed with alarm the quartet of ghostly dwarves to their right, a group that wasn't there moments ago. Yet there they stood, clutching phantom mining picks and clutching phantom jewels in their greedy fists.

"Ours," they whispered with ethereal voices. "Now you are ours too." Two started drifting closer, while the other two faded into nothingness.

"Uh, Blurgok, I don't mean to interrupt your lustful contemplation, but I think we're in BIG trouble." Enjoy!

We created these tables for you—the overworked DM. We've all been there. Players want to play but you aren't ready. Players go somewhere or do something you weren't ready for. Or you want to spark some ideas because the well of creativity can seem empty even for the most creative DMs among us. Don't let these tables rule your creativity, let your creativity rule these tables. Use them as you see fit; but most of all, use them.

Table 2-7A: Underground Creature Encounters-Near-Surface

Roll on this table if within 10 miles of the surface.

The primary column is used for major passageways and adits; secondary for lesser passages, and tertiary for minor passageways (no more than five feet wide). Aquatic is used for underground rivers, streams, and lakes.

THE MOTHER OF ALL ENCOUNTER TABLES

Notes

1. Hazard is as per the DMG, Chapter 3, the Environment section.
2. Calm, windless weather is often a hazard when asea; a calm has a noncumulative 5% chance of ending each hour.
3. A cliff $20 + 1d6 \times 10$ feet blocks further progress. If the area is heavily overgrown, those failing a Spot check (DC 15) must make a Reflex save (DC 20) or fall over the edge.
4. The earthquake lasts for $5 + 1d20$ rounds. Roll 1d10 to determine intensity; for the duration, structures take $5 + \text{intensity}$ points of damage, though Hardness applies. All creatures standing must make a Balance check (DC $10 + \text{intensity}$) each round or fall over; those with four legs get +4 to the save, and those with 6 or more need not save.
5. A forest fire moves at $1d4 \times 10$ feet per round, and burns in an area for 10-30 minutes before moving on. Those within the fire zone take $3d6$ points of damage each round and may be set on fire.
6. A grassfire moves $1d6 \times 10$ feet per round, and burns in an area for one minute before moving on. Those caught within the fire zone take $2d6$ points of damage each round and risk being set afire.
7. In a desert, finding a reliable watering hole is a rare occurrence. There is a 10% chance it is poisoned, and 60% it is guarded by some local sentient race if it is not poisoned.
8. Those within quicksand must make a Reflex save each round (DC 15) or sink one foot deeper into the mire. Holding still provides a +2 bonus to the roll, but does not help in escaping. A Swim check (DC 16) is allowed to move 5 feet each round, but the Reflex save is automatically failed if this is done.
9. The land in the area is a thin crust over a series of hollowed caverns. Every minute while in the area, there is a 10% chance of breaking through, requiring a Reflex save (DC 15) to avoid tumbling down 10-20 feet.
10. A volcanic eruption is generally fairly rare, and active volcanoes are well-known. Those within a few miles of an eruption must deal with earthquakes, falling ash, clouds of toxic gas (as a cloudkill spell), giant cinders falling from above, and possibly molten lava.
11. Waterspouts are diaphenous twisters seen at sea that can damage sea vessels if it runs across them. Treat as a tornado, but with a Fort save of 18, and only sweeping creatures and objects up for $1d4$ rounds.
12. Whirlpools have a radius increment of $4 + 1d20$ feet. At five times this distance creatures move one increment towards it unless a Swim or Profession (sailor) check is made (DC 15). At 3 times the radius increment, the DC of this check increases to 20; at 2 times the radius increment, the DC increases to 30; and within one increment, the creature or vessel is sucked down to the bottom of the ocean, taking pressure and falling damage accordingly.

