INTRODUCTION

Welcome to Index: Chaos. This book is one of five mighty tomes which together contain updated rules for every unit of miniatures in Warhammer 40,000. If you have an army of Chaos Space Marines, Chaos Daemons or Renegade Knights, this volume contains all the information you need to field your models in the new edition of the Warhammer 40,000 game.

Within these pages are descriptions of the factions in thrall to the Ruinous Powers, and detailed rules entries, known as datasheets, for every unit of Chaos Citadel miniatures. When taken together with the Warhammer 40,000 rulebook, you will have everything you need to field the armies of Chaos on the battlefield. The knowledge contained in this tome will ready you to conquer the lapdogs of the false Emperor and slay alien hordes alike.

In the legends of the Warhammer 40,000 universe, the hordes of Chaos are the arch-villains. The Traitor Legions are twisted betrayers that trace their origins back to the Horus Heresy; the original nemeses of the Space Marines. Marching alongside them are Chaos Renegades, those Chapters who turned to the Dark Gods in the long millennia since. No act of treachery or slaughter is beyond these damned souls.

The Chaos Daemons that fight alongside these Heretic Astartes warbands are anarchy, despair and bloodlust given form. There is no foe more inhuman, no enemy more deadly. These are creatures of rage, despair, mutation and obsession, and they can call upon the raw power of the gods. Behind these hosts of fiends and madmen come colossal walkers known as Renegade Knights, their cannons blasting infantry and tanks to pieces as they revel in their own sheer power. These murderous hosts are on the warpath, for through the baleful schemes of their leaders, the galaxy is beset as never before. Chaos is ascendant. If you like playing the part of the bad guys, there's never been a better time!

Chaos armies plunder and slay wherever they go – and this time, you are their foremost commander. So, what are you waiting for?

INSIDE YOU WILL FIND:

- Heretic Astartes: The first section introduces the Chaos Space Marines, covering all the characters, units and vehicles available to the Heretic Astartes.
- Chaos Daemons: The outlandish hosts of the four Ruinous Powers are detailed here, from Khorne's blood-crazed hordes to the depraved warriors of Slaanesh.
- Renegade Knights: The rules which allow you to deploy these fearsome machines on the battlefield are provided in this section.
- Battle-forged Armies: This section explains how you can organise your Chaos armies for matched play games, and provides photocopyable roster sheets you can use to record your forces.

HERETIC ASTARTES

Twisted and corrupt, the Heretic Astartes are Space Marines who have fallen from the Emperor's grace. These monstrous traitors worship the Dark Gods of Chaos, and they fight not for the good of Humanity, but instead for their own personal gratification and glory.

Ten thousand years ago the Imperium was torn apart by the most brutal and far-reaching civil war in human history. Led by the traitorous Warmaster Horus, fully half of the Emperor's glorious Space Marine Legions succumbed to the lure of Chaos. They turned upon the Imperium that had created them, and almost brought Mankind to its knees before they were finally defeated at the siege of Terra. The surviving Heretic Astartes fled across the galaxy, pursued by the vengeful loyalists, and plunged into the realm of insanity known as the Eye of Terror. There they slid ever deeper into damnation, giving themselves wholly to the gods of Chaos even as they plotted their eventual revenge.

Over the millennia that followed, some traitor warbands met their end through battle, insanity or the rampant mutation that exposure to the powers of Chaos brings. Many more prospered, empowered by the hard-won blessings of the Chaos Gods. With every century that passed, the might and reach of the Heretic Astartes grew. Previously loyal Space Marine Chapters were found wanting, turning their faces from the Emperor and becoming Renegades. Deranged cults of Daemon worshippers flourished in the shadows, billions of Imperial citizens trading away their souls for a fleeting glimpse of the power that the Dark Gods could offer. The Daemon Primarchs led their Traitor Legions to dark new conquests, sending their followers to raid the war-torn worlds of the Imperium even as they drew up their plans for eventual conquest and revenge. Traitor war-leaders such as Abaddon the Despoiler, Huron Blackheart and Kranon the Relentless forged mighty warbands with which to prey upon the hated Imperium. With every passing year the Imperium's light faded a little more, while the baleful star of Chaos rose slowly into the ascendant. Dark omens abounded, and seers ran mad with terror.

Then came the Blackness, and the time of the Great Rift. With empyric storm fronts raging throughout the Imperium, the Heretic Astartes were no longer confined to their hidden strongholds and warp-tainted backwaters. They could strike with impunity, bursting from the malefic warp storms to raid at will. Accompanied by the horrific Daemon legions of the Dark Gods, the Heretic Astartes and their Cultist followers struck at the Imperium on every front, and brought with them only horror and death.

'The Emperor is naught but a corpse, rotting upon a failing throne. He offers nothing. Open your eyes, behold this galaxy's true gods, and see the gifts that they can give...'

- Lord Phraxus the Beguiler, latest master of the Flawless Host

THE MARK OF THE TRAITOR

Broadly speaking, the Heretic Astartes fall into two distinct groups. The first of these, the most ancient and malevolent, are the Traitor Legions. These are the first heretics, the original turncoats who followed their fallen Primarchs into damnation at the behest of Warmaster Horus. Though they have recruited new warriors in the ten thousand years since their fall, still these ancient traitors count many amongst their ranks who fought at the siege of Terra itself. With their lives unnaturally extended and their bodies and souls twisted beyond recognition, these timeless warriors are fuelled by the same hatred that saw them turn their guns upon their brothers all those millennia ago. Many possess strange and terrible gifts bequeathed by their daemon patrons, their appearance and way of war so corrupted as to be all but unrecognisable from what they once were. The warbands of the Traitor Legions tend towards elite specialists who excel in the peculiar ways of war favoured by their patron gods. If they include lesser warriors amongst their ranks, they are typically mortal worshippers that have been twisted into hideous parodies of life by the power of Chaos.

Then there are the Renegades. Fallen more recently from grace, these warriors bear closer resemblance to the loyalist Adeptus Astartes. Many bear arms and armour of current Imperial design, fighting with those weapons that they took into damnation with them, while others fight in a scavenged panoply of wargear looted from the corpses of those loyalists they have slain. Most Renegades belong to Chapters founded long after the end of the Horus Heresy – in some cases, these Chapters have fallen wholesale while others have fragmented, leaving those who remained loyal to shoulder the burden of shame for their brothers who were found wanting. Dynamic, cruel and well equipped, often fighting alongside Cultists who worship them as gods and Daemons they have conjured from the warp, the Renegades are a scourge upon the Imperium and all others who stand in their path.

ANCIENT EVIL

Four of the original Traitor Legions were singled out by the Chaos Gods to become their ultimate mortal avatars. Khorne, the Blood God, chose Angron's furious World Eaters to do his will, while Mortarion and his Death Guard were claimed by the Plague God Nurgle. Slaanesh, the Dark Prince, marked the obsessive Emperor's Children as his, while the Thousand Sons were manipulated into becoming the puppets – and puppetmasters – of Tzeentch. Yet there were other Traitor Legions who retained, to one degree or another, their autonomy and identity, degenerating into twisted parodies of their former glory as the millennia slid by. The Night Lords, terror troops and assault specialists without equal; the Word Bearers, dark heralds of the daemonic and the diabolical; the Iron Warriors, embittered masters of siegecraft; the Alpha Legion, infiltrators, manipulators and agents of mayhem; the Black Legion, first amongst traitors, reborn Legion of Horus himself, now ruled by his greatest gene-son, Abaddon the Despoiler. Amongst the Heretic Astartes, these primogenitors form a sort of twisted elite, and whether fighting as dedicated forces or augmenting the ranks of Renegade warbands they are feared and hated by all.

CHAOS SPACE MARINES

Though the insanity of Chaos leads to endless variation, most traitor warbands follow certain core principles in terms of their organisation. From Renegade raiding parties and turncoat pirates to the immense invasion forces known as Black Crusades, the armies of the Heretic Astartes follow the favoured champions of the Dark Gods into battle, and fight at their command.

PATH TO GLORY

At the head of every Heretic Astartes army there stands a single leader, a despotic warlord so high in the favour of the Chaos Gods that only the most mighty or insane would dare challenge them. Whether a hideous Daemon Prince, an iron-willed Chaos Lord, or some other twisted champion, the leader of the traitor warband rules with a mailed fist. Through fear, violence or manipulation they retain their grip upon the reins of power, and only by appeasing the hunger of the Dark Gods can they evade the abyss of insanity and mutation that awaits.

Below the warband's leader are his lieutenants and advisors. Though most wish to one day hurl their master down and take his throne, these cruel warriors provide invaluable skills and strength to the warband. Sorcerers commune with Daemons and wield the power of the warp as a weapon. Dark Apostles bellow the words of the Dark Gods' heretical creed, driving their comrades to heights of fanatical fervour, while the Warpsmiths tend to the war engines of the Heretic Astartes even as they turn their binharic curses upon those of the foe.

WARRIORS OF THE GODS

Though their numbers vary immensely depending upon the size of the Chaos warband, the heart of every Heretic Astartes force is made up of traitor Space Marines. In the armies of the Traitor Legions these may be suppurating Plague Marines, howling Khorne Berzerkers, golem-like Rubricae, deviant Noise Marines or other equally twisted and embittered specialists. In others – especially the warbands of the Renegades – the bulk of the army is likely to be built around more conventional traitor infantry. Squads of Chaos Space Marines herd hordes of chanting Cultists into battle. Elite Chosen and Chaos Terminators cut bloody paths through the enemy ranks. Hurtling squads of Chaos Space Marine Bikers prey upon the enemy like jackals, while cruel Havocs pound them to ruin from long range with their heavy weapons.

