Dorak appears as a tremendously large man garbed in a leather tunic. Dorak enjoys peace and will go to great lengths to preserve it, even if it means destroying an entire army. His body acts as a Ring of Spell Turning. He will never let a battle of any size continue in his presence. His Flail is so massive that it has a 12' diameter. However, because he is so large, Dorak is less corporeally solid and thus does less damage when he hits than would seem normal.

His main weapon is the +4 Trident, Skyshaker. The Trident will do 10 - 60 points of damage. Although Eqni is usually in a good mood, when angered he has the full power of the earth at his whim. He may summon 1 - 4 Earth Elementals to do his bidding without continuing control. He may cause earthquakes 4 times the power of the Clerical spell. He can cause a small volcano to erupt in the space of 4 turns, spewing forth molten lava that will move at a rate of 30' a round and do 10 - 60 points of damage per round to whatever it touches. Anything flammable will immediately burst into flame.

Kala Kala can use any spell, Clerical, Magical, or Druidical, involving fire or heat. The god is reputedly a child of the sun, but he commands earthly and other worldly fire, being able to summon 1 - 4 Fire Elementals of the largest size to his aid. In combat, Kala Kala hurls huge balls of molten stone which cover an area with a 15' radius, doing 10 - 100 points of damage and leaving a pool of lava in its wake. Kala Kala is very taken with his appearance. It is his nature to boast of his beauty and power. Often, when angered, he is content to produce huge clouds of harmless flames that light up the night skies. In the same respect, Kala Kala is quick tempered. Mortals who displease him may gain a rather hot reception or lose the power to control fire. Before Kala Kala will come to the aid of his followers, a large fire must be built in his honor along with offerings.

The crown, if worn by any other creature will drive them insane as long as it is in their possession. All beings must save vs. Spells or be Charmed when within 60' of the god. Ragtha may use any spell, Clerical, Magical or Druidical. He is protected by 1 - 4 Water Elementals at all times. Once per day he may cause a water spout, tidal wave (small) or a whirlpool. Ragtha is closely linked with the sea races. He is Lord Protector of the sea and many of the Humanoid races in the waters will flock to his aid. Ragtha will not aid followers if they are more than 50 miles from a major (read as ocean, sea or mighty lake) body of water. He will grant water-breathing to his followers since all his temples are beneath the waves. However, if angered, he may remove this ability at a most inopportune time. The water god has the power to produce a high pressure wall of water that will keep any creature or spell out for 10 turns. The wall is moveable. Size is limited by the body of water with a maximum of 30' x 180'. Ragtha may also breathe a cloud of high pressure steam into a 30' x 30' x 30' cloud that will do 10 - 80 points of damage, doing this up to 3 times daily. His Strength is immense and he can pull a large Galley beneath the waves in 4 turns.

Wherever he walks, nothing will grow again in his footsteps for a century. Every plant and creature of less than 1 Hit Dice within 20' of him will die instantly of a rapidly spreading fatal disease, rotting away to dust, ashes and bones in minutes. Ihlwynd's Touch must be saved against Magic or the victim will immediately contract a rotting, wasting disease that will sap 1 - 2 Strength points per round and cause death in 2 - 5 days. There is no cure short of a Wish or Divine Intervention. When the god of disease strikes with his Spear, the wound caused will not heal, except by magic. Neither will the blood flow stop, regardless of any first-aid measures taken. Each successive round after the wound is taken, the victim will suffer 1 additional Hit Point of damage until the wound is healed magically or the victim dies. However, if Ihlwynd's Spear can be wrested from him, it can be used to cure any wound or disease caused by the god. It will not bring any creature back from the dead though.

The goddess Mesha takes the form of a woman of unmatched beauty. Her long hair changes color with the seasons. In the spring her hair is light brown and a single strand will cure any disease. In summer, it is a dark red and filled with the fragrance of jasmine. In autumn, her hair turns to a golden brown and to touch it is to sleep for 1000 days. In the winter, her hair is coal black and has the power to freeze anything that comes into contact with it as it blows in the wind. The olive colored skin of Mesha shimmers with a golden light. This aura protects her from any energy forces, spells or mind attacks, much like an anti-magic shell, however it permits her to use her powers and magic.

Mesha has the power to change the season at will, but the power may be used but 4 times a year and the seasons will change normally at the prescribed time unless otherwise altered. That is to say, winter may be prolonged through spring, but with the coming of summer, it will fade away. It is also in her ability to cure critical wounds 4 times daily and up to 3 diseases may be removed each day. She may also restore one lost life each day and from 1 - 6 lost levels. However, Mesha is extremely unpredictable. When of good cheer, she will aid both man and god, regardless of alignment, but a mood of indifference might allow anything to happen as she can turn quite casually destructive, turning fertile land in arctic waste. To those who have performed brave deeds, Mesha might reward them with a fitting gift. Cowardly followers might be smitten with a potent curse.

There is an additional 5% chance that any being so gazed upon and failing to save will die from Fear instantly. Thanatos is the keeper of the dead and has the ability to speak with any dead being he desires. His Quarterstaff, "Reaper", is constructed of some shiny, ebony substance. For a Mortal to touch it means instant death, no saving throw. The ends of the Staff are metal shod. One end is Silver and the other Gold. The Silver end will drain 2 Energy Levels. The other end will do 4 - 40 points of damage. The ebony middle will cause instant death. Each strike is determined as follows on a d100: 1 - 45: Silver, 46 - 90: Gold, 91 - 00: Ebony. Thanatos is 80% Magic Resistant and may only be struck by +2 or better magic weapons. Once summoned by Mortals, he will only return to his Plane when he has collected 1 - 20 Mortal lives. Any Mortal creature killed by Thanatos is unresurrectable or reincarnatable.