Subtable 4-I

Encounter	Overland	Urban	Trade Route	Overseas	Underwater	Subterranean
A creature from another climate/terrain is encountered, possibly migrating, lost, or on a pilgrimage. Roll a wandering monster from a different climate/terrain table than the one the characters are in.	01-04	01	01-08	01-40	01-08	01-02
A distant crashing or loud noise is heard, as of a great beast moving about in the distance. It is the DM's call what is causing the noise.	05-14	-	09-16	-	-	03-04
A powerful individual has gotten drunk, smoked bad pipeweed, or is otherwise disturbed and running amok. Treat as a random NPC rolled on table 6-1, with a level no lower than that of the highest-level PC. He will attack anyone who gets in his way, and will otherwise lash out randomly.	02-14		-	02	17-18	--
A press gang looking for slaves or "recruits" for the military sees the PCs as possible candidates. These should be War1 or Rog1 NPCs, led by a second level NPC; there should be at least two per PC, or they won't attempt anything.	15-25	-	-	03-25	19-26	--
A small shack or cave mouth opens into a luxuriously-appointed suite of rooms, which is actually a permanent Leo's Secure Shelter. Immediately roll for another random encounter to see if it is tenanted.	15	-	27-28	-	-	05
Abandoned lair: The old lair, den, or nest of a particular creature (roll on the random monster table appropriate for the climate/terrain). A Wilderness Lore check (DC 15) identifies the creature that once lived there.	16-37	-	-	-	09-53	06-55

Airless zone: This area is completely barren and devoid of life, for the very good reason that it is a pocket of vacuum. Those who enter immediately begin to suffocate, and suffer 1d4 Con damage each round as their bodily fluids boil away.	38	-	-	-	-	56
An area is contaminated with dangerous spores, poisonous gas, etc. Roll 1d100 to determine effect: 01-10 = as ungod dust; 11-20 as burnt other fumes; 21-40 = as insanity mist; 41-50 = as the cloudkill spell; 51-60 = as id moss (but inhaled); 61-70 = hallucinogenic (acts as a confusion spell, Will save DC 12); 71-80 = euphoria/extreme pleasure (Will save DC 14+1/round of exposure to do anything other than bliss out); 81-90 = coma (Will save DC 15 or fall into a coma, lasting as long as in the area plus 1-4 hours); 91-00 = yellow mold spores.	39-42	-	-	-	54-61	57-71
An army is on the march. They may be moving out as relief troops for a distant outpost, or going to war. Roll 1d100 to determine type: 01-60 = common footsoldiers (1d10 x 50), 61-70 = light cavalry (2d10 x 20), 71-80 = scouts or skirmishers (1d10 x 10), 81-85 = heavy infantry (1d10 x 50), 86-90 = berserkers (2d4 x 10), 91-95 = heavy cavalry (2d100), 96-00 = spellcasting troops (2d20). If at sea their ship will be escorted by at least two small warships. Roll or choose the dominant race from table 6-3.	43	26	29-55	41-80	62	72
An old shrine to a deity or animal spirit is chanced upon, only 5% likely still in use. Roll 1d100: 01-40 = common deity; 41-60 = nature spirit or force; 61-70 = demon lord/archdevil; 71-00 = cannot be determined. A Knowledge (religion) check(DC 15) identifies the being worshipped if that is possible.	44-47	27	56-82	-	63	73-74
Animal snare: Set up by trappers or local intelligent creatures for food, fur, etc. This could be an ankle snare, bear trap, net trap, concealed pit, etc. There is a 10% chance per hour that the creature that set the trap comes to check on it. Spot check (DC 20) avoids the trap.	48-70	-	-	-	-	75-89