Alongside such units are deployed rarer and more specialised shock troops, many of whom have been twisted into unnatural forms by the powers of the warp. Huge and monstrous, cults of Obliterators and Mutilators lumber into battle with their fleshmetal flowing to form heavy cannons and crushing talons at will. Raptors soar on the howling jets of their jump packs, unleashing terrifying barrages of predatory shrieks to drive their enemies before them like cattle. Stranger still are the semi-daemonic Warp Talons, whose vorpal claws allow them to slash clean through the fabric of reality and spring upon their prey from amidst the madness of the warp.

The ground shakes as the traitor tanks of the Heretic Astartes rumble into battle to support these baleful warriors. Spike-encrusted tanks ferry traitor infantry across the blazing hellscape of no man's land, or subject the foe to thunderous barrages of firepower. Rhinos, Predators, Vindicators and Land Raiders grind the enemy beneath their tracks as their machine spirits snarl like wild beasts.

Stranger still are the hellish machines known as Daemon Engines. Driven by caged daemonic essences, Daemon Engines lope into battle like mythical monsters forged from brass and fury, or soar over the battlefield upon spike-thick wings and roaring jet thrusters. The Daemon Engines' cannons spit rune-inscribed shells and glowing ectoplasma, while their brazen claws and jaws reduce mighty warriors to splintered bone and spraying blood in moments. Nothing short of the heaviest firepower can end the rampage of such infernal monstrosities, and even then only at a most insupportable cost in lives.

DARK MIGHT

The mightiest Chaos Lords can call upon terrifying weapons and infernal allies to bolster their armies of conquest. Looming Chaos Titans the height of hab-blocks advance alongside super-heavy Daemon Engines such as the Lord of Skulls or the terrifying Brass Scorpion. Around their feet fight thronging hordes of traitorous Astra Militarum, their regiments and war machines turned to the cause of Chaos through lies, greed and insanity. Baleful warships ply the void above, their lances and torpedoes tearing apart loyalist spacecraft with impunity. And beyond the veil, the daemonic legions of the Dark Gods writhe and scream, desperate to be summoned forth into realspace where they can slaughter everything in their path for the glory of their monstrous gods.

ORGANISATION OF A TYPICAL CHAOS WARBAND

HERETIC ASTARTES ARMY LIST

This section contains all of the datasheets that you will need in order to fight battles with your Chaos Space Marine miniatures. Each datasheet includes the characteristics profiles of the unit it describes, as well as any wargear and abilities it may have. Some rules are common to several Chaos Space Marine units – these are described below and referenced on the datasheets.

KEYWORDS

Throughout this section you will come across keywords that are within angular brackets, specifically <LEGION> and <MARK OF CHAOS>. These are shorthand for a keyword of your own choosing, as described below.

<LEGION>

Chaos Space Marines belong to a Legion or Renegade Chapter. For simplicity we will refer to all of these as Legions, even though in truth Renegade Chapters have a different genesis.

Some datasheets specify what Legion the unit is drawn from (e.g. Abaddon the Despoiler has the BLACK LEGION keyword, so is from the Black Legion). If a Heretic Astartes datasheet does not specify which Legion it is drawn from, it will have the <LEGION> keyword. When you include such a unit in your army, you must nominate which Legion that unit is from. You then simply replace the <LEGION> keyword in every instance on that unit's datasheet with the name of your chosen Legion.

For example, if you were to include a Chaos Lord in your army, and you decided he was from the Word Bearers Legion, his <LEGION> Faction keyword is changed to WORD BEARERS and his Lord of Chaos ability would then read: 'You can re-roll hit rolls of 1 made for friendly WORD BEARERS units within 6" of this model.'

Note that there are some additional restrictions that apply to the THOUSAND SONS and DEATH GUARD Legions – not all Heretic Astartes units are available to all Chaos Space Marine armies. Both of these Legions are described later in this book, with each description covering which units can be part of the Legions. If you wish to see which units each Legion can include, we recommend reading the relevant section first. Note also that the FALLEN keyword cannot be applied in place of the <LEGION> keyword.

<MARK OF CHAOS>

Many Heretic Astartes units dedicate themselves to one of the four Chaos Gods, whilst others choose to worship the entire pantheon in all its dark glory. The Chaos God a unit is dedicated to is denoted by the Mark of Chaos that it bears.

Some datasheets specify the Mark of Chaos for a unit (e.g. Khârn the Betrayer has the KHORNE keyword). If a Heretic Astartes datasheet does not specify which Mark of Chaos a unit has, it will have the <MARK OF CHAOS> keyword. When you include such a unit in your army, you must nominate which Mark of Chaos that unit has. You then simply replace the <MARK OF CHAOS> keyword in every instance on that unit's datasheet with one of the following: KHORNE, TZEENTCH, NURGLE or SLAANESH. Note that PSYKERS cannot have the KHORNE keyword.

You do not have to choose a Mark of Chaos for a unit if you do not want to; if you do not, it is assumed that the unit has not dedicated itself to one, or any of the Dark Gods.

ABILITIES

The following is an ability that is common to several Heretic Astartes units.

DEATH TO THE FALSE EMPEROR

Each time you roll a hit roll of 6+ for a model with this ability in the Fight phase, it can, if it was targeting an IMPERIUM unit, immediately make an extra attack against the same unit using the same weapon. These extra attacks cannot themselves generate any further attacks.

CHAOS ICONS

Models can sometimes carry a Chaos Icon. Some icons can only be taken by units that have the correct Mark of Chaos, as shown in the table to the right – for example, only KHORNE units can have an Icon of Wrath. KHORNE, TZEENTCH, NURGLE or SLAANESH units cannot have an Icon of Vengeance.

ICON	UNIT	EFFECT
Icon of Wrath	KHORNE units only	You can re-roll charge rolls for units with an Icon of Wrath.
Icon of Flame	TZEENTCH units only	At the start of your Psychic phase, roll a D6 for each unit with an Icon of Flame. On a roll of 6 inflict 1 mortal wound on the closest enemy unit within 12" of the model carrying the Icon of Flame.
Icon of Despair	NURGLE units only	Enemy units that are within 3" of any units with an Icon of Despair must subtract 1 from their Leadership.
Icon of Excess	SLAANESH units only	If a unit has an Icon of Excess, its Death to the False Emperor ability takes effect on any hit rolls of 5+, rather than 6+.
Icon of Vengeance	Cannot be taken by KHORNE , TZEENTCH , NURGLE or SLAANESH units	Add 1 to the Leadership of all models in a unit that has an Icon of Vengeance.

DARK HERETICUS DISCIPLINE

Before the battle, generate the psychic powers for PSYKERS that can use powers from the Dark Hereticus discipline using the table below. You can either roll a D3 to generate their powers randomly (re-roll any duplicate results), or you can select the psychic powers you wish the psyker to have.

DARK HERETICUS DISCIPLINE
D3	PSYCHIC POWER
1	Infernal Gaze Infernal Gaze has a warp charge value of 5. If manifested, select a visible enemy unit within 18" of the psyker and roll 3 dice. The target suffers one mortal wound for each roll of 4+.
2	Warptime Warptime has a warp charge value of 6. If manifested, pick a friendly HERETIC ASTARTES unit within 3" of the psyker. That unit can immediately move as if it were its Movement phase. You cannot use Warptime on a unit more than once in each Psychic phase.
3	Prescience Prescience has a warp charge value of 7. If manifested, select a HERETIC ASTARTES unit within 18" of the psyker. You can add 1 to all hit rolls made for that unit until the start of your next Psychic phase.

WARGEAR

Many of the units you will find on the following pages reference one or more of the wargear lists below (e.g. Special Weapons). When this is the case, the unit may take any item from the appropriate list. The profiles for the weapons in these lists can be found in the appendix (pg 122-125).

All must fear the Lord of Skulls. It is a brazen idol of destruction – possessed of terrible daemonic sentience, it crushes men beneath its mighty treads. Its cannons fire storms of red-hot metal, gibbering skulls that gnaw the flesh, and torrents of boiling blood.

WORLD EATERS

The World Eaters hurl themselves into battle with psychotic fury. They feel neither fear nor mercy, nor anything save the pounding crimson rage that propels them across the battlefield. Chainaxes roaring, the World Eaters rip the heart from the enemy with the unstoppable ferocity of their assault, bellowing oaths to the Blood God as they paint themselves in jetting gore.

Even before the Horus Heresy, the World Eaters were noted for their bloody-handed excesses. They were censured by the Emperor for their use of psychosurgery on neophytes to turn them into frothing madmen. Nonetheless, the World Eaters were invaluable shock troops in the Great Crusade, fighting at the forefront of many of its greatest battles, and so they were permitted to proceed as their murderous Primarch, Angron, saw fit.

It was a simple matter for Horus to turn the World Eaters to the worship of Chaos. Under his corrupting influence, Angron quickly devoted himself to Khorne, the Blood God. Angron was a great warrior, and the Blood God valued especially the Primarch's latent bloodlust and the volcanic temper that others saw as a curse. Angron became one of Khorne's greatest champions, his feet set firmly upon the path towards Daemonhood and ultimate power.

Transformed from loyal servants of the Emperor into murdering champions of the Blood God, the traitorous World Eaters became a byword for slaughter and brutality. They fought in the vanguard of every assault, and their Legion records show it was they, and not the Sons of Horus, who first breached the walls of the Imperial Palace. The World Eaters retreated from Terra only grudgingly, and even then they carved a bloody swathe through anything that stood in their way during the retreat to the Eye of Terror.

DESCENT INTO MADNESS

Amidst the madness of the Eye of Terror, the World Eaters sank ever further into the worship of Khorne. All pretence of forming balanced, tactical forces fell away as the World Eaters armed themselves entirely with pistols and close combat weapons – chainaxes and chainswords becoming the favoured tools of bloodshed. Competition to be the first into the fray became so fierce that the World Eaters would as readily turn their weapons upon one another as the foe.

