

The Voice of the Animals

Maps & Handouts

Maps & Handouts Package © 2006 Pegasus Press
Maps & Handouts Content © 2006 by individual creators
Please refer to Worlds of Cthulhu #4 for the artists involved

The Labyrinth inside Harvey's Farmhouse
Players' copy

The Labyrinth inside Harvey's Farmhouse
Keeper's copy

Handout 1: Researching the Monkey Connection - Brichester Herald article

BRICHESTER Herald

October 7, 2004
BEST value, BEST read for YOUR town
40p
No. 12168

IS YOUR CHILD A SUPERKID?

- p7

14-PAGE
TEMPHILL
SHOW
SOUVENIR

- p15-18

THEIR BIG DAY

- p33

SHOCKING MURDER CLAIMS HEROIC DOCTOR

BRICHESTER UNIVERSITY – Last night, an assault claimed the life of crusading Dr. Jonathan Blakesly. Dr. Blakesly, pioneer of many treatments improving the lives of victims of hearing loss, was beaten around the head by an unknown assailant as he worked in his laboratory at the medical school of Brichester University. Police say the doctor lost consciousness and died of his wounds before he could be revived.

Roz Darling and Edith Pratwell celebrate the efforts of the Land Girls in the Severn Valley during World War 2 at the weekend's Temphill Show.

A chimpanzee was "liberated" from the laboratory, and this goal was undoubtedly the reason Dr. Blakesly's attackers ended his life. No terrorist organizations have come forward to claim responsibility for this heinous deed. Indeed, activists in the animal rights movement have quickly distanced themselves from the incident, with Sarah Halwell of PETA saying, "All life is sacred, both human and animal. This terrible incident is a pointless, inexcusable crime."

Police are requesting that any persons with information regarding this crime please contact the Serious Crime Squad, Brichester Police on 01555 237638.

Dr. Jonathan Blakesly, a widower, leaves no family. A service will be held at Mercy Hill Abbey on Saturday at noon.

Police seek 'headless' flasher

Brichester Police are seeking witnesses to a man indecently exposing himself to passer-bys in Lower Brichester. The man is described by police as "short, overweight and sweating".

Prof. Blakesley was a world-renowned medical researcher

By Paul Lemar
Crime Correspondent
plemar@briherald.co.uk

Friday, April 16:

Have finished the audiotape. It took effort to engineer, but finally able to get system to record required tones.

Working on first implant device.

Tuesday, May 4:

Implanted device into test subject #1A.

Wait for scars to heal, then make first test.

Handout 2: Professor Blakesly's Notes

Wednesday, May 12:

Not successful.
#1A's eardrums burst.

#1B is ready.

Friday, June 4:

#1B not responding well to tests

Thursday, June 17:

Intern found #1B
dead this morning.
Had dug out
implants.
Must requisition
more chimpanzees.
Also work on
implant design.

Saturday, August 14:

#2A and #2B
acclimating to devices better.
Have already implanted a second one in #2B.

Handout 2: Professor Blakesly's Notes

Friday, September 3:

Euthanized #2A.
Attacked and ate
#2B.
Heard them howling
from down the hall.

Wednesday, September 15:

New implant design.
#3A and #3B
ready.

Handout 2: Professor Blakesly's Notes

Monday, October 4:

#3A is dead. Heart
stopped? Frustrating.
#3A and #3B most
successful yet.
Taken well to second
implants.
Will try new implant
on #3B tomorrow.

Tuesday, October 5:

Noticed change in #3B's inner ear
structure while attaching fourth
implant.
Battery of hearing
tests yielded
excellent results.
Am getting closer.