Antimagic field: An area where magic does not function is encountered, with an overall size determined by the DM. This could be a natural occurrence or the result of an ancient battle. Feel free to roll another wandering encounter right away.	71	-	83-84	81-87	64	90-91
Assassins have targeted a PC or someone nearby. There are 1d3, and they should be a combined EL equal to the target's level plus two.	72	28	85-86	-	-	-
Avatar or sign from a particular deity.	73	29	87-88	88-93	65	92
Battle site: Vultures, crows, or other carrion animals are spotted nearby, feasting on the remains of some creatures. Roll or pick two creature encounters from the wandering monster table of the appropriate climate/terrain to determine which creatures fought. Only 5% chance the bodies were unlooted.	74-83	-	89-96	-	66	93-94
Burial site: A graveyard, burial mound, mausoleum, or other funerary location is encountered. 15% likely to still be used, 50% likely to be undead-infested. Many such sites are concealed, especially if long unused, and require a Spot check (DC 20) to notice.	84-87	30-98	-	-	67	95-96
Caves: A series of natural caves or caverns are discovered. The size of this cave complex is left for the DM to determine.	88-97	-	-	-	68-98	-
Climate variance: An area is encountered, possibly the size of a small valley or island, with a climate different than the normal one, such as a tropical jungle infested with dinosaurs deep in alpine crags, or a bone-dry desert in the center of a murky swamp.	98	-	97-98	94-00	99	97
Continuous flame on some object is found, still burning merrily after uncounted hours, days, or years of abandonment.	99	99	-	-	00	98-99
Cursed item: The group comes across an abandoned campsite, and on searching it (Spot DC 20 or Search DC 10) they come across a valuable-looking item that is actually cursed. The DM can roll a cursed item from the DMG or determine one for himself; it should not appear (or identify) as cursed, however.	00	00	99-00	-	-	00

Subtable 4-2

Encounter	Overland	Urban	Trade Route	Overseas	Underwater	Subterranean
Eclipse: A solar eclipse occurs, blotting out the sun and possibly panicking superstitious creatures in the region.	01	01	01	01	-	-
Escaped slave: Someone has managed to flee their captors and is on the run. They will throw themselves on the PCs' mercy if they think they won't be turned over to their captors or killed. Roll on table 6-3 to determine the race. To determine class, roll 1d100: 01-30 = no class or Com1; 31-50 = Com2; 51-60 = Com3; 61-70 = Exp1; 71-75 = Exp2; 76-80 = War1; 81-83 = War2; 84-00 = roll on NPC adventurer table, level 3 maximum.	02-04	02	02	-	-	01-04
Ethereal thin zone: The barrier between the prime plane and the ethereal plane has become thin, resulting in a 10% chance per minute that those within the zone move from one to the other.	05	-	-	02	01	05
Extraplanar thin zone: The barrier between the prime plane and an elemental plane has worn thin, tainting the environment. Within this area, elemental creatures of the matching type are considered to be in contact with their element, and save DCs versus effects of the chosen element receive a +2 circumstance increase. Natural animals and plants do not willingly dwell/grow in such an area. Roll 1d100: 01-25 = air zone (air is unusually clean and fresh, possibly with a hint of exotic odors; underwater, the air is constantly fizzing as if carbonated); 26-50 = earth zone (a sense of pressure and constraint shadows the senses of all in the area; movement is reduced by 1/3 and visibility by 1/2 unless one has a burrowing speed and tremorsense, respectively); 51-75 = fire zone (area is considered very hot, possibly causing heat damage (see the DMG for details); 76-00 = water zone (area is thick, misty, and humid; underwater the water becomes unusually pure).	06	03	03	03	02	06
Food spoilage: Some of the group's food or water rations become tainted by weevils, mold, or another contaminant, ruining 1-6 days of rations for one person.	07-16	04-21	04-26	04-74	03-47	07-16