As more and more of the Legion's officers became fully fledged champions of Khorne or were possessed by Daemons, all discipline collapsed. Finally, at the end of the savage Skalathrax campaign, Khârn the Betrayer – an exalted and utterly insane Berzerker Champion of Khorne – set upon his brethren with such bloodlust that the whole Legion tore itself apart. The horrific battle lasted for days, excesses of butchery being unleashed that would leave an indelible stain upon reality and the warp alike. By the time the smoke had cleared, the World Eaters were shattered into dozens of crazed warbands, moving relentlessly through the Eye of Terror seeking out battle and bloodshed.

Even now, some of these warbands are hundreds strong, while others are no more than a lone champion leading his Berzerkers on a quest for carnage. Clad in armour of red, black and brass, Khorne's chosen warriors are the first into any battle and the last to leave the field. Such warbands will join with any Chaos Lord who is gathering his forces for conquest, asking nothing more than to spill blood and take skulls for their lord Khorne. However, even the mightiest Chaos Lords must be wary of these lunatic allies, lest their own heads be added to the skull tally.

LEGIONS OF KHORNE

Though a shattered Legion, the World Eaters can still field the numbers and martial might to bring whole star systems to their knees. Led by rampaging Chaos Lords or blood-slick Daemon Princes, these armies augment their numbers with those mortal Cultists who have given themselves to the butchery and bloodlust of Khorne. Bestial mutants and deranged lunatics follow the Khorne Berzerkers to war in their thousands, desperate to shed blood in their monstrous deity's name.

Though Khorne despises sorcery and sees it as unfitting for a warrior, he does not rely on swords and axes alone to gather souls. Greatest of Khorne's weapons are infernal Daemon Engines driven by the caged essence of furious warp entities. Clad in heavy armour of black steel and marked with brass skull runes of Khorne, these horrific machines crush screaming victims beneath their spiked treads and wheels as they subject the enemy to one thunderous barrage after another.

THOUSAND SONS

The tang of sorcery taints the air as the Thousand Sons attack. Coruscating bolts of warp energy explode in washes of mutating fire, while hails of ensorcelled shot mow down rank after rank of the foe. Those not reduced to smouldering corpses are transmogrified by the magicks of Tzeentch, leaving the battlefield strewn with crystal statues, clouds of screaming vapour and writhing mounds of flesh.

Led by covens of potent Sorcerers, the Thousand Sons advance in a steady, relentless fashion while laying down a withering hail of firepower and dark magicks. The majority of their legionaries are little more than haunted suits of power armour, golem-like beings wreathed in the sorcerous energies of an ancient curse that has transformed them into tireless – but near mindless – foot soldiers of Tzeentch. Yet this Traitor Legion was not always thus. Once, they were counted amongst the Emperor's most loyal servants.

A TAINTED LEGACY

As with all the Space Marine Legions, the first Thousand Sons were created using gene-seed sampled from their Primarch. This was to prove both a blessing and a curse. The gene-sire of the Thousand Sons was Magnus the Red, who was the most psychically gifted of all the Primarchs, a trait he passed on to his sons. Yet along with their father's eldritch might, the Thousand Sons also inherited the latent threat of warp-touched mutation that lurked within his flesh.

The path of damnation for the Thousand Sons Legion was longer than most. Even before the Horus Heresy, Magnus led his sons in the study of arcane lore and the practice of sorcery, areas in which they excelled. Always the subject of great controversy, these investigations became anathema after the fateful Council of Nikea. Magnus continued his studies with reckless arrogance, believing himself and his sons to be engaged in work so vital that it eclipsed the mundane rule of law.

When Horus gathered his forces against the Imperium, the Thousand Sons first tried to use their occult powers to warn the Emperor. In his efforts to do good, Magnus had instead been seduced by the Dark Gods into unmaking the Emperor's greatest labours and causing irreparable damage. Wrathful, the Emperor dispatched Leman Russ and the Space Wolves to the Thousand Sons' home world of Prospero to apprehend the errant mystics. Seeing his chance, the Warmaster – still thought loyal by the wider Imperium – appended the Space Wolves' orders, commanding them not to capture the Thousand Sons for judgement, but to fall upon them as executioners.

The sack of Prospero was horrific. Russ' warriors built pyres from Magnus' libraries of books, parchments and ancient texts, destroying artefacts unique in all the galaxy with a stroke of the chainsword. Magnus himself met Leman Russ in hand-to-hand combat, Primarch against Primarch, berserker against giant in the ruined heart of the city of Tizca. Outmatched, Magnus was forced to appeal to the Dark Gods for aid.

A TERRIBLE CHOICE

In stentorian tones, the Primarch of the Thousand Sons boomed out a mighty incantation that snatched up the surviving Thousand Sons and transported them far across the galaxy to a planet of refuge. Yet the price of salvation was terrible. Magnus' soul was torn asunder by the bargain he had struck with almighty Tzeentch. Just as Magnus' sorcerous powers were magnified by the boon of Chaos, so too were those of his sons, but the cost was insupportable, and more and more of them fell to rampant mutation.

Eventually, one of Magnus' greatest protégés could no longer stand by and watch his Legion degenerate. Gathering a coven of like-minded Sorcerers, Ahzek Ahriman worked his infamous Rubric. A spell of incalculable power, the Rubric was meant to stabilise the mutating flesh of the Thousand Sons and save them from uncontrollable change. It went far further, reducing the surviving legionaries to living dust within their armour, little more than mindless automata trapped forever in servitude to their sorcerous brethren.

COVENS OF WAR

The Thousand Sons fight their wars with cunning and trickery, drawing upon the powers of the warp to provide them with foresight into their enemies' strategies and weaknesses. Directed by their Sorcerers – or sometimes led by the Daemon Primarch Magnus himself – the Thousand Sons apply overwhelming firepower and dark sorcery wherever they can do the most damage. Their ranks are swollen by shrieking masses of mutant creatures known as Tzaangors, and often augmented by Daemons summoned from beyond the veil. Held aloft by empyric energies, mighty fortresses known as Silver Towers of Tzeentch rain hellfire upon the enemy, while packs of aerial Daemon Engines strike wherever the enemy least expects them. Worst of all for their foes, it is impossible to know the true objectives of the Thousand Sons, for when they go to war it is never in as simple a cause as wanton destruction. There are always hidden agendas, always plans within plans, and often the enemy will fight their hardest only to discover that their every action has been predicted and perverted so that their victory turns to the ashes of defeat in the blink of an eye.

DEATH GUARD

The Death Guard are foulness made manifest. They are a vision of unnatural corruption, of nobility, courage and strength perverted into nightmarish foulness and diseased might. Cities, worlds, even entire systems rot at their touch, the power of Nurgle spreading inexorably wherever the Death Guard raise their flyblown banners.

Resilience. Obstinacy. Brute force. Even before they fell to Chaos, these were the watchwords of the Death Guard Legion. Led by their Primarch, Mortarion, the Death Guard specialised in grinding, attritional warfare, ploughing unstopably over their foes while taking pride in weathering the worst that their enemies could hurl at them. Thanks to the genetic legacy of their Primarch, the Death Guard possessed a remarkable resistance to poisons, toxins and phages of every sort; no such underhanded weapon or lethal atmospheric condition could lay them low.

The Death Guard were rightly proud of their implacable might, none more so than their Primarch. Yet there was a seed of resentment in Mortarion's heart, for the gifts of his Legion were neither glamorous nor glorious, and won them little acclaim. It was this Achilles' heel that Horus used to turn the Death Guard to his cause. The majority of the Death Guard followed their gene-sire into damnation, becoming the linchpin of many traitor battle-lines.

It was as Horus' Legions advanced upon Terra that the Death Guard found themselves inexplicably lost upon the fickle tides of the warp. Weeks passed with no sign of salvation, during which a terrible plague began to spread from ship to ship. The Death Guard, so long immune to mere mortal frailties, found themselves bloating and sickening. The Destroyer Plague swept through their ranks like wildfire, leaving them ever more rotted and corrupt yet singularly unable to die. At last, Mortarion himself contracted the terrible sickness. In his delirium, the Primarch beseeched Nurgle to save his Legion, and the Plague God – who had planned for this all along – graciously accepted the service of the Death Guard.

The Legion that emerged from the warp in time to join the attack on Terra bore little resemblance to the noble soldiers who had plunged into the warp weeks earlier. Pus and glowing green slime dripped from burst and rusted armour. Bloated, flabby flesh spilled forth, thick with pustulent buboes and weeping sores. The Death Guard were swollen with the sick powers of their new patron, taking a macabre joy in spreading Nurgle's plagues to all who faced them. So it has been ever since, the Death Guard marching at the behest of their rancid god and spreading his blessings to unwilling victims from one end of the galaxy to the other.

TAINTED LEGIONS

Unlike so many of their fellow traitors, the Death Guard lost neither their discipline nor their cohesion after the retreat into the Eye of Terror. With Mortarion's rise to fully fledged Daemonhood, the Legion broke into smaller warbands led by their mightiest champions, but still they continued to fight with a singular identity and purpose. Mortarion still directed his plague-ridden sons from afar, and the Death Guard continued to recruit new warriors into their ranks, albeit often by force.

Plague Lords such as Typhus, the Host of the Destroyer Hive, have continued to lead attacks upon realspace and spread metaphysical plagues far and wide. Since the opening of the Great Rift, the Death Guard have redoubled their efforts, revealing that both their numbers and their martial structure were greater than even the most pessimistic Imperial commanders had feared.

Death Guard armies are built around cores of ultra-resilient infantry, Plague Marines and befouled Terminators trudging forwards amidst the drone of a billion plague flies. Plague Sorcerers and hulking Lords lead these lumbering traitors into battle, while before them stagger reeking masses of diseased Cultists and unliving mutants. Massed firepower and armoured support is provided by rusted packs of Helbrutes and Daemon Engines, while Death Guard tanks rumble through the muck and murk of the battlefield with their guns roaring. Occasionally, even larger and more terrifying war engines lend their might to the Death Guard attack, rotted Titans and huge, bloated Daemons crushing the enemy underfoot as they spew corrosive filth across their ranks.

