Totally Random Tables

What do you do when you've got nothing... literally, no ideas are coming to you? Same thing you do when your wife changes the locks. Roll on a random table!

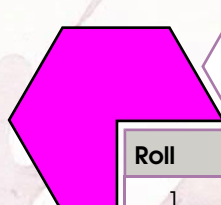

Use this collection of unapologetically random tables either before or during the session. Won't do you much good to roll after it's over, but hey - you do you! During the game, this will give you (the GM) wondrous notions to shape the world your players experience.

Rolling before the game provides you with ideas, as well as, a challenge. Roll as many times as you think you can manage, write down the results, and see how many you can include in the adventure before your time and/or energy runs out.

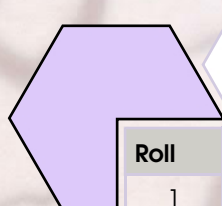

How does it work? Simply roll a d30 and d6 together. The d30 tells you which truly random table to roll on; the d6 specifies the result. Good luck!