Encounter	Overland	Urban	Trade Route	Overseas	Underwater	Subterranean
Glowing motes: The air is filled with hundreds of tiny glowing motes whose origin cannot be seen. These could be caused by lights held by ethereal creatures, an ancient spell gone awry, a strange new monster, or another reason determined by the DM.	17	-	-	-	48	17
Graffiti: Writing is found, possibly chiseled into stone, carved into wood, written in small stones set onto the ground, etc. This could be a symbol, phrase, or picture. DM's determination as to what it says, what language it is written in, and what relevance it has to the area.	18-27	22-51	27-56	-	49	18-27
Grisly display: Bodies are encountered hanged, impaled, or otherwise mounted to ward off or warn intruders. Wilderness Lore check (DC 25) determines the race responsible. The races of the creatures on display can be rolled from the random monster table appropriate to the climate/terrain.	28-30	52-55	57-59	-	-	28-31
Hive mind: The wildlife in the area has for some reason developed a group consciousness (Int 6+1d8), 50% neutral, but otherwise an alignment for the DM to determine.	31	56	60	75	50	32
Hot spring: A natural hot spring is found. Roll 1d4 and add 6 to determine the heat intensity. Those falling into the spring suffer a number of d6s of damage equal to the heat intensity each round.	32-41	-	-	-	51-80	33-79
Insect swarm: The party comes across a swarm of insects; 50% likely to be flying insects. Treat as a naturally occurring insect swarm, as the xth level spell.	42-44	-	61	-	-	-
Lights in the sky: The sky is filled with distant flashing, glittering, or swooping lights whose origin is left to the DM to determine.	45	57	62	76	-	-
Lost mount: A riding dog, horse, or even aerial mount that has become separated from its master and lost is encountered. There is a 50% chance the owner is dead, but otherwise he or she will be looking for the creature. It bears equipment as the DM sees fit.	46	58-61	63-65	-	81	80

Magical spring: A spring of enchanted water is discovered; roll a random minor potion effect from the DMG to determine its properties if drunk. It loses its potency if it is bottled and removed from the spring. There is a 75% chance of a wandering monster encounter (rolled from the appropriate climate/terrain table) at the spring.	47	-	-	-	82-89	81-84
Major calamity: A great magical effect has been unleashed somewhere that affects the region or even the entire planet. Perhaps this is the result of an artifact being triggered, or perhaps the scheme of an evil people was foiled just as it reached fruition. Examples: the sun stops in its course for 24 hours; gravity is reversed everywhere for one second, causing many injuries and deaths; utter darkness or silence envelops the land for a minute; all magic ceases to function for a minute or a day; all dead that are not magically protected spontaneously animate as skeletons or zombies with a lust to kill living beings; every intelligent being is subjected to a maze spell; everyone is granted a single wish, as the spell, though they are not granted knowledge of this bequest.	48	62	66	77	90	85
Mine: A mine for some type of precious metal or substance (roll on table 6-5). This is 60% likely to be played out and abandoned by its makers (but 70% likely to be inhabited by a subterranean race; roll on table 2-33, Shallow Subterranean Primary Encounters). If it is in use, roll or pick a sentient race from table 6-3.	49-51	-	-	-	91	86-95
Misplaced item: Someone in the group has dropped or misplaced a small but important item sometime within the last 1-8 hours.	51-53	63-66	67-69	78-00	92-99	96-99
Mount goes lame: If the group is riding on mounts, one of them goes lame, slowing its movement by half until it is healed. If no mounts are present, then a group member twists his ankle and suffers the same penalties to movement.	54-91	67-96	70-99	-	-	-
Obelisk: An enigmatic menhir, pylon, or pillar of stone is discovered, possibly (50% chance) etched with strange writings. The origin and purpose of this marker is left for the DM to determine.	92-95	-	-	-	00	00

Encounter	Overland	Urban	Trade Route	Overseas	Underwater	Subterranean
One or more fawning sycophants come upon the PCs and follow them around pestering them. If the PCs are low level, they are mistaken for more famous adventurers; otherwise they may be taken for who they are.	96-00	97-00	00	-	-	-