Utilising sustained bombardments and relentless advances, the Death Guard pummel their enemies into submission. They chant droning mantras of worship to Nurgle, or chortle with revolting mirth as they gun down the foe, but always ensure that a few survivors escape – infected with the terrible plagues of Nurgle, such victims spread sickness and disease before the Death Guard like a bow wave, and ensure their conquests come all the quicker.

This section contains a selection of datasheets for Death Guard miniatures. Each datasheet includes the characteristics profiles of the unit it describes, as well as any wargear and special abilities it may have.

FORCES OF THE DEATH GUARD

The Heretic Astartes datasheets listed to the right can be from the Death Guard Legion. Those that have the <LEGION> keyword on their datasheet can replace it in all instances with DEATH GUARD. If a Heretic Astartes unit does not appear in the list to the right, it cannot have the DEATH GUARD Faction keyword.

Servants of Nurgle

If a Death Guard unit has the <MARK OF CHAOS> keyword, it must be NURGLE. Similarly, DEATH GUARD Daemon Princes must owe their allegiance to NURGLE.

Lords of the Plague Host

The Battlefield Role of DEATH GUARD Plague Marines is Troops instead of Elites.

PLAGUECASTERS

Malignant Plaguecasters must choose the additional psychic powers that they can use from the Contagion discipline to the right.

‘Fight us if you must, but know that it is futile. Nurgle’s blessings already seethe within your flesh. Soon enough, you will embrace us as your saviours.’

EMPEROR'S CHILDREN

Few beings in the galaxy are as twisted and deranged as the Emperor's Children. Their sanity blasted by the sick worship of Slaanesh, the Lord of Pleasure, the Emperor's Children embrace terror and agony as delightful bliss, and wreak the most horrific degradations upon their foes in the name of indulgence and pleasure.

Cacophonous shrieks and sonic detonations announce the coming of the Emperor's Children. Distorted monsters clad in riotously garish power armour, these Heretic Astartes are sworn to Slaanesh, the Dark Prince of Excess. Every aspect of their combat doctrine, armaments and grotesque appearance reflects their perverse worship; the Emperor's Children obsessively seek sensory excess and overstimulation with a determination that has sealed the fate of star systems. No act of degradation or cruelty is too extreme for these damned traitors, who hurl themselves into battle with gleeful screams, seeking anything that may fire synapses dulled by millennia of overindulgence. The Emperor's

Children fight with the towering arrogance of those who believe themselves entirely superior, even as they cast strategy and tactics aside with the frantic avidity of pleasure-lost addicts. Yet their speed, savagery, and sublime warrior skill combine with the horrific effects of their sonic weaponry to ensure that, whatever the Emperor's Children lack in discipline, they more than make up for with the sheer manic ferocity of their onslaught.

This Traitor Legion fell further than most when they cast aside their loyalties, for they were once glittering exemplars of everything it meant to be Space Marines. So great were the glories of the Emperor's Children that they were the only Legion permitted to bear the Emperor's own aquila sigil upon their armour, as a mark of his great respect.

Driven to compensate for an early genetic failing that almost destroyed their Legion, the Emperor's Children strove for absolute perfection in all things. Their Primarch, Fulgrim – a warrior of surpassing grace, beauty and skill – led them in this constant quest for excellence. In return, his sons venerated their gene-sire as a virtual warrior god, desiring above all things to win his approval with their exemplary conduct and skill.

It was this proud and obsessive nature that Horus played upon, luring Fulgrim into treachery with goads and blandishments until his fellow Primarch willingly embraced the insane worship of Slaanesh. The Emperor's Children slid quickly into heresy as excellence became obsession, pride curdled into towering arrogance, and nobility was drowned in a sea of illicit sensation.

A CORNUCOPIA OF HORRORS

The Emperor's Children embraced damnation with characteristic fervour, swiftly becoming Slaanesh's most zealous mortal warriors. The atrocities they committed during the Horus Heresy were so vile that even the other Traitor Legions soon reviled them. After the failed siege of Terra, and the flight into the Eye of Terror, that discord only deepened until eventually the Emperor's Children were shattered into fragmented warbands by a series of catastrophic wars with other Heretic Astartes.

So lost to psychotic hedonism were Fulgrim and his children that they did not care. Scattering throughout the Eye and far beyond, the Emperor's Children continued their endless crusade to revel in every forbidden delight and act of sadistic butchery that the galaxy could offer. Their warbands vary greatly in size and composition, but at the heart of most fight squads of Noise Marines, who loose unbearable sonic barrages upon the enemy in order to spur their own senses even as they overload those of the foe. Alongside these howling lunatics fight baying pleasure cults of mutants and madmen, lethal packs of lascivious, perfumed Daemons, and lithe war engines that eradicate the foe with speed and overwhelming firepower. Every battle is fought in the name of wanton excess, and where possible slaves are taken in their millions, doomed to spend the rest of their short and horrifying lives serving the legionaries' every deranged whim.

EMPEROR'S CHILDREN ARMY RULES

This section contains a selection of datasheets for Emperor's Children miniatures. Each datasheet includes the characteristics profiles of the unit it describes, as well as any wargear and special abilities it may have.

FORCES OF THE EMPEROR'S CHILDREN

The Heretic Astartes datasheets found on pages 16 to 42 can be from the Emperor's Children Legion – this is represented by replacing the <LEGION> keyword on their datasheet in all instances with EMPEROR'S CHILDREN.

Servants of Slaanesh

If an Emperor's Children unit has the <MARK OF CHAOS> keyword, it must be SLAANESH. Similarly, EMPEROR'S CHILDREN Daemon Princes must owe their allegiance to SLAANESH.

CHAOS DAEMONS

Creatures of primal malevolence, Daemons are birthed from the accumulated sins and passions of the mortal races, and given form and will by the Dark Gods of Chaos. Invested with the cruel malice of their creators, they will not rest until reality itself is torn asunder and every soul in the galaxy devoured.

Daemons are the physical manifestation of a Chaos God's will, birthed from an infinitesimal portion of his power, and given both personality and conscious thought. Each member of the Dark Pantheon commands untold billions of such creatures, from hordes of daemoniac footsoldiers to hideously powerful Greater Daemons and Daemon Princes. The true size of any god's forces is impossible to ascertain, and may rise or fall depending on the power he currently wields in the Great Game, the Chaos Pantheon's never-ending struggle for prestige and dominance. The Realm of Chaos – known to Mankind as the warp, or warp space – plays host to this contest. Across endless mutable battlefields, each god's daemoniac legions clash in eternal war. Though the violence of this conflict is beyond imagining, no lasting change can truly be wrought upon the realm of Chaos, for to do so would be antithetical to its very nature. Not so the material realm, which recoils at the ruinous touch of daemonkind. It is for this reason that every Daemon desires nothing more than to gain egress into realspace, to destroy and despoil at will.

When a warp breach offers a Daemon legion such an opportunity, they burst forth from the immaterium with savage delight, united by their lust for destruction. Entire planets are consumed in the face of this onslaught, billions of mortal souls devoured. Though a warp rift may last mere hours, or perhaps even moments, that is often enough to spell the death of a world, and with the advent of the opening of the Great Rift and the Blackness, such incursions grow ever more frequent. Daemoniac hordes pour into reality all across the Imperium, brought into being by violent warp storms or summoned from the empyrean by mortal servants of the Ruinous Powers. The armies of Humanity rush to respond, but no sooner is battle joined in one sector than reports drift in from another. Often these garbled transmissions offer little more than static-masked screams of terror, and the triumphant bellows of rampaging Daemons.

DAEMONIC INCURSIONS

The invasion of a daemoniac army is an event of apocalyptic horror. Unconstrained by conventional physics, a Daemon host can appear without warning in the midst of their foe. Fortifications and defensive lines are circumvented entirely, and while the warp rift that granted the Daemons entry remains open, their numbers are continually replenished. For the unfortunate defenders, the only option is to continue to fight and pray for salvation with all their faith.

The forces of each Chaos God fight in their own distinct manner, though the basic structure of their legions is similar. The bulk of such a force is most often comprised of daemoniac footsoldiers, armed with either hell-forged weapons or deadly mutations that protrude from their flesh. They sweep forth in endless numbers, uncaring of danger, focussed only on the obliteration of mortal life. Leading these throngs are Greater Daemons and Daemon Princes, the greatest and most favoured amongst the host. These are the generals and commanders of the daemoniac legions, and each is a creature of hideous strength and will.

To face a daemoniac legion in battle is to risk not only the obliteration of one's mortal soul, but also the foul touch of corruption should one emerge triumphant. In the face of a tidal wave of unreason, madness and despair, mortal eyes are opened to the hideous truth of the universe. Only the strongest-willed can emerge from such a nightmare with their minds intact, and even then their existence is in grave danger. The Imperium cannot allow the existence of Daemons to become common knowledge, and so the survivors, when found, are handed over to the Inquisition. The fortunate are mind-scoured and quarantined. In extreme cases of daemoniac corruption the order is given for Exterminatus, and entire worlds are scoured of life in a nuclear firestorm.

This section contains all of the datasheets that you will need in order to fight battles with your Chaos Daemons miniatures. Each datasheet includes the characteristics profiles of the unit it describes, as well as any wargear and abilities it may have. Some rules are common to several Chaos Daemons units – these are described below and referenced on the datasheets.

ABILITIES

The following abilities are common to several Chaos Daemon units:

Daemonic

Units with this ability have a 5+ invulnerable save.

Unstoppable Ferocity

If a KHORNE DAEMON unit with this ability either charges, is charged, or performs a Heroic Intervention, add 1 to the Strength and Attacks characteristics of all models in the unit until the end of the turn.

Ephemeral Form

Add 1 to any invulnerable saving throws made for a TZEENTCH DAEMON with this ability.

Disgustingly Resilient

Each time a NURGLE DAEMON with this ability loses a wound, roll a D6 – on a roll of 5 or 6, the model does not lose a wound.

