VIOLENCE IN VILLAGES

Remote Villages Decimated. Will Darringmoor be next?

There are reports Villagers — including women and children — have been killed by Vndead to the north of Darringmoor in a surge of Sirrith supported violence.

This publication has received specific allegations from two separate sources about mass killings in the isolated Symene village North of Darringmoor, in the Stonebrow Mountains.

"So far reports - I think quite credible - mention about 13 people including women and children killed," a reliable source reported. "That happened about a week ago when, suddenly, undead forces surround the village at dusk and, together with Sirrith cultists, decimated the village," he went on to say.

One farmer showed me a newly turned path of ground and said "This is where the dead bodies from Symene were buried ... "

We believe the villager death toll could be much higher with so many isolated, remote villagers that are difficult to contact. This publication intends to visit each one and find out the truth.

What is Farwick doing?

Ormoceans must unite and demand that Saint Farwick and his ilk be removed from the public positions and be reprimanded for defamation and bigotry of gnomes. We are fast moving toward our own Ormocean apartheid, building walls and cloaking bigotry in the guise of "upholding the law"

SEPARATIST ELVES

The Elves are not helping the Darringmoor Citizens, despite living within the Elven Conclave within the city walls, a damning investigation has found.

Elvish ambassadors were originally invited to be part of the city, to contribute to all aspects of city life, yet when Blacklight Day hit, they were nowhere to be seen. Why are they keeping themselves apart? When asked to comment on this, they declined an interview.

Research undertaken by this publication, on a number of Elvish communities within the human world, has discovered that none are inclined to integrate, help or contribute to the communities they live in in any manner, instead preferring to keep their own traditions, while looking scornfully down on other races.

OPPRSSING ORMOCEANS

What is going on in our Darringmoor today? When simple journalists are told what to write, what to say and what to print? If they write anything outside the party line they are "breaking the law."

Let's face it... there are so MANY Ormocean laws, it is very easy to 'break' one and not even know it! Ormoceans of conscience should write to their various newspapers and demand that they stick to religious practices and keep their nose out of scribe's business.

St Farwick still really wants to be my friend rather than doing anything of consequence - maybe he's used to paying for companionship?