Subtable 4-3

Encounter	Overland	Urban	Trade Route	Overseas	Underwater	Subterranean
Ore deposit: An unmined deposit of precious minerals is chanced upon, though a successful Spot check (DC 20) is required to notice it.	01-02	-	-	-	-	01-03
Prophetic dream: Roll or choose a random encounter for the next day. The night before, one of the characters has a prophetic dream that foreshadows this encounter. Feel free to make the encounter more challenging than usual, and the dream as cryptic as you wish.	03-04	01-08	01-03	01-10	01-07	04-06
Rare or unique creature wandering the countryside; roll on table 6-4.	05-06	09	04	11-14	08-14	07-09
Rare plant is found, though a Wilderness Lore check (DC 20) is required to recognize its value. This could be a medicinal plant, a drug, a poisonous plant, or anything the DM determines is viable. Value should be no more than $1d10 \times 10$ gp total.	07-08	-	-	-	15-21	10-12
Ruined settlement: The ruins of a community are found; pick a race indigenous to the region or roll on table x to determine what the dominant race living here was. There is a 60% chance it is now the lair of some beasts. If so, roll on the appropriate wandering monster table for the climate/terrain.	09-10	-	05	-	22-23	13
Runaway cart: A cart, wagon, or other vehicle is uncontrolled and may be a hazard if on a slope.	-	10-19	06-08	-	-	-
Snake surprise: While sleeping, 1-3 snakes seek the warmth of a traveler's bedroll. These are only 10% likely to be venomous, but the sleeper won't necessarily know this! A Wisdom check (DC 20) is allowed to initially spot the intrusion; a Dexterity check (DC 20) allows one to slip free without disturbing the visitors. In arctic and subarctic climes, treat as no encounter.	11-12	-	09-11	-	-	-

Encounter	Overland	Urban	Trade Route	Overseas	Underwater	Subterranean
Sounds of battle or arguing can be heard from nearby. Investigation reveals a confrontation between two or more species, rolled randomly or chosen by the DM from the wandering monster table of the appropriate climate/terrain.	13-14	-	12-14	-	24-30	14-16
Strange air coloration: The air has an unusual tint, possibly with an associated strange odor. The effect is harmless unless the DM deems otherwise.	15	-	-	-	-	17
Strange hush: An unnatural hush falls over the area; the wind does not blow, no animal sounds are heard, etc. The cause of this is left for the DM to determine.	16-17	20	15-17	15-25	-	-
Supernatural climate/terrain: The group comes across a magically-produced environment, such as: water that flows uphill, a bottomless pit, a rock or mountain floating in midair, or a collection of smooth stone spires.	18-19	-	18	-	31-37	18-20
Teleport zone: All within the area are subject to random teleportation at the DM's whim. There is a noncumulative 10% chance per ten minutes of this occurring, snatching up all creatures and their possessions.	20	-	-	-	38-39	21
The group unknowingly comes into contact with a disease (from the DMG or of the DM's devising). Simple ailments such as the common cold or flu are most likely.	21-49	21-70	19-48	26-85	40-96	22-65
The PCs suffer the indignity of having a chamberpot emptied as they pass beneath a window. Reflex save (DC 15) avoids contents.	-	71-80	-	-	-	-
The remains of an old campsite are found, with fire pit, cleared ground, etc. Wilderness Lore (DC 20) determines the creatures that camped there. There is a 5% chance that some item of value was left behind (max. 100 gp value).	50-97	-	49-78	-	-	66-95

Encounter	Overland	Urban	Trade Route	Overseas	Underwater	Subterranean
Thief on the run: A scoundrel has slit one purse too many, and is being chased by the local authorities. He may try using the PCs in some way for aid, either as allies or as a distraction. He may even try slipping the stolen merchandise into a PC's bag. If he does this and gets away, he'll be back looking for it later. Treat the thief as a Rogue level 1-6.	-	81-88	79	-	-	-
Uncommanded undead: 1-3 skeletons or zombies are encountered, commanded to await instructions by their master, then abandoned. They will not attack unless attacked first, and can be turned or rebuked normally. They carry no treasure or weaponry.	98	-	-	-	-	96
Visitation: The group receives repeated visitations by a ghostly apparition that returns until a particular deed is accomplished. The ghostly figure does not attack, and can be turned but not destroyed. Each time a non-monster random encounter is rolled, there is a 50% chance it is another visitation. The phantom may spook animals, disturb sleep, or inspire dread; it is up to the DM to determine its origin and what needs to be done to let it rest.	99	89	80	86-89	97-98	97
Wreck: An overturned cart, damaged wagon, or wrecked ship. This blocks progress along streets and trade routes, and those involved may be angry or in danger.	-	90-00	81-00	90-00	-	-
Zone of confusion: An area of twisted passages, heavy undergrowth, etc. has been rendered more dangerous due to a faint magical aura that confuses the sense of direction of creatures traveling through it (-20 on Intuit Direction checks).	00	-	-	-	99-00	98-00