Quicksilver Swiftess

SLAANESH DAEMON units with this ability always fight first in the Fight phase, even if they didn't charge. If the enemy has units that have charged, or that have a similar ability, then alternate choosing units to fight with, starting with the player whose turn is taking place.

DAEMONIC RITUAL

Instead of moving in their Movement phase, any CHAOS CHARACTER can, at the end of their Movement phase, attempt to summon a DAEMON unit with this ability by performing a Daemonic Ritual (the character cannot do so if they arrived as reinforcements this turn, or if they themselves have been summoned to the battlefield this turn).

If they do so, first choose one of the four Chaos Gods – KHORNE, TZEENTCH, NURGLE or SLAANESH. A CHARACTER who owes allegiance to one of the Dark Gods can only attempt to summon the units of their patron – for example, a KHORNE CHARACTER could only attempt to summon KHORNE DAEMONS.

Roll up to 3 dice – this is your summoning roll. You can summon one new unit with the Daemonic Ritual ability to the battlefield that has a Power Rating equal to or less than the total result so long as it has the same Chaos God keyword you chose at the start (in the case of units that have the choice of allegiance, such as Furies, the unit when summoned will have this keyword). This unit is treated as reinforcements for your army and can be placed anywhere on the battlefield that is entirely within 12" of the character and is more than 9" from any enemy model. If the total rolled is insufficient to summon any unit, the ritual fails and no new unit is summoned.

If your summoning roll included any doubles, your character then suffers a mortal wound. If it contained any triples, it instead suffers D3 mortal wounds.

CHAOS DAEMONS PSYCHIC DISCIPLINES

Before the battle, generate the psychic powers for PSYKERS that can use powers from the Nurgle, Slaanesh or Tzeentch disciplines using the tables below. You can either roll a D3 to generate their powers randomly (re-roll any duplicate results), or you can select the psychic powers you wish the psyker to have.

NURGLE DISCIPLINE

D3 PSYCHIC POWER

1	Stream of Corruption Stream of Corruption has a warp charge value of 5. If manifested, pick the closest enemy unit within 7" of the psyker. The unit suffers D3 mortal wounds if it has fewer than 10 models, and D6 mortal wounds if it has 10 models or more.
2	Virulent Blessing Virulent Blessing has a warp charge value of 6. If manifested, pick a NURGLE DAEMON unit within 18" of the psyker. You can add 1 to all wound rolls made by that unit in the Fight phase. Furthermore, any wound rolls of 7+ made for that unit in the Fight phase inflict double damage.
3	Fleshy Abundance Fleshy Abundance has a warp charge value of 5. If manifested, select a friendly NURGLE DAEMON unit within 18" of the psyker. That unit recovers D3 wounds lost earlier in the battle.

SLAANESH DISCIPLINE

D3 PSYCHIC POWER

1	Cacophonic Choir Cacophonic Choir has a warp charge value of 7. If manifested, roll 2D6. The closest visible enemy unit within 18" of the psyker suffers a mortal wound for each point that the total exceeds their Leadership.
2	Symphony of Pain Symphony of Pain has a warp charge value of 6. If manifested, the nearest visible enemy unit within 18" of the psyker is struck by unbearable pain. Your opponent must subtract 1 from all hit rolls made for this unit until the start of your next Psychic phase.
3	Hysterical Frenzy Hysterical Frenzy has a warp charge value of 8. If manifested, select a single friendly SLAANESH DAEMON unit within 18" of the psyker that is within 1" of an enemy unit. That unit can pile in and attack as if it were the Fight phase.

TZEENTCH DISCIPLINE

D3 PSYCHIC POWER

1	Boon of Change Boon of Change has a warp charge value of 7. If manifested, select a visible friendly TZEENTCH DAEMON unit within 18" of the psyker and roll a D3. Consult the table below to discover what characteristic bonus all models in that unit receive until the start of your next Psychic phase.
<table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th>D3</th><th>EFFECT</th></tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>1</td><td>Extra Limb: +1 Attack</td></tr> <tr> <td>2</td><td>Mystic Strength: +1 Strength</td></tr> <tr> <td>3</td><td>Iron Skin: +1 Toughness</td></tr> </tbody> </table>		D3	EFFECT	1	Extra Limb: +1 Attack	2	Mystic Strength: +1 Strength	3	Iron Skin: +1 Toughness
D3	EFFECT
1	Extra Limb: +1 Attack
2	Mystic Strength: +1 Strength
3	Iron Skin: +1 Toughness
2	Bolt of Change Bolt of Change has a warp charge value of 9. If manifested, select a unit within 18" of the psyker. That unit suffers D3 mortal wounds. If a CHARACTER is slain by this psychic power, you can add a Chaos Spawn model to your army, and set it up within 1" of the character before its model is removed.
3	Treason of Tzeentch Treason of Tzeentch has a warp charge value of 8. If manifested, select a visible enemy CHARACTER within 18" of the psyker, apart from the opponent's Warlord, and then roll 2D6. If the result is greater than the character's Leadership, you can treat the model as if it were a friendly model in your army in your Shooting, Charge and Fight phases. At the end of the Fight phase, the character reverts to being an enemy model.

DAEMONS OF KHORNE

The Daemons of Khorne flow across the battlefield like blood spilling from titanic wounds torn in the flesh of reality itself. They are hate and they are butchery, the distilled rage and murderlust of the Blood God made manifest in endless ranks of red-eyed, blade-wielding killers.

Khorne's Daemon legions are slaughter incarnate, and when loosed upon an enemy army they strike with the force of a blazing comet. Rank upon rank of howling Bloodletters hurl themselves into battle with eager fury. They hack and tear in a blood-maddened frenzy that is stoked to greater heights as the battle wears on and the ground becomes slick with gore. Flesh Hounds bound at their side, slaving boiling spittle as they bear fleeing mortals to the ground and tear them apart with razor-sharp fangs. Stampedes of Bloodcrushers charge the enemy flank, their Juggernaut war-mounts pounding through walls and barricades like unstoppable battering rams. Bones are shattered to dust and bodies crushed to gory paste as they strike home, their riders lashing out with hellblades to cleave heads from necks. In the wake of this ruination come Blood Thrones and Skull Cannons, nightmarish machines forged from brass and Daemon-flesh. These foul Daemon Engines shred the bodies of the fallen beneath grinding treads as they advance, and turn the very skulls of their victims into profane ammunition for their hell-forged cannons. Greater than all these assembled horrors are the Bloodthirsters; most exalted amongst Khorne's Daemons, and the fell generals that lead his hosts to war. These leather-winged monstrosities are creatures of single-minded destruction. They care only for slaughter, and embody that grim act in its purest form. With relentless ferocity they cleave with axe and flail, hewing scores of the enemy apart with every swing.

BLOOD FOR THE BLOOD GOD

Khorne is the Blood God, the Lord of Rage and the Taker of Skulls. He is the embodiment of a never-ending lust to dominate and destroy. It is his sole desire to drown the galaxy in a tide of slaughter, to kill and conquer until there is nothing left but spilled blood and shattered bone. Khorne cares not for subtlety, and scorns the cowardly plotting of his brother gods. His is the way of the axe. What he desires is taken by force, and those who stand against him are torn limb from limb in a frenzy of brutality, a stark warning to any who would deny his will. The code of the Blood God's faithful is similarly straightforward; the blood must flow, always. Every single life taken in anger fuels Khorne's power, and thus his followers have ensured that war has spread to all corners of the galaxy. To the Blood God it matters not at all who triumphs in these countless conflicts. The very act of defending a planet against his daemonic legions lends him strength, for every burst of violence, every roar of hatred and every knife driven into soft flesh, is an act of worship to the Blood God, whether it is intended as such or not. Human, Tyranid, T'au, Aeldari or Ork – all are mere playthings whose petty squabbles slake his endless thirst for slaughter.

From his throne of power within the Brass Citadel, Khorne orders his armies forth, demanding an ever greater tithe of skulls with each fresh conquest. The Blood God's daemonic legions have fought and killed for countless millennia, across both the roiling plains of the Realm of Chaos and the vulnerable worlds of realspace. This unending carnage has forged them into terrifying engines of destruction, and when such a force spills out from the immaterium and falls upon an inhabited world, mountains of skulls are raised in Khorne's name. Dread omens herald this apocalypse. Lakes and oceans fill with boiling blood, and entire populations fall into civil war overnight as visions of gruesome slaughter haunt their waking dreams. Comets shaped like grinning skulls fall from the sky, crushing hab-blocks to rubble. As the Great Rift spills its hateful warplight across the galaxy, and the mortal races begin to tear themselves apart, these baleful signs are rapidly increasing in both volume and severity. Khorne's legions spill from the void in ever greater numbers, for the Blood God senses that the hour of his final, inevitable victory draws near.

CHAMPIONS OF CARNAGE

Only the strongest are worthy of Khorne's favour, and so the Blood God's legions are commanded by creatures of ancient and horrific power. Countless acts of atrocity and carnage mark these beings out even amongst their own hellish kind. The Bloodthirsters of the Eight Circles are Khorne's personal guard and his fell generals both, and each is deadly enough to cut a gore-soaked swathe across entire star systems. Ironically, the greatest Daemon lord ever to serve the Blood God is a traitor and exile. The entity known as Skarbrand was once the most exalted amongst his Greater Daemons, yet his pride blazed too fiercely. Cunning Tzeentch tricked Skarbrand into striking the Blood God, promising the Bloodthirster that even a god could not withstand him, such was his power. Attacking while Khorne was distracted, a single dent in the Blood God's brass armour was all that Skarbrand achieved with his mightiest blow, and in his rage Khorne hurled his betrayer across the immaterium. Exiled from the Blood God's realm and trapped forever in the moment of incandescent rage that led to his betrayal, Skarbrand has slaughtered his way across both the mortal and immortal planes, spilling oceans of blood and reaping an ever growing harvest of skulls. It is fitting that vengeful Khorne will never grant the fallen Bloodthirster mercy, for in his tortured banishment Skarbrand has served his lord more faithfully than ever.

Though Khorne is a demanding and unforgiving master, there are those who have long held his favour. Formerly a Bloodletter, the Daemon known as Skulltaker displayed such a talent for striking the heads from his enemies that the Blood God's eye swiftly fell upon him. The moment that he claimed his eight-hundred and eighty-eighth skull, Khorne anointed him as his sacred executioner, and gifted him free rein to travel the cosmos collecting worthy skulls to impale upon the walls of the Brass Citadel. Skulltaker is a duellist without peer, a master swordsman who likes to brutally maim his enemies, leaving them helpless before him. Profane fire swirls around his claws as he grasps his defeated opponent's head, and their screams reach a horrible pitch as the flesh is seared and melted from their skull. With a twist of his arm, Skulltaker snaps his trophy free from the spine, bearing it aloft in honour of his dark master.

Perhaps Khorne's most trusted servant is the fell creature that stalks the shadows of his throne room. Karanak, the three-headed Hound of Vengeance, is the Blood God's watchful guardian and the agent of his wrath. Karanak is dispatched to hunt down those who have insulted Khorne's raging pride, whether through insufficient tribute, cowardice, or the use of weakling magic. Relentless, tireless and full of cruel malice, the Hound of Vengeance will not cease his hunt until he tastes his quarry's flesh between his fangs.

DAEMONS OF TZEENTCH

Daemons of Tzeentch are insanity made manifest. Cackling like lunatics, singing and chanting, these impossible monsters turn the air to sorcery and flesh to glass, sand or flame. They can read the strands of fate, drive men insane with but a glance, and transform the very field of battle into a vision of the empyrean unbound.

The Daemons of Tzeentch spill into battle in a capering tide of kaleidoscopic madness. Pink Horrors tumble and whirl, jabbering incantations as they fling deadly spells at their enemies. Fungoid Flamers bound across the battlefield, their jetting warpflame bringing mutation and death to all that it touches. The sky fills with hurtling shoals of jagged shapes as predatory packs of Screamer and sky-borne Burning Chariots sweep overhead, lashing the enemy with razor-sharp fins, or raining fire down upon them. Through the madness lumber Tzeentchian Soul Grinders, empyric corposant dancing across their rune-etched armour as they vomit barrages of sorcerous power into the foe. All of these terrible beings are ruled over and directed by ancient and powerful daemonic overlords, be they Herald of Tzeentch or the ineffable beings known as the Lords of Change. To battle the Daemons of Tzeentch is to make war upon madness incarnate, and it leaves even those who survive the battle twisted in mind and body for evermore.

THE COSMIC MANIPULATOR

Tzeentch is known by a hundred thousand titles across the galaxy, amongst them the Weaver of Destinies, the Great Conspirator, the Changer of the Ways and the Architect of Fate. In his mind, he listens to the hope of every sentient being from every planet in the universe. He watches over the plans of his playthings as they unfold into history, toying with fate and fortune – both for his own entertainment and to further his unfathomable schemes.

Tzeentch is not content to merely observe the fulfilment and disappointment brought by the passage of time. He has his own plans – schemes that are so complex and closely woven that they touch the lives of every living thing, whether they realise it or not. The Change God's masterly comprehension of time, history and intrigue allows his plays to intertwine seamlessly, forming a web of causality that spans the stars.

The Changer of the Ways is aware of the visions and plans of all mortals. He takes great delight in the plotting and politicking of others and favours the cunning over the strong. None can truly know Tzeentch's aims, whether he seeks to overthrow his brothers, dominate the mortal empires of realspace, manipulate some single, grand confluence of fates, or achieve some other, less comprehensible aim. Whatever his ultimate goal, Tzeentch seeks to achieve it by manipulating the deeds of men and xenos alike. By offering power and magic, he recruits influential warlords and magi to his cause and unleashes their armies in his name.

Cunning does not always suffice to achieve conquest, however. At certain junctures, fate must be given more than a gentle nudge. It is most often at these pivotal moments that the Daemon legions of Tzeentch are unleashed. Whether called forth by mortals who know not what they conjure, or surging from roiling warp storms at the behest of Daemon lords, Tzeentch's hosts fall upon their victims to wreak havoc. Sometimes their goal is outright destruction, laying waste to the fortress of a mighty enemy or ensuring the demise of one who – at some hour yet to come – would somehow disrupt Tzeentch's grand plan. Often, though, the Daemons of Tzeentch behave in far stranger and more capricious ways. Perhaps they will transform every living soldier on a world to crystalline statues, only to leave the civilian populace terrified but unharmed. Perhaps they will work some strange and sorcerous ritual that plunges a world into perpetual night, or mutate the metal of their enemy's war engines so that it flows into vast, blazing runes visible from space. Many of the atrocities perpetrated by the Daemons of Tzeentch appear random – even insane – to mortals, but all form part of a cosmic web of cause and effect that will one day see the Changer of the Ways claim ultimate power over all.

MASTERS OF FATE

Many and strange are the Daemons of Tzeentch, their aspects as inconstant and scattered as firelight reflected in shattering crystal. Many of these beings wax and wane at the whim of the god that gave them form, rising from the formless madness of the warp and fading back just as swiftly. Some are creatures of true power, however, and have carved out roles for themselves that make them invaluable in Tzeentch's schemes. Kairos Fateweaver is one such being. A Lord of Change cast into the Well of Eternity by Tzeentch, Kairos has seen all of eternity laid out before him. He emerged from his ordeal physically ravaged and possessed of an additional head, and now one of Kairos' heads sees only the past and the other only the future. The Oracle of Tzeentch provides his master with impossible revelations that even the Changer of the Ways could not otherwise discover, and in return he is rewarded with prodigious responsibilities and power.

Another such being is the Changeling, an amorphous trickster-Daemon that can perfectly impersonate any other being in the galaxy save only the Gods of Chaos themselves. The Changeling excels in spreading mayhem and misery, often replacing powerful individuals such as planetary governors and lord commanders in order to trigger senseless wars that benefit Tzeentch's agenda in some incomprehensible fashion or other.

Strangest of all the Daemons of Tzeentch are the Blue Scribes, P'tarix and Xirap. Legend tells how, long ago, countless shards of Tzeentch's animus were scattered across the galaxy in the form of words of power and sorcerous formulae. It is the task of the Blue Scribes to gather every last fragment that was lost and return them to their master, that he might increase his powers exponentially. In the course of their madcap search, these two strange beings have learned an endless array of deadly incantations that they are ever delighted to unleash upon any who stand in their way.

The magical flame hurled by the Daemons of Tzeentch wreaks fatal mutation upon its victims – a horrifying death indeed.

Presiding over the kaleidoscopic hordes of Tzeentch are the Lords of Change, vast avian sorcerers that are magic given form.

DAEMONS OF NURGLE

The sky darkens with noxious clouds and the land sickens and withers as the Daemons of Nurgle lumber into battle. Unnatural plagues billow about them. Slime and toxins drip from their blades and claws. Warped bells toll and bloated flies buzz, filling the air with a droning din as the hideous slaughter begins...

Nurgle's Daemons spill into realspace in thronging masses, surrounded by swirling clouds of bloated plague flies. The endless droning of these insects provides a fitting accompaniment to the constant muttering of thousands of Plaguebearers, as they attempt to catalogue the full breadth of the Lord of Decay's manifold concoctions. Unhurried and uncaring of the enemy fire that splatters off their corpulent forms, they march towards the foe with implacable menace. Cackling Nurglings caper about the ankles of their larger fellows – once battle is joined these diminutive Daemons spill over the enemy in an irrepressible tide, giggling and chortling to each other as they bite and scratch at mortal flesh, before dribbling their infectious toxins into open wounds. Grossly malformed creatures covered in caustic slime and rippling with virulent poxes, Beasts of Nurgle bound playfully alongside the plague-ridden Tallybands, while Plague Drones wheel overhead, mounted upon their monstrous Rot Flies. In the midst of this pox-ridden tide lumbers the colossal, bloated bulk of a Great Unclean One, its flyblown, pus-dripping body an embodiment of the Plague God's fearsome constitution. The slug-like tongue of this Greater Daemon lolls from its gaping maw as it chortles in delight, urging its children onwards to spread Nurgle's bountiful maladies amongst the unenlightened masses.

THE PLAGUE GOD

Nurgle is the Great Lord of Decay and the Master of Plague and Pestilence. All things, no matter how solid and permanent they seem, are liable to eventual corruption, and Grandfather Nurgle sows the seeds of that entropy with carefully brewed infections and epidemics. Yet despite this grim work he is not a morose or dolorous god. Life begets death, and in turn death gives birth to new life, in the form of pallid, wriggling things that crawl free from mouldering corpses. Thus, the Plague God sees himself as a benevolent fellow, and goes about his business with laughter and honest joy. He sees mortal souls not as things to be dominated and destroyed, but naïve children to be plied with flesh-rotting gifts, and thus enlightened as to the true wonder of disease and decay.

Amongst the foetid boughs of Nurgle's Garden – the Lord of Decay's pestilential domain within the Realm of Chaos – billions upon billions of Daemons dance amongst fields of spore-spewing vines and wallow in mires of pestilent filth. They await the chance to slither out of the immaterium and into the realm of mortals, upon whom they can inflict their most delightful concoctions. Epidemius, the Tallyman of Nurgle, works tirelessly to catalogue all of the varied afflictions and maladies thus unleashed into the universe, going about this prestigious task with a grim seriousness. His corpulent frame can often be witnessed upon mortal battlefields, as he surveys infected injuries and putrefying corpses, noting carefully every swelling, sore and buboe with the aid of his Nurgling assistants. To witness mortal flesh bubble and warp with the gift of corruption is the greatest desire of all Nurgle's children. This ebullient eagerness delights the Plague God, who takes a father's pride in his creations' ingenuity and hard work.