Table 5-1: Road and Trade Route Encounters

Roll	Result
01-07	NPC adventurers: 1d8 adventurers; roll on table 8-1 to determine party composition if desired.
08-19	Traders/caravan: One or more merchants transporting goods. Roll on table 8-2 to determine composition.
20-31	Hunting party (food): A group of 1d8 people out hunting game for food. 50% these are Com1 led by a Rgr2; otherwise they are Rgr1 led by a Rgr4.
32-38	Hunting party (sport): A group of 1d10 aristocrats (level 1d6 each) with a ranger huntmaster (level = one less than highest aristocrat level) and 1-3 retainers per aristocrat. They are 75% likely to be mounted, and 60% likely to have hounds or similar beasts for flushing game.
39-42	Scouts: A group scouting for a nomadic or barbaric tribe located 1d20 miles away. They will attempt to observe the PCs but avoid a confrontation. The group consists of 1d6 members, each a ranger or rogue of up to 4th level.
43-46	War band: A military force out to loot and pillage. Consists of 3d20 common members (War1 if a class is needed), led by one first level fighter, ranger, or barbarian per five members, one 3rd level fighter, ranger, or barbarian per ten members, and one fighter, ranger, or barbarian war 1 leader level 5-7. Group is 1% likely per member to have a Clr3 or Adp3, and 1% likely per member to have a Wiz3 or Sor3.
47-58	Foot patrol: Soliders or militiamen keeping the trade routes safe. 3d6 common soldiers, two 2nd level lieutenants, and a 4th level leader.
59-65	Mounted patrol: Soldiers mounted on light warhorses or the equivalent. There are 2d8 common soldiers, one 3rd level lieutenant, and one 5th level leader.
66-72	Brigands: A semiorganized band of 2d10 first level rogues and warriors, led by a single leader (roll on table 8-1 to determine leader's class and level).
73-76	Pilgrims: A band of worshippers of a particular deity (roll or choose on table 8-4 to determine which), led by a leader cleric or monk. The pilgrims are 80% commoners, but otherwise are monks or clerics of 1st-3rd level. The leader is always at least 4th level.
77-80	Lone knight: Seeking to prove his mettle; this could be a paladin, a competent fighter, or a blackguard seeking to slay champions of good. Roll on table 8-1 to determine specifics. Will always be mounted on a heavy warhorse and well armed. 80% likely to have 1d3 commoner retainers or slaves.
81-84	Slavers: 4d6 slaves in chains guarded by 2d4 first level warriors and 1-3 3rd level lieutenants. Group is led by an expert level 3-6.
85-96	Locals: A band of 1d10 local farmers, woodsmen, etc. traveling the road, all Com1-3.
97-00	Roll from the Urban Encounters table, using the chart based on the largest community within 20 miles.

77	86	1	Ghost ship (roll again to determine type; 01-40 = unoccupied, 41-80 = skeleton or zombie crew, 81-00 = draug crew)
78	87-90	1	Aquatic trade group (roll on table x to determine race; they seek trade with surface ships, and will not instigate an attack)
79	91	1	Adventurers (1d8 members rolled on the NPC adventurer tables 8-x, running a small warship with a seasoned crew)
80-84	92-95	1	Slave ship (currently has 2d20 slaves on board; 25% likely to have an escort of 1-2 small warships)
85-95	96-99	1-6	Cargo/supply ship (90% protected by 1-2 small warships per cargo ship)
96-00	00	1	Pleasure yacht (owned by an aristocrat who enjoys sailing; deep sea yachts will always be escorted by 1-2 small warships)