Most exalted amongst Nurgle's ranks are the Great Unclean Ones, horrifically repulsive creatures whose maggot-ridden flesh is rife with sores and pus-dripping lesions, and whose entrails protrude obscenely from swollen bellies. Possessed of rusted blades encrusted with putrid blood, and able to summon pestilential winds and tides of filth and mucus, the Great Unclean Ones lead Nurgle's children in their grand task of spreading disease and decay across the galaxy.

A Nurgle Daemon infestation often begins with a single, luckless victim becoming infected with a mysterious ailment. The exact horrors wrought upon the bearer's body differ depending on the strain that was contracted, but in all cases the results are as excruciating as they are deadly. Every cough and pus-choked scream sends clouds of Daemon-spores swirling into the air. With horrifying speed the disease begins to spread amongst the populace, mutating and evolving into ever more horrific strains as it does so. Before long the streets are piled high with swollen corpses, and clouds of flies blot out the sun. It is then that the bells begin to toll, and the Tallybands of Nurgle erupt from the gas-blown carcasses of the dead. Those ragged survivors still capable of bearing arms against these putrid invaders are swiftly overcome, and the least fortunate of all are taken alive for experimentation. Gleeeful Nurglings chortle and applaud as these fresh subjects are dunked into foetid pools of caustic slime, or hurled into the slavering maws of slime-covered beasts.

NURGLE'S BOUNTY

Even if they are driven from the battlefield with explosive barrages and firestorms of promethium, the profane gifts of Nurgle's children still linger. These include the disease known as Nurgle's Rot, a slow-acting but utterly fatal malady that agonisingly transforms the victim into a Plaguebearer, as well as the many strains of the dreaded zombie plague. The latter is a particular favourite amongst followers of the Lord of Decay, especially the hated Death Guard warbands. There are countless variations of this disease. Some are delivered by skyburst mortars into the upper atmosphere, while others are poured into a planet's water reserves or summoned in a pestilential monsoon by a pox-sorcerer's ritual. The most common strain deployed by the Death Guard keeps its victims alive and coherent even as it agonisingly reshapes their flesh. They become the shambling, rotting monsters known as Poxwalkers, whose role it is to soak up enemy fire before the advance of the Heretic Astartes, spreading their hideous infection amongst the foe even as las-fire and explosions blast them apart in gouts of pus and gore. The victim's mortal soul is trapped within this horrifying shell, unable to act or do anything but scream and beg for the blissful release of obliteration.

The putrescent hordes of Nurgle are led to battle by mountainous Great Unclean Ones, creatures strong enough to crush a tank.

DAEMONS OF SLAANESH

The Daemons of Slaanesh are creatures of hedonism, obsession and excess. They fall upon their enemies with nerve-shredding cries of delight, hunting mortal souls like prey animals and inflicting such horrors upon them that the worst nightmares of madmen cannot hold a candle to their obscenity.

Alluring scents and trilling shrieks drift upon the air, the first warning to mortals that a terrible threat is upon them. Soporific musks and strange perfumes coil around them, borne upon warm breezes heavy with the promise of forbidden pleasure. Guns and blades hang forgotten in nerveless hands as visions of hedonism and debauchery writhe through the minds of the beguiled. Only then do the Daemons of Slaanesh strike with the speed of a fencer's blade, thrusting into the enemy ranks with squeals of hungry delight. Blood jets and bone splinters as the Daemons caress their victims with grotesque talons. Ranks of warriors vanish beneath the threshing wheels of Seeker Chariots, their blood falling in a fine mist upon comrades so lost to blissful agony that they can do little but writhe and sob. With every suffering inflicted, every temptation given in to and every soul peeled screaming from its mortal form, the Daemons of Slaanesh honour the Dark Prince with fitting sacrifice.

BANE OF THE AELDARI

Slaanesh is the Lord of Pleasure, the Dark God dedicated to the pursuit of earthly gratification and the overthrow of all civilisation and morality. He is a God of Obsession, the Master of Excess in All Things, from gluttony to lust to megalomania. Wherever mortals are ruled by their own unquenchable desires, the Dark Prince is there in the shadows, whispering, tempting, and feasting upon the banquet of souls. All mortals are threatened by the temptations that lurk within them, and as the galaxy becomes an ever darker and more desperate place, so the power of Slaanesh grows as ever more beings seek any sliver of escape or relief from the horrors around them. Yet the Dark Prince still stands in the shadow of his infernal brothers; though time does not flow in a linear fashion in the warp, he is perceived as the youngest of their number, birthed from the catastrophic moral collapse of the ancient Aeldari.

As their empire reached its zenith, the Aeldari became lost in their own decadence, for they experienced sensation to a far greater degree than any other species. The capabilities of their highly advanced technology meant that the Aeldari did not need to labour or wage war. Instead, they were able to dedicate their lives to whatever idle pursuits took their fancy. Over generations, indolence and debauchery came to rule their spirits. In the immaterium, the reflections of their excesses caused a new Chaos power to stir. Created by pure indulgence, the first motes of Slaanesh coalesced. The Dark Prince grew strong upon the lust, passion, ambition and artistry of the Aeldari, while his twisted dreams leaked into theirs, driving their once noble civilisation ever further down a path of deranged hedonism.

The Fall of the Aeldari was signalled by the birth-scream of Slaanesh, a tsunami of emotion that signalled the Prince of Pleasure's arrival in the Realm of Chaos. The psychic implosion caused by Slaanesh's birth swallowed hundreds of worlds at the heart of the Aeldari civilisation. Billions were killed in an instant, their souls devoured by the newborn god.

PROMENADE OF EXCESS

As living expressions of their master's will, the Daemons of Slaanesh delight in every form of temptation, often manifesting as whispering voices and tantalising visions to lead mortals into self-destruction. When the veil of reality is torn aside, however, it is a rare Slaaneshi Daemon that can resist the opportunity to indulge in unrestrained slaughter. Viewing most mortals as little more than amusing prey to be toyed with and hunted, the Daemons of Slaanesh pour into realspace in fast-moving cavalcades, Promenades of Excess led by towering Keepers of Secrets and lithe Herald of Slaanesh. Daemonette handmaidens whirl and dance into battle, forming the core of the swift and deadly army. The true strength of the Promenades of Excess lies in their lightning-fast cavalry elements, however. Seekers streak across the battlefield upon fleet-clawed Steeds of Slaanesh, so swift that they appear as little more than lurid blurs. Seeker Chariots race behind them, horrific arrangements of elegant blades and whirling spikes that plough through the enemy as though they were crops to be reaped. Alongside them lope packs of Fiends, freakish creatures whose appearance is somewhere between an impossibly lithe animal and a hideous insect.

With the exception of swift-scuttling Soul Grinders, the Daemon armies of Slaanesh eschew the use of heavy war engines. They scorn such lumbering constructs, instead relying upon breathtaking speed and their corrupting presence to bewilder and swiftly cut apart their victims. It is a tactic that has brought victory to the forces of Slaanesh time and again, each conquest of excess glutting the Dark Prince with a fresh banquet of souls.

CHAOS DAEMONS

Chaos is, by its very nature, a thing of infinite variety and strangeness. Hideous entities beyond count or comprehension press against the thinning skin of reality, baying to be released upon the galaxy, to slaughter and devour at will. From dark lords to squirming scavengers, the Daemons of the warp are to be universally feared.

The warp is a realm of infinite madness, an ocean of mutable energies without end. Its churning depths swarm with malefic entities, from immense leviathans to scavengers that are little more than squirming scraps of animus, given fleeting form before vanishing again into the roiling morass.

The greatest entities in the warp are, of course, the Gods of Chaos, and their daemoniac servants are legion. Yet other things dwell there also. Such entities do not form armies, for they are too varied and anarchic. Instead, they find their way into the Daemon legions of the Chaos Gods, through usefulness, allegiance or manipulation. These Daemons are difficult to categorise, for some are mighty while others are petty and vile, or else elusive entities that none has ever conjured from the warp. Doubtless there are Daemons that have avoided the pages of even the most esoteric of forbidden grimoires...

THE REVEILED AND THE ENSLAVED

Some Chaos Daemons are little more than thralls, bound to the will of whatever empyric overlord takes up their leash. Chaos Furies are the most common Daemons of this sort, bestial amalgams of energy and emotion that coalesce for a time before scattering apart again. They are easily subjugated to the whims of the Dark Gods and quick to take on the aspect of whichever power deigns to claim them. Furies in the thrall of Khorne, for example, tend towards crimson flesh and froth-jawed rage, while those that serve Nurgle crawl with pestilence and disease. On the battlefield, flocks of Furies circle like vultures, waiting on any hint of weakness before falling upon their prey and tearing them apart.

By comparison, the towering Daemon Engines known as Soul Grinders are incredibly powerful, diabolic fusions of Daemon and war machine that dwarf even some Greater Daemons in stature. For all their vast strength and infernal firepower, however, the Soul Grinders are just as much the slaves of their masters as are the Furies; perhaps more so. According to legend, Soul Grinders are created within the limbo realm known as the Forge of Souls. Whilst Daemons can never truly be destroyed, their essence can languish for countless centuries before reforming. Such a non-existence is intolerable to Daemons, and the most desperate amongst them turn to the Soul Forge as a way to circumvent their purgatorial exile. The Daemon's essence is bound into a metallic frame capable of terrific destruction. Yet the price of such power is high, the forge demanding a cost in souls reaped before the Daemon's debt is considered paid. Those entities that bind themselves into Soul Grinders soon realise that their mighty new body is as much a curse as a boon, a metallic prison that they cannot escape until their debt is cleared. Even as the Daemon slaughters his way across the galaxy, the price demanded rises erratically, sometimes remaining forever out of reach. Worse still, should the Soul Grinder be destroyed before the debt is paid, the Daemon's debt rises exorbitantly, its possessing essence trapped in a never-ending cycle that it cannot escape. It is for this reason that Soul Grinders wreak such indiscriminate slaughter upon the field of battle – every soul claimed is a minute step in the road towards a distant freedom that the Daemon craves above all else, and that only a mountain of the dead can earn.

DARK MASTERS

Not all the Daemons of Chaos are victims; Daemon Princes are transcendent beings, formerly mortal champions that have earned the ultimate reward of Daemonhood. Inevitably these beings are patronised by one or other of the Chaos Gods, whose mark and nature lays heavy upon them. Yet they are creatures that retain their otherness from the true scions of the warp, and so they are viewed askance by the entities that they lead into battle. Many Daemon Princes retain at least an echo of their former autonomy, serving their god because they wish to rather than because it is utterly intrinsic to their existence.

One amongst this dark brotherhood is different to the rest, an aberration so powerful that he has no single master. Be'lakor, this ancient horror is named, and he has been the dark god of a thousand fallen civilisations scattered across space and time. Those who know his name speak it only in whispers, telling that he was the first mortal ever to become a Daemon Prince, and that he shall have some great part to play before the galaxy's final ending...

QUESTOR TRAITORIS

Humanoid war engines that tower over their foes, each Renegade Knight carries an army's worth of firepower upon its weaponised limbs and hulking carapace. At close quarters, their roaring chainswords and crushing thunderstrike gauntlets destroy what their trampling feet cannot, scattering terrified survivors before their unstoppable advance.

The ground shudders beneath the godlike tread of the Renegade Knights. Even one such looming war engine possesses the firepower to annihilate entire regiments of enemy warriors, pick apart armoured columns, and swat squadrons of aircraft from the skies. Chaos Lords and rebellious demagogues will go to great lengths to secure the services of such a lone warrior, sacrificing whatever they must to ensure that this god of destruction fights at their side.

Deployed in great number, the Questor Traitoris are more fearsome still, and have been known to bring entire worlds to heel, scourging them by blade and by flame in the name of the Dark Gods.

CORRUPTING THE INCORRUPTIBLE

Those who pilot Imperial Knights are brave and noble warriors, drawn from ancestral knightly houses. In their eighteenth year, aspirants face the Ritual of Becoming, a strange rite where the mind of the Noble is fused with the Knight's machine spirit, allowing the pilot to occupy the machine's Throne Mechanicum and control it with their thoughts alone. This rite – coupled with psychosuggestive subroutines fed through the Knight's neural jacks – is intended to weed out those who are weak in mind or soul, reinforcing notions of honour and selflessness so that few Knights risk falling to the temptations of Chaos.

No man is beyond the reach of the Dark Gods, however. To believe otherwise is dangerous arrogance. There are many ways that a Knight may stray from the true path laid out in the Code Chivalric, or else be driven from it by force. Most common are those times when Freeblade Knights – those who have already forsworn their knightly houses due to some shame or tragedy – find themselves driven to commit ignoble acts to survive. The ghosts of the Thrones Mechanicum are uncompromising and unforgiving, and the judgemental voices of ancestors long passed will lambaste such a fallen Knight mercilessly. Some pilots take their own lives, or abandon the throne forever – to a Noble pilot, there is little difference between these two terrible ends. Those who do not, or worse, cannot, are driven swiftly mad. It is this insanity that the Dark Gods prey upon, claiming the Nobles' lost souls and twisting the machine spirits of their steeds into ravening beasts. In recent years, covens of Warpsmiths have taken to capturing lone Knights and giving them over for torture until this horrible end is achieved. There are even whispered rumours that some Renegade Knights no longer contain living pilots at all, but are instead the unwilling hosts to parasitic possessor Daemons who clad themselves in the war engine's adamantium plates as a mortal warrior might don a suit of armour.

Rarer and more terrible are those instances when an entire lance, or even a whole knightly house falls into damnation. During the dark days of the Horus Heresy, this was a tragedy that played out many times, most famously with the once glorious House Devine who fell to the temptations of Slaanesh. With the Cicatrix Maledictum splitting the galaxy, such wholesale corruption has become a hazard once again. Here, a compromised Sacristan creeps from one Throne Mechanicum to the next, tainting them with daemonic ichor brewed to drive the Knights to madness and mutation. There a Baron leads a noble crusade to purge a world of Chaos taint, only to become so immersed in blood that he and his followers degenerate into the very berserk beasts they strode out to slay. The Inquisition have gone to great pains in their efforts to suppress reports of traitorous knightly houses, for the mere notion of such loyal warriors turning traitor is every bit as horrifying as the concept of Renegade Space Marines. Yet more Knights fall with every passing year, and their devastating rampages have become difficult to conceal.

INFERNAL QUESTS

When Renegade Knights gather in great number they are compelled to swear grim oaths to the Dark Gods. In a twisted parody of their former nobility, they vow to complete mighty tasks on pain of death and dishonour. Such deeds may include the burning of a cardinal world or other great place of faith, the hunting of some feted Imperial hero, or the wholesale butchery of a star system whose defenders have offended the Dark Gods with their resistance. Once they have set themselves to such an Infernal Quest, Renegade Knights will not relent until either they emerge victorious, or they are slain to the last.

CHAOS BASTIONS

When the gathered regiments of the Imperium or hordes of xenos raiders launch their forays into Chaos-held territory, warriors of the Dark Powers rush to man their bastions and fortifications. They stand tall upon the ramparts of these mighty redoubts, weapons blazing white-hot fire at the swarming attackers below. Many Chaos Bastions were erected in worship of the Chaos Gods, consecrated with rivers of innocent blood and bedecked with hateful iconography. Others were originally raised by loyal Imperial troops, only to be corrupted when the forces of darkness swept across their worlds, butchering the inhabitants and defiling the once glorious strongholds.

Chaos Bastions are as varied as they are formidable. They may be mere fragments of a network of walls and kill-towers criss-crossing a fortress planet, or lonely spires reaching out of the irradiated mires of a once bountiful agri world. They may hang suspended in the air above a crystal forest, or stand draped by flayed-skin banners amidst the charnel-halls of decadent cultists. Regardless, they stand as hateful testament to the far-reaching influence of the Chaos Gods, and provide a deadly obstacle for any invading army. High walls offer plentiful cover for defenders on the battlements, and murder-holes and gun emplacements spit punishing volleys at besieging armies. Even a small contingent can hold such a stronghold against a larger force for many weeks, turning the fields outside the Bastion into a butcher's yard of ruptured corpses and charred, gore-soaked earth.

Depending on the allegiance of its occupiers, the appearance of a Chaos Bastion can differ wildly. Khornate armies bedeck the walls of their fortresses with brass sigils and rune-symbols of the Blood God. The flensed skulls of slain attackers are impaled upon the battlements, alongside the ruined forms of those unlucky enough to be captured alive. Bastions dedicated to the Plague God are wretched, putrescent places, often circled by moats of bubbling effluent in which decomposing corpses float. Great black flies swirl above the ramparts, and pus-like secretions drip from the mouths of leering gargoyles. Spirals of warpflame and crackling arcs of corposant light ripple along the shimmering surface of Tzeentchian redoubts, and the very walls seem to roil and shift in constant motion. Slaaneshi cultists often hang censers filled with insidious perfumes from the walls of their lairs, alongside great banners of flayed skin. Amidst the beguiling fog of vapour, wide-eyed, screaming faces can be seen staring forth from these grim adornments.

The Heretic Astartes employ a line of debased Bastions to stymie the Ultramarines attack.

BATTLE-FORGED ARMIES

When picking a Battle-forged army for matched play, you will need to record the details of your army on a piece of paper (your Army Roster). Here we show one example of how you can do this; using several Detachment Rosters, at least one for each Detachment in your army, and the summarising main Army Roster itself. Over the page are blank rosters you can photocopy.

DETACHMENT ROSTERS

Each Detachment Roster details all the units it includes. Each unit has a small entry of its own where you can write down the name and type of unit, its Battlefield Role, the number of models it contains, and the weapons each model in the unit is equipped with. Details of how many models make up each unit and what weapons, options and upgrades each can take can be found on that unit's datasheet.

The points value of each unit's models and each individual weapon is then noted down by referencing the points lists on pages 118-121, and added together to give a points cost for the unit. The points cost of the entire Detachment is simply then the sum of the points costs of its units. This can be noted down alongside other useful information, such as the number of Command Points (if any) the Detachment gives you (see the Warhammer 40,000 rulebook for more on Command Points).

Unit Champions

Many units are led by a champion of some kind such as a Sergeant. Unit champions often have better characteristics and weapon options than the models they command. With the exception of Aspiring Sorcerers and Scarab Occult Sorcerers, unit champions have the same points cost as the others models in their unit.

Under-strength Units

Sometimes you may find that you do not have enough models to field a minimum-sized unit; if this is the case, you can still include one unit of that type in your army with as many models as you have available. In Matched Play games, you only pay the points for the models you actually have in an under-strength unit (and any weapons they are equipped with). An under-strength unit still takes up the appropriate slot in a Detachment.

ARMY ROSTER

Once you have filled in all of your Detachment Rosters, you can then fill out the main Army Roster. The name and points value of each Detachment is noted down here for reference. The total points cost of your army is the sum of all the Detachment points costs in your army plus any Reinforcement Points you have chosen to put aside (see below). The points cost of your army should not exceed the points limit you are using for the battle.

There are lots of other useful things to write down on your main Army Roster, such as who the army's Warlord is (this should be done at the start of the battle) and the number of Command Points available to your army. Remember that all Battle-forged Armies start with 3 Command Points, but certain Detachments, and occasionally certain models, can change this total.

Reinforcement Points

Sometimes an ability will allow you to add units to your army, or replace units that have been destroyed. One of the most common examples is the Daemonic Ritual ability (pg 68), which allows you to summon units of Daemons to the battlefield. You must set aside some of your points in order to use these units. The points you set aside are called your reinforcement points, and need to be recorded on your army roster. Each time a unit is added to an army during battle, you must subtract the number of points the unit would cost from your pool of reinforcement points.