THE MOTHER OF ALL ENCOUNTER TABLES

Table 5-3: Subterranean Trade Route Encounters

Roll	Result
01-08	NPC adventurers: 1d8 adventurers; roll on table 8-1 to determine party composition if desired.
09-32	Traders/caravan: One or more merchants transporting goods. Roll on table 8-2 to determine composition.
33-57	Hunting party (food): A group of 1d8 people out hunting game for food. Members are 1st level for shallow encounters, 3rd level for deep. They are led by a ranger or barbarian of 4th level if shallow, 6-8th level if deep. Note that they may consider PCs a good food source.
58-64	Scouts: A group scouting for a community located 1d20 miles away. They will attempt to observe the PCs but avoid a confrontation. The group consists of 1d6 members, each a ranger or rogue of up to 4th level for shallow encounters, 3rd-8th level for deep encounters.
65-68	War band: A military force out to loot and pillage. Consists of 3d20 common members (War1 if a class is needed), led by one first level fighter, ranger, or barbarian per five members, one 3rd level fighter, ranger, or barbarian per ten members, and one fighter, ranger, or barbarian war leader level 5-7. Group is 1% likely per member to have a Clr3 or Adp3, and 1% likely per member to have a Wiz3 or Sor3.
69-76	Foot patrol: Soldiers or militiamen keeping the trade routes safe. 3d6 common soldiers, two 2nd level lieutenants, and a 4th level leader.
77-84	Mounted patrol: Soldiers mounted on giant lizards, riding spiders or the equivalent. There are 2d8 common soldiers, one 3rd level lieutenant, and one 5th level leader; bump these levels up by +2 to +3 each if a deep encounter.
85-92	Brigands: A semiorganized band of 2d10 first level rogues and warriors, led by a single leader (roll on table 8-1 to determine leader's class and level). Increase levels by +2 or +3 if a deep encounter.
93-00	Slavers: 4d6 slaves in chains guarded by 2d4 first level warriors and 1-3 3rd level lieutenants. Group is led by an expert level 3-6.

Section 6: Miscellaneous Tables

SECTION 6: MISCELLANEOUS TABLES

6-I: NPC Adventurer Generator

Use the following procedure to generate an NPC adventuring band:

1. Race: If race has not been determined, roll on table 6-3.
2. Gender: 01-50 = male, 51-00 = female.
3. Level: If not determined, roll on table 6-1A below; for additional party members, apply 10% to the roll to raise or lower subsequent levels rolled toward the amount rolled for the initial character.
4. Class: If not determined, roll on table 6-1B below
5. Stats: Roll stats for the character using table 6-1C below if stats have not been predetermined
6. Alignment: Roll once on each subtable of 6-1D below for the leader, then make adjusted rolls as described for other members.
7. Equipment: Use one of the standard equipment packages listed in the DMG; for multiclass, pick between the two character class lists.

Table 6-IA: Overall Level

51-54	Monk	94	Bard/Sorcerer multiclass*
55-57	Paladin	95	Ranger/Rogue multiclass*
58-65	Ranger	96	Ranger/Druid multiclass*
66-79	Rogue	97-00	Other multiclass *

(roll 1d100 twice more, ignoring results of 97-00)

*For multiclass combos, split levels evenly between the two classes.

SECTION 6: MISCELLANEOUS TABLES

6-2: Caravan Generator

1. Roll on table 6-2A to determine the general value of the merchandise being transported.
2. Roll on table 6-2B to determine the specific goods being transported; the overall volume should determine how big the caravan itself is.
3. On table 6-2C pick an appropriate mode of transport for the items in question, based on where the encounter takes place.
4. On tables 6-2D and 6-2E determine the size and composition of the caravan members and guards.

Table 6-2A: Caravan Size and Value
